Administration lacking clout at home, abroad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There isn't much President Ford can do to help South Vietnam.

Top officials admitted today that they lack the diplomatic leverage in Peking and elsewhere which might have some effect in persuading the Hanoi government to stop military attacks and abide by the terms of the January, 1973 peace agreement.

They said the administration lacks the political clout at home to get Congress to restore the economic and military aid it slashed from the authorization for South Vietnam.

Congress has prohibited any U.S. military activity in Southeast Asia, including air attacks from the 7th Fleet or bases in Thailand. Even without the ban, the consensus is that Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would definitely not want to get involved militarily again.

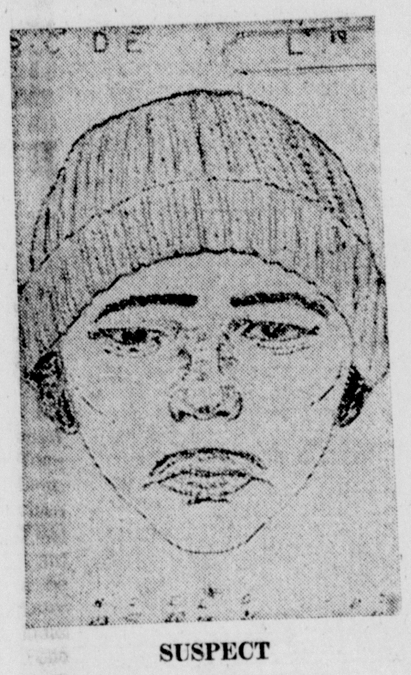
Ford was expected to discuss the situation again with his top aides, as he did Tuesday. So far the administration has done nothing beyond issuing statements. It condemned the Communist military takeover of district headquarters in Thuoc Long Province and the city of Thuoc Binh, and it charged Hanoi with "grave violation" of the Paris peace agreement.

In view of the restrictions against increasing assistance to the Saigon government, administration officials said, the best way to help out might be to increase the replacement of military equipment by advancing the delivery dates of some tanks and other weapons.

Officials said the job of trying to keep the South Vietnamese government going is compounded by the fact that the American public generally washed its hands of Southeast Asia after American prisoners were released. Now, worried over the effects of the energy crisis, the possibility of war in the Middle East and growing unemployment and inflation at home, most Americans are not inclined to look with sympathy on any new effort to save the Saigon government.

Officials here do not entirely agree on what Hanoi seeks to accomplish by the new offensive, which has been concentrated in the area 100 miles northeast of Saigon. It follows Communist attacks last month farther south in the Delta region.

However, they discount any idea that Hanoi is attempting to gain more new territory. Instead, most officials believe, the attacks by Vietnamese forces are designed to "bleed" the Saigon government by gradually destroying its equipment and by destroying the morale of government supporters.



SUSPECT

Cab driver describes assailant

Claremont police said today that cab driver Roderick Carter Johnson has described the gunman who shot him Dec. 27 as a youth between 16 to 20 and he provided enough other details for a composite picture.

Previous police reports had indicated that the 32-year-old victim had not seen his assailant.

Johnson, a former Claremont Graduate School student, was shot in the back with a bullet which cut his spinal cord. He remains in Pomna Valley Community Hospital in improving condition, but was said to be a quadraplegic.

Meanwhile, a $1,000 reward offered by the victim's stepfather, Dr. Gordon L. Barclay of Albany, N.Y., has not resulted in an arrest in the case. Barclay's reward was placed on permanent deposit in a Claremont bank Monday. It will go to anyone who gives police information leading to the arrest and conviction of the gunman.

Johnson assisted police in the preparation of the picture after a young woman, who also saw his attacker, had helped with an earlier version. The picture was prepared at the Pomona Police Department, where a kit for developing such composites was available.

Johnson, who was driving a taxi that night, was shot when he went to 680 W. San Jose Ave. to pick up a fare. Police said the shooting was the result of an attempt to rob him.

The gunman was described as a Negro between 16 and 20, 5 feet 6 and weighing about 140 pounds. He had a thin mustache and wore a navy watch cap, dark jacket and trousers. Anyone with information should call the Claremont Police Department.

Stage set for immediate release

Sentences reduced for Dean, Magruder, Kalmbach

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday reduced the sentences of three major Watergate figures —John W. Dean III, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach —to time already served and set the stage for their immediate release from prison.

Sirica, the judge who first broke open the scandal and presided over the recent Watergate cover-up trial, gave no reason for reducing the sentences of the three defendants.

Sircia said in his brief commutation orders that "on consideration of the defendant's motion for reduction of sentence ... it is ordered that the unexecuted and or remaining portion of the sentence ... is reduced to time already served."

A spokesman for the federal court said he believed the three men would be released immediately. The three were all in Ft. Holabird, Md., where they were taken to testify at the cover-up trial and had not be returned to prisons where they had been serving time.

President Ford had no prior knowledge of the release and would make no comment, a White House spokesman said.

Dean was former President Richard M. Nixon's chief accuser during the Watergate scandal; Magruder, a key figure in The Committee to Re-elect the President, and Kalmbach was Nixon's personal attorney.

Sirica handed down three short orders amending his sentences in each of the three cases.

According to the orders, Dean filed his reduction of sentence motion Dec. 2, Magruder filed his on Sept. 18 and Kalmbach's was filed Oct. 9.

The three defendants filed their motions under Rule 35 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.

The three had filed for reduced sentences in the past few months following Ford's pardon of Nixon.

Magruder pleaded guilty Aug. 16, 1973 to conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States. He was sentenced May 21, 1974 to 10 months to four years in prison and began serving his term June 4, 1974.

Dean pleaded guilty Oct. 19, 1973 to conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States. He was sentenced Aug. 2 to one to four years and began his term Sept. 3.

Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal attorney, pleaded guilty Feb. 25, 1974 to one felony count charging violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, and to one misdemeanor count of promising an ambassadorship as a reward for a $100,000 campaign contribution.

Kalmach was sentenced June 17 to six to 18 months and $10,000 on the felony count, and six months on the misdemeanor, served concurrently. He began serving the term July 1 in Lompoc, Calif.

Local trucker is arrested in Texas on fraud charges

A man who operated a trucking business in the valley from May 1972 to September 1973 has been arrested in Texas by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a variety of charges ranging from issuing bad checks to providing false information to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

He is Robert Gilbert, 43, also known as M. W. Gilbert. The arrest was made Tuesday in Houston, according to William A. Sullivan, assistant director in charge of the Los Angeles Office of the FBI.

Sullivan said the arrest was based on a bench warrant issued by the U.S. District Court in Los Angeles after an indictment was returned Jan. 2, by a Federal Grand Jury in Los Angeles.

The indictment charges Gilbert on two counts of furnishing false information to the Interstate Commerce Commission in official statements, and on four counts of transporting in interstate commerce money and property valued at over $5,000 in each instance.

The money and property were obtained by fraud, Sullivan said.

Gilbert, he explained, used cooperatives to obtain business in the trucking field. He changed his company name and moved from location to location. He obtained thousands of dollars in income while issuing bad checks and false promises concerning the operating expenses of his companies, Sullivan said.

He operated in Pomona, San Bernardino County, City of Industry, La Puente, Downey and Pico Rivera during the May 1972 to September 1973 period.

Company names he used in those locations, Sullivan said, were Southwest Motor Freight, Farmers Marketing Coop, Southern Farm Lines, Hybrid Planters and Growers Coop and Agricultural Coop.

After the fall of 1973 Gilbert moved to Texas where he set up another company under the name of Gulfco.

CHARLES HALL

Educator wins MSAC board post in special election

Charles D. Hall, 48, a Diamond Bar educator, was elected to the Board of Trustees of the Mt. San Antonio College District Tuesday in one of the lightest votes in the history of the valley.

Only 4.6 per cent of the 205,133 eligible voters throughout the district cast ballots in the special election.

Of the 9,524 votes cast, Hall received 2,962, for a plurality of 31.8 per cent. There were 13 candidates.

His closest opponent was Travis L. Manning, a Hacienda Heights contractor, who drew 1,948 votes, 20.9 per cent of the total. In third place was Walnut dentist Ralph Kimball with 1,215 votes, 13 per cent of the total.

The special election was called to fill the unexpired term of Trustee Lance D. Smith, who died last August. The term begins next week when the ballots are certified by Leonard Panish, Los Angeles County registrar of voters, and ends March 31.

All 13 candidates in the special election, as well as six additional entrants, will run in the usual biennial election on March 4. But since Hall won the special election Tuesday, he will be designated as an incumbent.

Votes cast for other candidates Tuesday included: J. Rodney Davis of La Verne, 477; Leona M. Bourdet of La Puente, 453; Royell A. Storing of La Puente, 425; Hazel M. Haas of Covina, 421; Harry Branscom of Covina, 341; James N. Popovich of Pomona, 310; Gilbert R. Ramirez of West Covina, 302; Ron Boran of West Covina, 195; W. William Nash of Pomona, 128, and John J. O'Leary of Diamond Bar, 119.

O'Leary and Ramirez had withdrawn from the race earlier and had thrown their support behind Hall.

Hall, a frequent critic of the board for the past two years who had called the trustees "stodgy, ingrown and lackluster" and who had accused the present members of violating the state's Brown antisecrecy act, began a course of conciliation immediately after the election.

"There is no reason why reasonable men can't work out their differences for the benefit of the entire community," he said at a victory party Tuesday night. "Although I see myself as an alternative voice on the board, I feel the board will be enriched by a different point of view."

He denied that just because he was the choice of the MSAC faculty association he was committed to the teachers as a group. "If there is a conflict in interest between the community and the teachers, the community will always come first," he declared.

Election officials blamed the low turnout on the fact that the special term runs for only 10 weeks, and also suggested that voters stayed away to protest the cost of the election estimated at $55,000.

But what vote there was from the 201 special precincts throughout the sprawling college district gave Hall a broad base of support.

He was leading decisively from the start with 27 per cent of the absentee ballots. His lead was never seriously challenged, nor were the positions of the second and third contenders, throughout the evening.

He advocates holding the tax line, seeking alternative sources for financing education, and enlarging the adult education program at MSAC.

Helicopter aids in suspect's capture

A Pomona police helicopter helped in the arrest of a 27-year-old man Tuesday afternoon after the theft of cash from Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The man may also be a suspect in a similar theft earlier in Ontario, police said.

Pomona police booked Thomas Allen Gardner, described as a transient, on suspicion of grand theft. Later he was turned over to the FBI.

A teller at the Pomona institution told police that Gardner entered the place, asked for change and grabbed a stack of $20 bills when the teller turned away.

Officers said Gardner fled outside, but was observed by the police helicopter headed for the bus depot nearby. He was seized by officers as he climbed out a restroom window at the depot.

Gardner reportedly said he put back the cash taken at the savings institution. Officers said they found almost $200 in his possession.

About an hour earlier in Ontario at the First National Bank at E Street and Euclid Avenue, a man reached into a cash drawer and grabbed 92 $1 bills after distracting the teller.

Police said the thief asked the teller to look up his savings account number and when she turned away, he grabbed the cash and fled.

New state commissioners ponder enforcement

Political reform law born quietly amid legal outcries

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Members of the state Fair Political Practices Commission hope to bolster public confidence in government and its leaders through their enforcement of tough new campaign laws.

But the five commissioners took the oath of office Tuesday as California's chief political watchdogs amid legal challenges to the new Political Reform Act they will administer.

The law went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and gave the appointed commissioners broad authority over campaign spending and reporting, the activities of lobbyists and conflicts-of-interest involving public officers.

"The people have declared that from this day on the domination of politics and government by wealthy special interests is a thing of the past," said Chairman Dan Lowenstein, an appointee of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

But as he made that declaration, lawyers for the California Bankers Association argued for an injunction in a nearby Superior Court to block portions of the act approved by the voters last June.

The association, in conjunction with several large banks, is challenging the lobbyist restrictions as unconstitutional and contend the law would force public disclosure of confidential records.

Judge B. Abbott Goldberg took the request under submission, but told the bankers, "I'm not sure I can give you anything but sympathy."

In Los Angeles, a group of lobbyists prepared for a Jan. 20 hearing in Superior Court on their lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the act as a whole and various specific portions dealing with lobbyists.

The lobbyists are represented by the Beverly Hills law firm in which former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown is a partner. However, the elder Brown has said publicly will take no part in the suit.

The suit contends the voter-approved initiative measure violates a state constitutional ban against initiatives encompassng more than one subject.

The commissioners began their first day of work by considering regulations to set up enforcement procedures.

Lowenstein in his opening remarks took note of a Monday testimonial dinner for veteran Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, as the "last time in the history of our state that a public official would be permitted to enrich himself or fill his campaign coffers by taking money from lobbyists."

The 31-year-old Democrat wrote much of the initiative he will now enforce.

His remark brought a rebuke from another Democratic commissioner, former Congressman Jerome Waldie, an unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate and member of the House Judiciary Committee which voted articles of impeachment against former President Richard Nixon.

Waldie said he did not believe officials enriched themselves from fundraisers, and urged Lowenstein to be "more fair and judicious" in his comments."

Waldie was appointed by Controller Ken Cory. Other members are Sacramento lobbyist Richard J. Carpenter, a Republican and second Brown appointee; Carol Arth Waters, a Los Angeles Republican named by Attorney General Evelle J. Younger; and Tony Miller a San Francisco Democrat appointed by Secretary of State March Fong Eu.

Lowenstein receives a $39,702 annual salary. Other members are paid $100 a day while on official business. Except for Mrs. Waters, all the appointees are lawyers.

Police make 3rd arrest in L.A. stolen checks scheme

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police hunted today for a New Jersey man, the fourth suspect in an allegedly Mafia-backed scheme to steal $9 million with purloined city treasury checks.

A third suspect, Joseph Ernest Carter, 41, was arrested Tuesday and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Richard Keats of Ft. Lee, N.J., on 10 charges.

Carter, who was to be charged today, "is on the other side of this thing," said Deputy District Attorney Stephen Trott, indicating Carter is not believed to be directly connected to Keats or two men arrested earlier, Bernard Howard, 52, of Yonkers, N.Y., and Morton B. Freeman, 47, of Palo Verdes, Calif.

Investigators have pictured Howard and Freeman as "couriers" with connections to Mafia leaders in New York, who were supposed to pass on $1.2 million from the stolen checks.

Eighteen blank—but signed— checks on the city treasury were stolen last March, apparently by an as yet undiscovered city employe. Investigators believed that local criminals tried unsuccessfully to fill in and pass some of the checks, but failed. The checks were then given or sold to organized crime figures with the financial sophistication to use them, investigators believe.

The scheme was discovered through an informant with connections to Senate organized crime investigators, Michael Raymond.

Raymond collected a $45,000 reward from the city after helping capture Freeman and Howard, luring them to a rendezvous where they allegedly accepted what they thought was the cash payoff from a stolen check transaction.

One of the checks was successfully passed. It was filled in for almost $1 million, and deposited in a New York City bank. The funds were routed through another New York bank, to a bank in Geneva, Switzerland and on to a bank in Amsterdam.

Dutch police said $810,000 in cash was collected there by Aime Nassif, described by Interpol as a notorious international swindler, who disappeared with the money.

'New blood, new fire'

2 county supervisors put themselves on RTD board

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—For the first time in Southern California Rapid Transit District history, two county supervisors —Baxter Ward and Pete Schabarum —Tuesday named themselves to the RTD board of directors, hoping to add "new blood, new fire in the board."

Ward unexpectedly named himself to the 11-man board and then called for approval of Schabarum's appointment. Schabarum had announced Monday his intentions to appoint himself to the board.

A third supervisor, Chairman James Hayes, hinted that he may also appoint himself to the board.

The appointments, approved unanimously by the Board of Supervisors, mark the first time that supervisors have been on the board. Under RTD law, each supervisor appoints a director to the board.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn speculated that other supervisors may join Ward and Schabarum on the board of directors.

"Maybe all five members of the Board of Supervisors will do this," he said. "It might mean a whole new ball game."

But Hahn added that he has confidence in his appointee, Board President Thomas G. Neusom.

Hahn predicted, "This might put new blood, new fire in the board."

Ward told supervisors he was naming himself to replace district director Don C. McMillan, of Pasadena, who resigned. McMillan was appointed in 1964 to Ward's predecessor, Warren M. Dorn.

Schabarum replaced Arthur Baldonado, of West Covina, following his resignation.

Hayes said his representative, Hugh C. Carter of Long Beach, had recently moved to San Diego.

Although he hinted at another appointment, possibly himself, Hayes said, "I am not going to make a statement on what I am going to do at this time."

Car hits building, pole; driver okay

A Pomona motorist escaped serious injury late Monday morning when his car slammed into the side of a building and then a street lamp standard.

The accident occurred in the 200 block of E. Mission Boulevard while Randall R. Nelson, 48, 398 E. Pearl St., was backing up his car. Police said it first slammed into the side of Dave's Tune-Up Shop at 282 E. Mission Blvd. and then drove forward into the standard.

Nelson, who suffered facial injuries, was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Court moves to hasten decision on school financing

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In a rare action, the California Supreme Court has agreed to bypass lengthy litigation and hear directly from a lower court an appeal on the historic Serrano school financing case.

John McDermott, attorney for the plaintiffs, asked the Supreme Court to accept jurisdiction in the case because of its "great public importance" and an urgent need to enact a new financing system.

The Serrano decision, by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Bernard S. Jefferson, ruled the present system of financing schools is unconstitutional because of inequalities resulting from heavy reliance on property taxes.

The state legislature was given until 1980 to devise a new method of financing California's schools.

According to McDermott, acceptance of the case by the Supreme Court will speed up a final decision in the Serrano case by as much as two years. He now anticipates a final decision by the end of the year.

Even if the case is then appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, McDermott said, the state court decision to hear the case will hasten enactment of a new school financing system.

The Supreme Court's decision to hear the case directly bypasses a lengthy review process by the state Court of Appeal.

McDermott's letter to the court acknowledged that the action was exercised by the court "only in rare instances," but to do otherwise, he said, would result in unnecessary delay.

McDermott said that if appeals processes were carried out, it would probably be 1977 or 1978 before a new financing system were adopted by the Legislature.

50-hour wait in crashed plane, snow

'I wanted to call someone . . . and say, hey, we're alive'

SEATTLE (UPI) — "I almost wanted to call someone on the telephone and say, 'hey, we're alive."

But there was no telephone around as Mrs. Marilyn Foos lay inside the snow-covered wreckage of a small plane with an injured pilot near her side and three dead persons -- including her husband —just a few feet away.

The five were on a flight from central Washington to Seattle Sunday so Mrs. Foos' husband, Paul, 50, could get treatment for throat cancer. But stormy weather formed thin chunks of ice on the wings of their twin-engine Cessna 206 and it plowed into the forests of the Cascade foothills 25 miles southeast of Seattle.

For 50 hours Mrs. Foos, 49, and Gregory Bennett, 25, fought for their lives while would be rescuers, frustrated by bad weather and difficult terrain, searched for the emergency signal coming from the crash site.

The wreckage was seen Tuesday morning and Mrs. Foos and Bennett were in Valley General Hospital in nearby Renton a few hours later, listed in serious but stable condition with numerous fractures and cuts and some internal injuries.

The bodies of Foos, nurse Lenore Crowley, and another pilot, Michael Bass, were to be removed from the crash site today.

Mrs. Foos said she remembered little of the actual crash.

"They told us we were bucking 60-mile-an-hour winds. I looked out and saw ice forming on the wings. We then started to lose altitude. Suddenly I saw a tree out the window and then we smacked into the side of that mountain."

"We were very calm from the beginning," she continued. He (Bennett) kept saying, 'I'm going to leave, I'm going to walk out.' But I wouldn't let him.

"I felt remorse for my husband and Bennett would tell me, 'You've got to think of yourself, of your life.'"

"I had one good arm and he had two good legs. He used his legs to move while I could open the hatch door and push him upwards."

With that combination, Bennett struggled out of the wreckage to make sure the emergency locator beacon was working. Then the two took stock of their food —and found they had just five Lifesavers.

"We never lost faith," said Mrs. Foos. "All day Monday we heard the rescue planes fly overhead. Our greatest fear was that they wouldn't find us. We saw the tail end of a helicopter about 4:30 Monday afternoon.

"Oh, how we wanted him to turn around and come back and see us, but he didn't."

She said she and Bennett patiently collected papers and tissues from the tiny cabin. They planned to build a fire Tuesday if rescuers hadn't yet arrived.

"You know," she continued, reflecting on the struggle to stay alive, "it's amazing what you can do when you have to do it. I had more guts in there than I ever thought I had."

In the hospital Monday night, Mrs. Foos said she was looking forward to a visit today with her daughter, 13, and son, 15.

"One thing that kept me alive was that I couldn't stand the thought of them having both of their parents dead," she said.

Your income tax

By RAY DE CRANE

A worker with a modest income will be able to provide a monthly retirement benefit of $726 for life if he takes advantage of the new pension law. The $726 check will be in addition to his Social Security check.

This is the impact of the Individual Retirement Account — IRA — provided by the Pension Reform Act of 1974.

It affects every American worker not now covered by a pension plan or an organized retirement system.

The law permits him to set aside up to $1,500 a year in a special fund. The amount saved in this fashion is fully deductible on his income tax return. And the interest or other earnings on the set aside funds are not taxed until after retirement.

To illustrate the workings of the new benefit, here is a case history of an employe earning about $12,000 a year from a company which has no pension program.

The worker signs up for an IRA account with his bank, thrift institution or a brokerage firm that will design an investment program for him. He puts the maximum of $1,500 a year into his account until he retires at 65.

Assuming the man is now 40 years old and that his savings will earn an annual interest of 6 per cent, he will have accumulated $87,234 in 25 years.

What will this nest egg mean to him at retirement? The Wyatt Co., a national actuary and employe benefit consultant, said that a factor of 10 is now applied.

This means that one-tenth of the total benefits will be distributed annually for life. In the example, that would be $8,723, or $726.92 a month.

If the worker lived to his normal life expectancy of 80 years he would receive a total of $130,845 after having saved a total of only $37,500.

It could be the savings opportunity of a lifetime which could change total life styles of a generation of future retirees.

Bomber suspect described as a 'raving maniac'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged alphabet bomer, is a "raving maniac," a psychiatrist told a sanity trial Tuesday.

Dr. John P. Walters testified that Kurbegovic is mentally incapable of understanding the charges against him or aiding in his defense.

The sanity trial is to determine whether Kurbegovic is mentally competent to stand trial on three murder charges and other counts. He allegedly planted the bomb that killed three persons and injured 35 at Los Angeles International Airport last year, the deadliest civil airport bombing in U.S. history.

In cross examination, prosecutor Dinko Bozanich questioned Walters about evidence that Kurbegovic was sane enough to discuss with a co-worker "scams" to extort large sums of money with bomb threats.

"I think he would probably have done further things but I take it in the concept that he was a raving maniac," the psychiatrist said.

LAFC ordered to submit impact info on annexations

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's Supreme Court has ruled that a Local Agency Formation Commission must prepare an environmental impact report before approving the annexation of land that will be developed.

Such commissions were formed by the legislature in 1963 to make recommendations to boards of supervisors. They are composed of supervisors and city councilmen.

At issue in the ruling Tuesday was the plan of Kaiser -Aetna Corp. to develop a 667 -acre plot for residential, commercial and recreational use and annex it to the City of Camarillo in Ventura County.

Environmentalists filed suit against the county annexation agency saying the proposal fell under the California Environmental Quality Act and that an impact report was required.

City attorneys said it didn't and that only approval from the LAFC was needed.

The high court disagreed.

Claremont joins county in bid for federal aid

The Claremont City Council at a special meeting Tuesday night voted to participate with Los Angeles County in its application for new federal Housing and Community Development Act funds for the first year of the program.

City Manager Norman R. King explained to the council that the county Board of Supervisors Tuesday had issued a policy statement that the county will share its funds administered through the Department of Housing, Education and welfare (HUD) between the unincorporated county areas and cities under 50,000 population.

King told the council that the county agreement will be presented at the next City Council meeting Jan. 14 for approval.

King said that the city has a better chance to receive the new federal money if its goes with the county.

Councilwoman Claire McDonald said she has "all kinds of ideas on how we might use the money."

King explained that a county agreement would be for a year from the date when it is signed, although federal funds are allocated by the fiscal year, and the first year of the new program ends June 30 this year.

City Planning Director Donald G. King said that the second fiscal year could run concurrently with the last six months of the agreement.

The city must move fast in its application for funds because the deadline for county applications is April 15, while the deadline for city applications is May 15.

The city must allow for a 30-day review by the state of an environmental impact report of the application, and a 45-day review by the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) of the application.

The city has only 25,000 persons, and cannot qualify for funds under a category for urban counties and cities over 50,000 population.

IRA bombings mastermind arrested in raid

DUBLIN, (UPI) — Police raided a private home outside Dublin today and arrested the Irish Republican Army leader they believe masterminded the series of bombings in cities throughout Britain.

A spokesman said Kevin Mallon, 37, second in command of the outlawed IRA, was arrested in a private home in the fashionable suburb of Foxrock, on the southern edge of Dublin.

He was one of the most wanted men in Ireland, Northern Ireland and Britain.

The pre-Christmas bombing campaign in British cities, including London, killed 27 persons and wounded more than 250 in six weeks. The IRA then called a holiday truce and extended it to Jan. 16 while pressing demands for peace.

Five years of political-religious violence in Northern Ireland has killed 1,143 persons.

Scotland Yard said during the bombing campaign that Mallon, as the IRA's top explosives expert, was the mastermind of the attacks. At one point, they launched a nationwide manhunt on the belief that he had slipped into Britain.

Mallon's arrest came as one of Northern Ireland's Protestant militant leaders, the Rev. Ian Paisley, was saying chances of peace in the province are brighter than at any time in the past five years.

Paisley said he and other Protestant leaders had been assured by Britain's chief Northern Ireland representative, Merlyn Rees, that Britain would not negotiate directly with the IRA. This had been one of the Protestant fears.

The IRA wants talks with the British on its demands for an end to the policy of detention without trial in Northern Ireland and the withdrawal of 16,000 British troops prior to unification with the Irish Republic.

Mallon was one of four IRA leaders who set the peace offensive in motion by meeting four Protestant clergymen before Christmas to discuss the ceasefire and how it might lead to negotiations and a settlement.

Police raided the meeting place, but narrowly missed the IRA leaders, who were tipped to the raid and hurriedly left.

Mallon has been jailed twice before but has escaped both times.

A helicopter lifted him out of Dublin's Mountjoy prison in a dramatic break in October, 1973, and, with two other IRA officials, he blasted his way out of Portlaoise jail last August. He has been hunted since.

British authorities wanted Mallon for the murders of British policemen and soldiers along the border with Northern Ireland. They said he was responsible for ambushes and mine explosions there.

The effect of his arrest on the ceasefire was not immediately known. Mallon had argued that the truce should not be extended past Jan. 2, but compromised with moderate IRA leaders.

Officially, he is the deputy chief of staff of the IRA's army council and, as such, was at the top of the wanted list in Northern Ireland.

Oil tariff plan

7 cents a gallon price hike?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is strongly considering new tariffs on imported oil that could increase retail gasoline prices as much as 7 cents a gallon by fall, according to administration sources.

The sources said Ford was "close to approval" of that plan and also was studying a related proposal —to remove controls on prices for so-called "old oil" produced in the United States. That probably would mean another boost of a couple of cents at the gasoline pump.

The President was said to be considering the two measures as part of a program designed to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and to cut domestic consumption through higher fuel prices.

He has been meeting regularly with top advisers to review these and other recommendations, and he is expected to outline his new energy policy in his first State of the Union address, shortly after the new Congress convenes Jan. 14.

The sources said the tariffs under consideraton would be gradual, starting at $1 a barrel around March 1 and going to $2 in April and $3 by fall.

The $1 tariff, they said, could cause an increase of about 2½ cents a gallon in gasoline prices for consumers; the $3 tariff, 7 cents.

The companion proposal, involving controls on prices for domestically produced "old oil," was described as somewhat less certain to get the President's approval.

Under federal regulations that took effect Aug. 17, the nation has had a "two-tier" oil pricing system. Old oil was based on 1972 production, and its price was limited to $5.25 a barrel. New oil was defined as that produced from existing wells at amounts greater than 1972 levels or from newly discovered wells on new property.

For example, if 60,000 gallons were produced from a given well in 1972 and production from the same well rose to 75,000 gallons in 1973, the first 60,000 in 1973 would fall into the category of "old oil" and the remaining 15,000 would be considered "new oil" not subject to price limitation.

The new oil can be sold at world prices —about twice the $5.25 a barrel price limit —and the sources said decontrol of the old oil would mean that it could also rise to the world level.

HOW 'JUGHEAD' GOT ITS NAME

Burlington, N.C., humane officer Jim Murrary slowly and cautiously works the mouth of glass jar until little pup's head slips free. To make sure the pup would be able to breathe during the rescue, Murrary broke the end off the jar. The pup did not have a name, but after the harrowing experience he was given an appropriate one — "Jughead."

Promises on both sides

New Kissinger shuttle policy

By United Press International

Israeli reports said today Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger hopes to resume his Middle East shuttle diplomacy next month when he expects negotiations toward a second-stage Israeli-Egyptian disengagement accord in the Sinai Desert to be 90 per cent complete.

In a dispatch from Washington, the Tel Aviv newspaper Ha'aretz said Kissinger's optimism was apparently based on understandings he received on Israel's position in diplomatic contacts with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and that he apparently has already received several conditional promises from both sides.

"In the course of January, Dr. Kissinger hopes that Israel will make known to him its willingness to withdraw from the (Sinai mountain) passes and the Abu Rodeis oil fields and that the Egyptians will answer his requests concerning their wilingness to make political concessions," Ha'aretz said.

Israel captured the Sinai from Egypt during the 1967 Six Day War. The government's position in the past has been not to give up either the Abu Rodeis oil fields or the Mitla and Giddi mountain passes in a second-stage pact with Cairo.

Rabin, in an interview published today in the Paris newspaper Figaro, said that in case of a real peace treaty with Egypt, Israel was ready to abandon most of the Sinai but would not give up Sharm-el-Sheikh, the fortress which guards the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba.

In other Middle East developments:

—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat told a Beirut newspaper the Soviet Union had refused to replace the war materiel Egypt lost in the 1973 war with Israel but had replaced Syria's losses.

—Six British Labor members of Parliament ended a 10-day-visit to Lebanon as guests of the Palestine Liberation Organization and said the British government must increasingly take cognizance of Palestinian nationhood.

—Syria pledged "all its military, political and economic capabilities" Tuesday to block any Israeli attempt to occupy southern Lebanon.

Brezhnev attends mother's funeral

MOSCOW (UPI) — Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party, today attended the funeral of his mother at a Moscow cemetery, the Tass news agency reported.

The cemetery was sealed off by security men and Tass made no mention of Brezhnev's physical appearance. The Boston Globe had reported earlier that Brezhnev was expected to check into a hospital there today for treatment.

British pilots hit tactics used in thwarting hijack

LONDON (UPI) — The British Airline Pilots' Association today condemned the drawn-out negotiations and fake flight to France used to thwart the country's first internal hijack as a dangerous gamble with the lives of aircrew members.

The nine-hour drama ended Tuesday night with the capture at Stansted airport, 34 miles northeast of London, of the hijacker who used a toy pistol and a dummy grenade to take over a BAC111 jet with its five crew members, extort $235,000 and demand a flight to France.

Scotland Yard said the man, described as an unemployed, 27-year-old Iranian, was being held in a West London jail.

"The police tried to wear down the hijacker by stalling for time with endless negotiations," said Gordon Hurley, a spokesman for the pilots' association.

"And it came within a hairsbreadth of wearing out the pilot and crew. The hijacker's frenzied mental state almost took the crew to the breaking point themselves," he said.

At one point in the eight hours of tense negotiations before the plane took off from Heathrow, the strain became apparent in conversations between the tower and the pilot, Capt. Harry Lea.

"I will have no more messing around, nor will the hijacker," Lea shouted over the radio. As police continued delaying tactics, Lea again shouted, "I think this is a lot of nonsense. It makes my blood boil."

He had radioed that the hijacker is "becoming irrational. He's obviously mentally deranged..."

The drama began when the air pirate, dressed in an Arab headdress, seized a stewardess and took control of the British Airways BAC111 jet during a 30-minute flight from Manchester to London.

He let all 46 passengers leave when the plane landed at London's Heathrow Airport, but kept the five crew members hostage and demanded $235,000 in ransom.

Authorities stalled for eight hours but finally handed over the ransom when the hijacker grew increasingly nervous. The man, wearing sunglasses, then ordered the pilot to fly to Beauvais, a town outside Paris.

The hijacker stayed in the rear of the cabin, keeping a gun trained on stewardess Barbara Brindley. It gave the pilot a chance to talk privately over the cockpit radio with the Heathrow control tower.

"He's becoming irrational," Capt. Harry Lea, the pilot, told the tower. "He's obviously mentally deranged but he knows what he wants to do."

Roy Watts, chief executive of the airline, went to the tower and suggested that Lea fly the plane to Stansted Airport, a little-used field outside London.

"I don't think they're going to fool him that easily," Lea said, but complied with the suggestion.

Police said the hijacker realized he wasn't in France just before the plane landed at Stansted. He demanded a fast car to take him from the airport to Dover, a major passenger ferry port for France.

A policeman tackled him instead.

Robbers hit market, service station; two arrested in burglary ring probe

Armed robbers struck an Ontario market and a Pomona service station Tuesday — taking a total of $65 in cash — while Montclair police completed their investigation of a burglary ring with the arrest of an adult and a juvenile this morning.

Montclair police said they arrested Sergio Nunez, 18, of 1862 Boyd Place, Montclair, and a juvenile this morning concluding an investigation of 10 truck thefts and at least 10 business burglaries in the Pomona and Montclair area during the last month.

Pomona police last Friday reported the arrest of a Marine recruit and two juveniles in connection with a series of truck thefts and the burglary of at least 10 small businesses in the Holt Boulevard-Holt Avenue area of Montclair and Pomona and recovered about $2,500 in stolen property.

In each of the burglaries the thieves were reported to have smashed out the windows of the businesses in the early morning hours and hauled off the loot, including skin diving equipment, jewelry, food and other items in stolen mini-pickup trucks.

Montclair said further investigation into the burglaries led them to the arrest of Nunez and the third juvenile this morning.

In Ontario, meanwhile, police were searching for two men, one armed with an automatic pistol, who robbed the E-Z Market at 1855 N. Baker St. of a small amount of cash and change about 6:40 p.m. Tuesday.

The market clerk, Linda Farris, 27, told officers that the two men entered the store and asked for a pack of cigarettes.

Mrs. Farris said one of the men held an automatic pistol. The robber ordered the clerk to lie on the floor and took the cash and change from the register. The robbers were both described as Caucasians, about 20, one about 5 feet 6, withlong blond hair with a ponytail and wearing a denim jacket with an emblem on the back, and the other about 6 feet, with brown shoulder length hair.

In Pomona a service station attendant was robbed shortly after 1 o'clock this morning at the Shell station at 1903 W. Holt Ave.

Anthony Robles, 28, Montclair, said he was threatened by one of two young men who pulled a pistol after first telling Robles that their car had broken down.

The armed man was a Negro about 22, 6 feet weighing 140 pounds. He wore a dark beanie, blue jeans and a black V-neck sweater with two red pockets. He had a .25-caliber automatic.

The pair ran towards an apartment complex in the 1800 block of W. Orange Grove Avenue after getting cash from Robles.

In other valley crime activity, an Upland resident reported that burglars had broken into his apartment Tuesday night and made off with a diamond ring, an opel ring, stereo equipment, 87 silver dollars, a pair of jade cuff links and other items valued at $2,024.

James Carnicom of 1040 W. Seventh St. said he returned home this morning and found that the screen on his living room door had been removed and the curtains drawn. He suspected burglars and called police. Police investigating the burglary said the burglars either gained entrance through the living room window or the bedroom window in the apartment.

Bomb delivered in suitcase explodes; 3 killed, 3 hurt

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Three persons were killed and three others critically injured late Tuesday night in an explosion at a southside home which apparently was caused by a bomb delivered in a suitcase, police said today.

The victims were identified as Mary Ann Sigley, 21, her son Michael 2, and Burdell Offutt, 26, a visitor at the home.

Critically injured were Steven Sigley, nine months, another son; John Slepko, 21, and Deborah Slepko, 16, police said. Two other persons in the house escaped injury.

A police investigator said it "has been pretty well established" that the explosion was caused by a suitcase bomb but could give no immediate motive.

The injured were taken to the burn ward of Metropolitan General Hospital.

Police said the suitcase bomb was planted on a front porch of the four-family home.

Authorities said Mrs. Sigley's husband, William, 22, had left the home shortly before the blast.

Offut and the Slepkos were frequent visitors at the Sigley apartment on the first floor of the frame building, police said.

A neighbor said he heard footsteps running in the driveway just before the explosion.

Police said Offutt apparently went outside, picked up the suitcase and took it indoors.

The blast blew out one side of the house, buckled the front and damaged the other side. The front screen door was hurled across the street into a cemetery.

Sigley reportedly left the house for a drive with a friend, returning home alone shortly after the explosion.

Spent 31 years in Indonesian jungle

WWII Japanese soldier comes home

TAIPEI (UPI) --Lee Kuanghuei, a former Japanese army private who spent 31 years alone in the jungles of Indonesia, came home today.

His former wife and their son met him at the airport. He looked at them but said nothing. His wife grabbed his arm and broke into tears and laughter.

Lee, a Taiwanese aborigine, was drafted by the Japanese Army in 1943 to fight the allies in Southeast Asia. He was listed as missing in action when the war ended in 1945.

Last December, an Indonesian patrol found him on the remote island of Morotai, nearly naked and barely able to communicate with those who discovered him.

Lee, 55, whose Japanese name is Teruo Nakamura, learned only several weeks ago that Taiwan, a former Japanese colony, was returned to Nationalist China in 1946.

He learned the war ended long ago, his wife remarried, and his son, who was born after Lee was drafted, was now the father of four children.

Lee's return to his homeland was low keyed compared to the hero's receptions given two other former Japanese Army soldiers in the past two years.

One government official commented, "Lee is definitely not a hero, although his strong will of living is admirable. He is great only in the sense that he could keep himself so well in 31 years of isolated, lonely life."

Before boarding the commercial flight in Jakarta for his return, Lee gave one of his discoverers an embrace.

Court officials said Lee's marriage was still valid because his wife did not have him declared legally dead when she remarried in 1953.

Lee's wife said she has cleaned their four-bedroom brick house to prepare for his return and now she and her son, a prosperous farmer, have three acres of rice paddies, some fruit trees, vegetable yards and domestic animals.

"I hope my father can have more rest when he comes home," their son, Lee Hung, said today. "Of course he can feed the cows and pigs or he can work in the farm if he feels like it. But I guess it would take a while for him to adjust to the new life."

He said he has already prepared a house and a buffalo for his stepfather who volunteered to step aside when Lee returned.

GOV. ELLA T. GRASSO

Italian immigrant's daughter is new Connecticut governor

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Ella T. Grasso, the daughter of an Italian immigrant baker, today became the state's first woman governor, assuming the mantle of power in a critical period of rising government costs and falling revenues.

The new Democratic governor, speaking before a joint session of the legislature, pledged a "heroic effort to keep the budget in balance" without resorting to an income tax and to conduct her administration openly.

Rising early for her historic day, Mrs. Grasso attended a morning Mass at St. Mary's Church in her home town of Windsor Locks and boarded an Amtrak commuter train for the 10-mile ride to the state capitol where she had lunch with outgoing Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill.

The nation's first woman governor elected on her own merits, Mrs. Grasso pledged to restore confidence in government and impose the strictest restraints on state spending.

Mrs. Grasso said her administration would develop a budget structure that will produce those revenues "necessary to meet the cost —and no more than the cost —of essential programs."

"I repeat to you my commitment that this will be accomplished without recourse to a state personal income tax," she said.

Agents want to question Stonehouse

LONDON (UPI) — Two Scotland Yard detectives flew to Australia this week as part of their investigation of the business affairs of Jhon Stonehouse, a member of Parliament who disappeared in the United States and turned up in Melbourne.

Chief Supt. Kenneth Etheridge and Chief Inspector David Bretton want to question Stonehouse but are carrying no warrant for his arrest, according to the police.

Specifically at question is the report that Stonehouse had offered a $234,000 insurance policy to London bankers as security for a large loan before he faked his death.

The police said the detectives want to ask him whether the money was used for business or personal purposes. If he is not cooperative, they said, he could be extradited.

Colleges look to slums for student recruits

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — According to a Clemson University dean, some colleges have stooped to such unscrupulous recruiting practices as canvassing slum high schools and ghetto housing projects to find students able to attend their institutions on government grants.

"Recruiters from various post-secondary institutions work their way through low-income housing projects and slum high schools picking out students simply because they are eligible for various kinds of government aid," said Harold F. Landrith, dean of Clemson's Education College.

Addressing the annual meeting Tuesday of the Mid-America Association of College Personnel, Landrith said, "American colleges and universities must take immediate steps to restore public confidence if they are to survive." He also said the same types of schools with questionable recruiting practices are also offering watered-down academic programs.

Credit by examination, external degree programs and "universities without walls" are working overtime, he said, to provide credit and programs to a degree-hungry public.

"The tragedy of the century for education could well be a public awakening to the realization that the holder of one of these new degrees possesses little more than the diploma which graces his wall."

He said if employes buy cars now they can get cash rebates of up to $300.

NO LET UP—Steel production continues unabated in nation's steel mills although production in the auto industry — the largest user of steel — is at a near standstill. Most major steelmakers have diverted shipments from Detroit to other major users of steel, avoiding for the time being the economic woes of auto workers.

Steel mills hum despite auto lag

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The nation's steel mills continue to hum although production in the auto industry—the largest user of steel—is at a near standstill.

Most major steelmakers have diverted shipments from Detroit to other major users of steel, avoiding, at least for now, the economic woes which have thrown an estimated 65,000 auto workers off the job.

The auto industry, which annually uses 20 per cent of all steel made in this country, has reduced first quarter steel orders this year as much as 50 per cent. Shipments to appliance makers also have dropped off drastically.

But steelmakers are producing all they can.

Big steel experienced a hectic production pace during the past few months. Steel inventories, depleted by record demand, were further reduced when steelmakers were confronted a shortage of coal because of the nationwide miners' strike.

"We're making all the steel we can," one steel industry spokesman said. "We're producing all we can simply because our inventories are drawn down to nothing by two solid years back to back."

Most industry officials agreed the demand will continue for the first quarter of the year, and may increase if the auto industry experiences its usual spring and summer upswing.

However, Standard & Poor's, the financial reporting service, said: "At this early date, it is expected that continued weakness in sales of 1975 automobiles, a nominal further softening in full-year housing starts, and a related easing in consumer durables spending....will lead to a decline of about 7.5 consumtion in 1975."

A spokesman for Republic Steel Corp., however, said, "In the case of the auto business, we have been getting orders from other customers that make up for the slack, especially from farm equipment manufacturers."

L.A.'s highest paid employe will retire

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert V. Phillips—the city's highest paid employe at $73,056 a year—said Thursday he will retire as general manager of the Department of Water and Power effective April 1.

Phillips, 57, said he was resigning for "personal reasons." He declined to elaborate.

Retirement benefits will come to about $40,000 annually, Phillips said.

Mayor Tom Bradley said he regretted Phillips' decision to retire and would "call upon him for assistance."

"I think he has done a good job at the DWP," Bradley said.

Phillips said he hoped to keep active, perhaps in some type of consulting role.

Days of the milk cow are numbered

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An economics professor told the American Farm Bureau Federation today the day may come when milk cows are threatened with extinction and milk is sold as a delicacy.

"If milk cow numbers continue to decline in the future at the same rate as during the last 20 years, there will be no milk cows on farms by the year 2000," Dr. William H. Alexander said in prepared remarks. "Our grandchildren may have to take their children to zoos to see a milk cow."

Alexander is a professor of agricultural economics and agribusiness at Lousiana State University.

He said there were more than 3.6 million dairy farmers in the United States in 1950, but less than 400,000 in 1973.

Another speaker, a top government sugar expert, told the Farm Federation the sugar industry must change the way it has done business the past 40 years under the now-defunct Sugar Act's "security blanket."

"The hard facts are that the sugar industry is not structured to cope with the conditions in the world sugar market today," Arthur B. Calcagnini said.

Calcagnini is director of the Sugar Division of the Agriculture Department's Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Citing the rapid increase in sugar prices in the last year due to complex forces in the world market, Calcagnini said, "It all added up to a sugar market which, like a sleeping dog, was ready to jump up and bite somebody at the first sudden noise."

MR. JOHN W. HANLEY, MONSANTO CHIEF EXECUTIVE, ELECTED TO MAY BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Mr. John W. Hanley, President and Chief Executive Officer of Monsanto Company, was elected to the Board of Directors of the May Department Stores Company at a meeting of the Board in Los Angeles recently. Mr. Stanley J. Goodman, Chairman, announced. The action increases the number May Directors to 21.

Mr. Hanley joined Monsanto in his present position in 1972, moving from the Proctor & Gamble Company where he was Executive Vice President and a Director. He is a member of the Monsanto Board of Directors and Chairman of its corporate, administrative and executive committees.

Mr. Hanley is a member of the Board of Directors of Citicorp and its principal subsidiary, First National City Bank, both in New York. He is a member of the National Petroleum Council; Director and Member Executive Committee of Manufacturing Chemists Association; Executive Committee, National Council for U.S.-China Trade; and the President's Support Council — all in Washington, D.C. Both Monsanto and May are headquartered in St. Louis where Mr. Hanley, in addition to his business responsibilities, is a Vice President and Member of the Board of Trustees of Washington University, a member of Civic Progress, Incorporated and St. Louis Area Chairman of the U.S. Industrial Payroll Savings Committee.

Mr. Hanley received a B.S. Degree in Metallurgical Engineering from Pennsylvania State University in 1942, served as an Officer in the United States Navy in World War II, and received an M.B.A. Degree in 1947 from the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

NEW 1975 CARS ARE A BETTER BUY THAN CONSUMERS REALIZE

"New cars are an excellent value today and a better buy than the consumer realizes."

That's the heart of the message being communicated these days by Jan Siletto, president of University Lincoln-Mercury.

He says that "far too many consumers in need of transportation are staying out of the market because they are not convinced that new cars are a good value. "In fact," Mr. Siletto asserted, "they are as sound a buy today as they have ever been.

"For one thing, most consumers are not aware that a new car today actually is less expensive in terms of adjusted dollars than it was 20 years ago. In 1954, the average buyer spent 5.1 months of his income to pay for a standard-size car. Today the comparable car takes only 4.4 months pay and the buyer is getting substantially more product content than he got 20 years ago.

"In addition, the cost of maintaining a new car is down and with the continuing rise in used car prices, a new car holds its value better than ever before."

To illustrate the increase in used car values, Mr. Siletto said that a customer trading in a one-year-old Montego on a new Montego in 1971 paid a net cash difference of $1,207. (Trade-in data based on NADA Central Region Used Car Guides.) A comparable trade in 1975 would require a cash difference of $1,289 — an increase of only $82, even though the actual new car price had risen $857 over the same period.

In another example, Mr. Siletto said that Mark IVs have a net trade difference of $446 versus a $1,596 price increase and Lincoln Continentals are even more dramatic with a trade decrease of $21 versus a $1,429 price rise.

Another thing he said consumers are interested in today is the cost per month.

"In 1968, the average monthly car payment was 11.3 per cent of the buyer's average monthly income. In 1975 — with all price increases included — that payment will be only 10.7 per cent."

Mr. Siletto said that on any given model, increasing the term of financing from 36 to 42 months, could reduce payments by up to 12 per cent. This extension should more than offset the dollar trading costs, he added, and the customer could end up with lower monthly payments than he already has.

VONS COMES TO RANCHO BERNARDO

The grand opening of the new Vons Value Center in Rancho Bernardo, was recently celebrated. The new supermarket is being billed as "15 Stores in One, where 50,000 items from cuckoo clocks to cucumbers can be found." Marketing Vice President, Jerry Fahey, from Vons, has been quoted as saying that this new unit will be the company's largest ever.

In explaining the concept of the store, Fahey stated, "Besides being a grocery store, a butcher shop, a hot bakery and a fish market featuring over 30 kinds of seafood, Vons Value Center will offer a wide variety of general merchandise and services." Truly a bazaar of interesting and unusual features not normally found in supermarkets, they include a florist shop, cosmetic department, a sociability center, a pharmacy and complete drug store and Olde World Delicatessen and more. All of these give the new Vons the unique title of "more than a food store—15 stores in one."

In describing the size of the facility, Fahey stated that the total square footage of the building is 60,160 sq. ft., the equal of a football field under a roof. Shoppers will be pleased with the gaily appointed walls and fixtures, gleaming terrazzo floors and the very latest and most modern fixtures and customer check ou service.

Architects for this beautiful building are McClellen, Cruz and Gaylord. Contractor is Ernest W. Hahn, Inc., General Contractors.

Along with exciting grand opening food specials, is the opportunity to register for a free drawing on a 1975 Ford Pinto Runabout.

House of Representatives could claim liberal role

By CLAY F. RICHARDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new House of Representatives convening in mid-January will be filled with aggressive, reform-minded newcomers who could claim for the House the Senate's traditional role as the liberal leader in Congress.

For years, but most dramatically in the 1960s, the Senate has led the way in passage of civil rights and other landmark domestic legislation and opposition to U.S. involvement in Vietnam. But that trail-blazing liberal role might well shift to the House this year.

With 75 new members, the 435-member House has taken a considerable swing to the left. The Senate, which was pretty liberal to begin with, has stayed just about the same.

Congress will get an early chance to prove just how liberal it really is. Among the first bills slated for action are measures approved by the old 93rd Congress and vetoed by President Ford — including regulation of strip mining and health revenue sharing.

The margin of votes on these measures will provide some indication how close the heavily Democratic 94th Congress comes to being "veto-proof," although no one expects every Democrat to vote the same way on every issue.

The legislation Congress produces this year also will be important as a likely foundation for the Democrats' presidential election platform in 1976. As it looks now, the party's candidate may well be a member of the new Congress.

The November election saw a break-up in the House coalition of about 60 conservative Democrats and 187 Republicans that impeded liberal legislation in the last Congress. Now there are only 144 Republicans and about 40 southern Democrats, and the liberals are in control.

Democrats increased their Senate strength, from 58 to 61 out of 100 members, but the Senate is only slightly more liberal than last year. The switches were often a matter of a conservative Democrat replacing a Republican.

House Democrats signaled their lust for reform last month when, with new members voting and retirees barred, they rammed through the most comprehensive overhaul of that chamber's parliamentary procedures in a quarter-century.

The Ways and Means Committee was stripped of its power to appoint members of other committees, a job taken over by the liberal-dominated House Democratic caucus. Ways and Means was expanded to include more liberals.

Long-standing conservative committee chairmen may be deposed soon after Congress convenes. Two potential targets are Reps. W.R. "Bob" Poage of Texas, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and Richard Ichord of Missouri, who heads the Internal Security Committee.

Reform efforts were expected to fare less well in the Senate.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., is prepared to challenge the cloture rule that requires a two-thirds vote to halt a filibuster, but his move to reduce the needed majority to 60 per cent faces expected death by filibuster under the old rule.

Conservative control on the Republican side of the aisle also is being challenged. Sen. Jacob K. Javis, R-N.Y., is opposing conservative Carl Curtis of Nebraska for GOP caucus chairman.

Florida's two senators, Lawton Chiles and freshman Richard Stone, will urge the Senate to approve a proposed "sunshine law" which would open all committee sessions to the press and public. Stone says he will refuse to attend any closed sessions.

Much of the steam behind the liberal movement in the Senate will come from the new generation of Democratic committee chairmen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut will succeed retiring Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina, a conservative on nearly everything but Watergate, as chairman of Government Operations.

William Proxmire of Wisconsin is taking charge of the Banking Committee from John Sparkman of Alabama, who will become chairman of Foreign Relations. But Sparkman likely will be more conservative than J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, who suffered a primary election defeat.

The posture of Congress doubtless will be influenced by senior Democrats seeking their party's presidential nomination next year, notably Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who represent the moderate-to-conservative wing of the party.

Other, more liberal Democrats such as Frank Church of Idaho and Birch Bayh of Indiana could become contenders before the year is out. Liberal Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona is the only House member who has announced his candidacy for President.

Food coupon denominations to be raised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To keep pace with the paper deluge brought on by inflated food prices, the Agriculture Department announced today it is raising the face denominations of food stamp coupons.

Starting March 1, the current 50 cent, $2 and $5 coupons used by 15.4 million people to buy groceries will be replaced with new stamps valued at $1, $5 and $10, officials said.

The higher-denomination stamps will not mean more value for recipients. But the use of the new brown ($1), purple ($5) and blue-green ($10) stamps will reduce the number of coupons required in each family's monthly allotment.

Recipients must spend their old style stamps by June 30 because retailers cannot accept them after that date, officials added.

They estimated $6.1 billion worth of food stamps would be issued in the fiscal year ending in June. The current monthly stamp allotment for a family of four is $154. It ranged as low as $52 in some states in 1967.

In late November the department said it wanted to cut stamp benefits by at least $645 million a year to reduce federal spending. That would require more than 14 million needy Americans who now pay an average of 23 per cent of their net income for food stamps to pay 30 per cent starting March 1.

D.A. office won't issue a complaint against physician

District attorney's deputies in Pomona declined Tuesday to issue a complaint against Dr. Jack Fleming Ostergaard, 47-year-old Ontario physician arrested in connection with the death Saturday of his wife.

Pomona Police Department investigators consulted with deputies in the D.A.'s office and reported that no complaint was issued following their study of the case.

Meanwhile, Ostergaard, a general practitioner, was reported in satisfactory condition this morning in the jail ward of County-USC Medical Center. He was confined there after apparent suffering a heart attack in the Pomona jail after his arrest.

Police said they have informed sheriff's deputies at the county hospital that no charges have been filed against Ostegaard, and he is free to leave when his physical condition permits.

Ostergaard was arrested after taking his wife, Maureen, 42, to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival.

Preliminary autopsy results failed to reveal what caused Mrs. Ostergaard's death, and toxicological tests are being conducted at the coroner's office. The body has yet to be released by the coroner.

At the time of Mrs. Ostergaard's death, police said they suspected she died as the result of a hypodermic injection of some kind. She and Ostergaard were staying in a Pomona motel.

Construction of new Chino city, county offices may begin in April

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

Construction of new city and county structures within the Chino city-county complex may begin in April.

The complex, occupying about 15 acres, is bounded between Central Avenue and Sixth Street and Chino Avenue and D Street.

County Supervisor Robert Townsend reported building specifications on the county structure should be completed within six weeks. "Then we will call for construction bids and hopefully work can begin before April," he noted.

And Robert Fast, Chino city manager, said the city's target date calls for construction of a city hall and police building to begin by April.

Both officials report the complex should be completed before July 1976.

The county plans to build a two-story structure to have 45,000 square feet of floor space. Estimated cost is $1.9 million.

The major area will be occupied by two municipal courtrooms.

Other offices will be for the county supervisor, district attorney, marshal, public defender and probation, agriculture and assessor departments. In addition, there will be a sheriff's holding facility for prisoners awaiting court hearings.

Townsend reported the county had ended its contract with the VTN, Inc., and had engaged the Krueeper Engineering Co. of San Bernardino to prepare the building specifications.

The county, he added, will use a new procedure in awarding the contract to expedite the project. "We will take the building specifications and the firm awarded the contract will complete the architectural and engineering design and also the construction," he noted.

Funds to finance the project will come from the county's share of federal revenue sharing and sales tax funds.

Fast reported the city plans to call for construction bids by Feb. 1, call for bonds bids on March 1, and begin construction about April 1.

Estimated cost for the city hall and police station is $1.8 million. Planned for later construction is a separate city council chamber.

Both Townsend and Fast reported the city and county are still negotiating for four parcels within the complex. But the acquisition will not delay construction, they added.

Cost of the property is about $1 million, said Townsend. This is being shared by the city and county.

Under an agreement, the city will provide landscaping maintenance and the county will provide building maintenance, they said.

The county previously constructed a library in the first phase of the city-county complex. This is located at the corner of Central Avenue and D Street, across from the present city hall.

When the new city buildings are completed, the existing city hall may be used by the city's park and recreation departments. And the existing police building will be occupied by the adjoining fire department, said Fast.

Teacher in a coma for month dies

Michael Ricottone, the Chino High School teacher injured in the explosion of a 55-gallon drum Dec. 4, died Tuesday at Tustin Community Hospital.

The 24-year-old teacher had been in a coma for more than a month after the explosion at the high school.

Hospital spokesmen gave him little chance for survival, but he had partially awakened from the coma in late December. He slipped back into a deep coma later and died at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Six students also injured in the explosion have been released from Chino General Hospital.

Ricottone, of Bellflower, was an auto body instructor for the high school and the Regional Occupational Program. He was the holder of two associate of arts degrees in auto body and machine tools from Cerritos College.

The explosion occurred while Ricottone was welding two pieces of metal with an oxygen acetylene torch and using the drum as a workbench. Heat apparently radiated into the drum and ignited vapors. Firemen, however, were unable, after an investigation, to determine what was stored in the drum, except to indicate it was a flammable-type liquid.

TICKET BOOTH BURNS

Pomona firemen investigate blaze of yet undetermined cause that destroyed the interior and glass walls of the ticket booth at the Fox Theater Tuesday about 5:15 p.m. Fire Chief John Fowlkes said it appeared a screen on the door to the booth had been forced. Police made fingerprint checks. Loss estimates were $2,500, some $1,000 to property and $1,500 to contents. Machines inside were destroyed.

City withholds vote on bonds until it gets golf course data

The La Verne City Council, obviously miffed at being taken for granted, has refused to join San Dimas in approving $350,000 in bonds for the construction of a clubhouse at the San Dimas Canyon Golf Course.

The council tabled the request for two weeks Monday and asked City Manager George Caswell to get more information on the project.

Through a joint powers authority with La Verne, formed in 1970, San Dimas owns nine-tenths of the golf course and La Verne owns one-tenth.

Under the proposal, ownership of the course goes to the two cities from the joint authority when the golf course is paid off in 2002.

Up to now, the joint authority was empowered to handle its own financing. But a state law passed recently now requires all parties who formed the authority to join in passing money matters. This gives residents a chance to object, if they want to.

The San Dimas Council approved the $350,000 bond issue Dec. 30 and asked La Verne to do the same. But it apparently failed to send along the details.

"I, for one, don't have sufficient information to act on this request," La Verne Councilman Harrison Sanborn declared Monday night. "Unless I get some more data, I'm certainly not going to consider it."

He suggested that City Manager George Caswell provide some financial information as to how the golf course has been doing as well as plans for the future. And Councilman Frank Johnson urged Caswell to ask someone from San Dimas to attend the next council meeting to furnish the necessary information.

San Dimas City Clerk Barbara Henderson said today that the course was "basically breaking even on its operation. But just as important, we have a green belt around the area which will become public property in about 27 years."

She said that although the joint authority sought $350,000 for the club house and its furnishing, it was "most unlikely" that the entire amount would be spent.

Bids for the construction of the club house will be opened in San Dimas at 10 a.m. Jan. 22, Mrs. Henderson said estimates call for a construction price of $200,000 to $230,000. The bonds would be paid off in 23 years.

Two youths suffer face cuts in crash

Two Pomona youths suffered facial cuts early today when their car hit a utility pole at Lexington Avenue east of Garey Avenue in Pomona.

The most seriously injured was the passenger, Michael A. Baladez, 17, 471 W. Franklin Ave. He was reported in good condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The driver, Marcus A. Taylor, 16, 2204 Glenroy St., was released after treatment.

Police said Taylor told them he was westbound in Lexington when he swerved to avoid a dog in the street.

Driver suffers facial injuries

A Chino woman suffered facial injuries early Monday when her car struck a traffic signal standard at Indian Hill Boulevard south of American Avenue in Pomona.

The victim, Lillian M. Roberts, 28, 12346 Oleander Ave., was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Police said she told them she fell asleep en route home from work.

Last Sunday night, David Alan Rector, 27, 1574 Chelsa Drive, Pomona, also suffered facial injuries when his car hit a utility pole at San Bernardino and Mountain avenues, Pomona. He also was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Intermittent rain

A light drizzle moistened the valley this morning and the weatherman said more of the same may follow from time to time throughout the day.

The precipitation was barely a trace in the morning hours, but the forecast calls for a 40 per cent chance of some rain by tonight, and partly cloudy skies and windy Thursday.

Planners to mull waiving impact study on mansions

Restoration of two historical mansions will be considered tonight by the Pomona Planning Commission.

The Pomona Valley Historical Society is seeking exemption declarations for environmental impact reports to restore the Phillips Mansion at 2640 W. Pomona Blvd. and the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose, located at Park and McKinley avenues.

These declarations are needed for the society to apply for federal matching funds to help pay for the restoration program, said Clem Neibel, a society member.

The society is seeking $40,000 in federal funds for the Phillips Mansion and $25,000 for the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose.

Work on the Phillips Mansion, built in 1875, includes a new roof, repairing the porch and modifications to meet the state's earthquake laws.

Some work has already begun on the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose, said Neibel. The home, built in 1837, is reported to be the oldest existing house in the valley.

The society will seek $25,000 in federal funds for its restoration program.

"We are hopeful of getting started at both historical places by October," said Neibel. Local matching funds will come from gifts and donated services.

The planning commission meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Doctors get eye Briefings at PVCH

Pomona Valley Community Hospital's department of ophthalmology is sponsoring a review of the field for doctors.

These programs of continuing education will be held Jan. 14 and 21 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Auto crashes into milk barn; driver arrested

A Chino man was arrested Tuesday night after his car knocked down a barbed wire fence and hit a milk barn near Chino and San Antonio avenues, Chino.

Joe Castellanos, 42, of 8171 Chino Ave., was first treated at Chino General Hospital for a fractured nasal bone and lacerations to the head and face before being booked at the West End sheriff's jail on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, said Highway patrolmen. The driver was later released on bail.

Castellanos was driving west on Chino Avenue about 50 miles an hour when he lost control and the car ran off the roadway, said investigators. The vehicle went through a fence, uprooted a fence post, ran over some shrubbery and then struck the milk barn, they added.

Officers said they found the car partly inside the structure. No one else was injured.

Candidate for school board puts stress on leadership

"The present Pomona school board is apathetic, fragmented and therefore unable to provide leadership and direction for the school district."

That was the charge made by J. Cecil Hoover, 42, 1082 E. Alvarado St., a candidate in the March 4 school board election.

"In the face of serious economic and social problems," Hoover continued, "the present board has been unable to inspire public confidence in the district's educational programs."

Hoover, owner of Upland-Ontario Reading Services, 1021 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland, ran unsuccessfully for Pomona school board in 1972.

He said a school board member must be energetic and intelligent and provide leadership.

"Because of my background, my training and my community and school involvement, I am fully qualified to serve on the Pomona school board," said Hoover.

"I am desirous of the optimum in educational excellence with financial responsibility. This is the way I run my business."

Taxpayers, Hoover said, are justifiably concerned about economy in education. (The district has scheduled a tax override election March 4.)

"Many segments of our community are enduring financial hardships," said Hoover. "To ask for an increase in the basic tax rate may be asking too much at this time. The school district must find ways to cut expenditures just as the rest of us are doing at present."

Hoover is married and has four children, all of whom are attending or have attended Pomona public schools.

J. CECIL HOOVER

He said in his campaign he will solicit the support of individual citizens only, and accept only small contributions.

"I do not and will not represent any special interest groups," he said.

Hoover, a former teacher, is a past president of the teachers association of the Hacienda-La Puente school district.

He worked in support of the school district's tax override measure on the Nov. 5 ballot which failed.

County approval irritates city councilmen

Paramedic plan erupts in dispute

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors have approved a pilot paramedic program for Chino, but the City Council may want no part of it.

Councilmen expressed anger Tuesday night over the supervisors' approval of the controversial fire department program, and indicated the City of Chino might be unwilling to provide any funding for the plan.

The council reaction came after a local ambulance company spokesman lambasted the program, and a number of other concerned persons spoke during the meeting.

Officials of Kniffin Ambulance Co. of Chino have been unhappy with Chino Fire Chief Ora M. Short who first proposed the program. Kniffin claims it has already spent $16,000 to provide a paramedic unit for the area, and it would lose business if the fire department added paramedics.

Despite a warning by Kniffin that the county will begin training three Chino firemen as paramedics as of Jan. 27, the council did nothing more than refer the matter to next June's budget sessions.

They did express disapproval of the proposed program and indicated the city has no desire to compete with private business firms.

Councilman Ed Lynch said he was "resentful and suspicious" of the fire department "taking over private, free enterprise. I don't like it — once government gets a foot in the door."

City Manager Robert Fast said he was "not in a position," considering the economy and various priorities, to recommend paramedics for the fire department, but that he would urge addition of other fire personnel.

Mayor Bob McLeod agreed with Fast, and added "I don't want to compete with private companies as to training of paramedics."

Several council members, including Eileen Carter, said they were displeased that supervisors approved the program without input from Chino. Also, they expressed fear the county might try to "force" the city to approve monies beyond what the county provides for the program.

"The supervisors can't take action without the city, as to fire services," said McLeod, answering a questioning. "We have a contract to provide any service level we desire." (The fire department is county-governed but the city pays a portion of the budget based on assessed value.)

Fast said, however, that if the county chooses to provide monies for Chino's paramedic program, it would not be part of the city's funding portion. "Chino does not have any direct power over the Board of Supervisors," he added.

Meanwhile, Homer Aerts, president of Kniffin Ambulance Co., blasted Chief Short for his proposal. "It amazes me how Short presented the pilot program to supervisors two weeks ago. It's beyond my comprehension how Short misrepresented this to the board."

His firm will ask supervisors to rescind the program at next Monday's meeting, Aerts stated. "Both sides of this issue have to be looked at, and that has yet to be done."

If we ran a paramedic program parallel with the city, we'd have to give free service," said Aerts, "and we'd be forced to relocate to another city."

Spokesmen for two other ambulance companies addressed the council, and urged weighing all factors before spending any money.

"I hope the council goes on record opposing the county grant to Chino," said Chuck Birkemeier, manager of Cole Ambulance Co. of Pomona. "They should give it to Hesperia or Needles where it is needed."

Opinion

Watergate coverup still nags: Why?

Indiana Republican David W. Dennis, one of Richard Nixon's handful of faithful advocates during the historic deliberations of the House Judiciary Committee last summer, probably expressed the sentiments of millions of Americans when he commented on the just concluded Watergate coverup trial:

"I've never understood why it (the coverup was done.) That's still the great puzzle."

The former Congressman may be counted among the extensive ranks of indirect victims of Watergate. He was defeated for re-election last November, a fate shared by most of the other stubborn-valiant, last-ditch Nixon defenders on the Judiciary Committee.

But Dennis, as he himself will admit, is small potatoes compared to the mighty whose fall was confirmed by a jury verdict in Washington last week.

Of the four convicted defendants H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John N. Mitchell and Robert Mardian — the first two were at one time quite easily the first and second most powerful (and despised) men in the United States. Guarding as they did the portals of the presidency, they decreed who should see the President and for how long and on what business.

Indeed, with their influence over an astonishingly indecisive and persuadable Nixon, as revealed in the notorious White House tapes, Haldeman and Ehrlichman — certainly the former — may at times have had more to do with executive branch decision-making than the nation's Chief Executive himself.

In dismissing them 21 months before, President Nixon had called them "two of the finest public servants he had ever known." Even after their conviction and his own disgrace, even then, Nixon could not bring himself to admit wrongdoing on their or his part. Even this small, belated opportunity for nobility proved beyond his grasp.

The puzzle remains: Why the coverup? One can imagine someone like John Kennedy disposing of the problem in an afternoon, possessing as he did the toughness to deliver to the executioner whatever heads had to roll and the political savvy, if not basic honesty, to take his lumps before the people — and in all probability emerging more popular and admired than ever.

Why the crime at all? If anything was unnecessary in 1972, it was fear of the Democrats or plots to sabotage their campaign or attempts to extort millions from corporations. Even today, polls have shown that many of Americans would still vote for Richard Nixon over George McGovern.

Arrogance, some will say, small men in elevated positions or a perplexing failure to understand what the American political system is all about. Placing loyalty to a man above loyalty to country. A bidding dictatorship, just nipped by a saving piece of tape spotted on a door in the Watergate complex, not to mention being utterly smashed and discredited by tape of a different kind.

Men will be writing about Watergate for as long as they write about the United States, but if the resignation of Richard M. Nixon ended the story as far as most Americans are concerned, the decision of the jury in the coverup trial will be the final chapter in future histories.

There will be appeals. Other trials are pending. Watergate-related litigation may continue for several more years. But all of that will merely be footnotes to what occurred throughout 1973 and 1974 and on the first day of this year of grace, 1975.

Odd coalition

A self-termed "odd coalition" of liberals and conservatives has undertaken a challenge of the 1974 federal Campaign Reform Law. The measure, effective as of January 1, places sharp restrictions on campaign contributions and expenditures and provides for public financing of presidential campaigns. It also establishes enforcement machinery.

The coalition includes U.S. Senator James Buckley, New York Republican, former Minnesota Senator Eugene McCarthy, and Ira Glasser, executive director of the New York Civil Liberties Union. Their first step is a legal challenge of the law in federal court.

Buckley said the measure was passed because of "tremendous pressure for reform for reform's sake." Glasser dubbed it "the single worst piece of legislation for first amendment rights . . . in years."

McCarthy's charge was that the Reform law is biased toward the two major political parties, claiming it "makes it almost impossible to have an effective challenge" to them.

Odd or not, the coalition voices the concern felt by many, many Americans about this and other election reform laws. The progress of its legal challenge will be followed with distinct interest nationally, and in states such as California which today find themselves subjected to highly restrictive campaign laws that rose in all their questionable complexity out of the mud of Watergate.

Supervisors spy on letter carriers

In behalf of our local branch of the National Association of Letter Carriers and in the sincere interest of a better Postal Service, we want to state our position concerning certain postal policies. Our purpose is not intended to criticize our employer but to acquaint the public with truthful facts to correct distortions and mis-information.

First of all, we want our customers to know that the letter carrier delivers each day, all the mail volume which management permits to be delivered. In other words, when the letter carrier leaves in the morning for his assigned hours of delivery time, he carries with him all lof the mail provided by management for delivery that day. The letter carrier is not responsible for any mail delays and is, in fact, very sensitive to any service problems. We are working as a union for the best possible service policies and are not responsible for the problems which our customers have called to our attention and which are stated below.

(1) When we make a pathway across your lawn, we have done so on the orders of management. We prefer to square the corners and save your lawn.

(2) We do not condone curtailment of any type of mail and feel if routes were properly adjusted, there would not be the serious delays which are now being experienced.

(3) There is a daily average of more than 11 million pieces of mail which are not deliverable as addressed. Your mail carrier has always forwarded this mail and placed correct addresses on misaddressed pieces. This has permitted prompt delivery of such mail. That job has now been taken from us and the forwarding of mail is now being computerized, thereby causing some serious delays in ultimate delivery.

(4) Our assignments are based on strictly full eight-hour assignments. It is necessary to keep moving without consideration for fatigue, for our entire day. We resent being followed and spied upon as we perform our duties and we feel that at a time when our country is involved in an energy crisis, the Postal Service should not be burning valuable gasoline in the autos of nonproductive supervision. Supervisors are required to spend at least two hours daily driving around our routes at a cost of millions of dollars to the taxpayer. While their attempts to increase productivity are futile, their covert tactics seriously deteriorate morale.

As a union that constantly strives for better service, we are proud of our past efforts and accomplishments. We are not proud of the fact that our image is now tarnished by deterioration of postal services. We need your support and seek it through a better understanding of the fact that the letter carrier is not responsible for the continuing problems within the Postal Service. — Jack L. Nikirk, President-Branch 587, National Association of Letter Carriers, Pomona.

A forlorn and forgotten generation

WASHINGTON — In some primitive societies, the aged were herded into special shelters where they could die discreetly. In modern America, they often disappear into nursing homes.

Some die quickly of the ailments of age. Others die more slowly of loneliness and uselessness.

The story of this forlorn and forgotten generation lies unread, except by a few senators and their aides in the files of the Senate's Special Committee on Aging. We have had access to these files — folders heavy with heartache — which offer mute testimony of the way America neglects its elderly.

Medical science has given them longer lives, but social science has failed to provide them with civilized care.

The best of the nursing homes, staffed as they are by competent and understanding attendants, simply are no substitute for the family hearth. The most pleasant rest homes are inhabited by proud, pathetic men and women, who are politely called "senior citizens" but who are, nevertheless, old people cut off from the families that once needed them. They wait around, ashen, ailing, to die.

The worst of the nursing homes are wretched, accursed places, dwellings of death, whose helpless patients are subjected to physical abuse, filthy conditions, overtranquilization, theft of their property and reprisals if they have the temerity to complain.

The mute voices cry out from the musty files, like the Minneapolis woman who walked into her mother's room at a nursing home and found her stripped of her clothes and tied to a bed in the midst of her own wastes.

"I will never forget that sight," the anguished daughter wrote to the Senate. "It's seared into my memory, seeing her struggling to free herself, crying out for someone to help her. She clung to me and cried like a child over and over again. 'Thank God you've come, thank God you've come.'"

Over half of the nation's nursing homes are substandard, according to the Senate committee, even though the federal and state governments pay $2 of every $3 that goes to them. Yet the breakdown of the family means more and more Americans will wind up in rest homes some day.

From those heartbreaking files, here are a few complaints which have been verified by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, and his investigators.

—In Wisconsin, a woman entered a nursing home in good health in March 1972. By November, she was suffering from dehydration and a bed sore infected all the way through to the bone. She was in a near state of shock when transferred to the hospital, where she subsequently died.

—A New York woman, bound to her bed, shouted to be released. Instead, she was further bound and then gagged. Before leaving the room, the attendant struck her in the face. Later that week, the woman died.

—A difficult patient in Maine, was controlled by morphine shots, physical restraints and a washcloth in her mouth. She died when her lungs filled with fluid.

—In Brainard, Minn., a gangrenous toe was amputated by an orderly, because the attending physician wouldn't come out to the nursing home.

—In Chicago, a patient left unattended was allowed to drink and smoke. She fell asleep, spilling liquor in her lap, then dropped the lit cigarette. She became a human torch.

—A salmonella food poisoning epidemic claimed 36 lives in a Baltimore, Md., nursing home. The state investigated, found the home "was not an exceptionally bad one" and concluded: "The potential for such an occurrence is even greater in one of the many substandard homes we have in this country."

—The Senate committee found that some nursing homes were redistributing uneaten portions of food given out the day before. Others allowed dirty laundry to sit in food preparation areas. A few even kept the cadavers of deceased patients near the kitchens.

—In Washington, D.C., a nursing home administrator and a nurse's aide were convicted of murdering a patient. The pair apparently had forged their victim's name on several retirement checks and did away with the patient when they were threatened with disclosure.

—In Minnesota, a nursing home was given a construction permit near several large fuel tanks, despite the fact that state law prohibited it. The state legislature created a special loophole permitting the home to be built in this dangerous location. It turned out that various state legislators were involved in the nursing home venture.

The festering nursing home scandal is not merely a question of dollars. It is an issue of human misery, a measure of the morality of the nation.

Gifts Santa Claus didn't give

Santa Claus walked wearily into his office, put down his briefcase and hung up the new leather overcoat he had just received for Christmas. Then he buzzed for his secretary.

"Come on in, will you, Fifi?" he said. "We might as well do the inventory of undelivered presents and get it over with."

Fifi came in and said, "Good morning, Chief."

"Don't call me 'Chief', please; just remember I got you out of the letter answering department and I can put you back there. But let's get on with this. As usual this year, I made my list and checked it twice. And sure enough, I found a few people who were naught, so we embargoed their presents and now we'll have to keep them in stock.

"Let's see: for Earl Butz, we had a copy of '1000 Nonethnic Jokes and Snappy One-Liners for All Occasions.'

"For Bill Walton, we had one loaf of bread — organic whole wheat with no preservatives, of course — suitable for tucking under his arm while he cries.

"For Nelson Rockefeller, a do-it-yourself book publishing outfit, including printing press, ink and one hack writer.

"For Frank Sinatra, a free subscription to every magazine and newspaper in the world.

"For Henry Kissinger, a free, all-expense paid trip to Chile, with a special guided tour of the areas where sympathizers of former President Allende now live.

"For Richard Burton, copies of the collected works of Winston Churchill and a free series of literacy lessons.

"For AT&T board chairman John de Butts, a Monopoly set.

"For Dick Allen, the complete words and music for 'Chicago, My Kind of Town.'

"For Gen. Idi Amin of Uganda, free tuition in a Dale Carnegie course on winning friends and influencing people.

"For Fanne Foxe, a year's supply of cold tablets and a hot water bottle.

"For Bobby Fischer, a chess set and book of rules.

"For Elizabeth Taylor, a nice, clean used car, previously driven only by a little old man from Pasadena.

"For President Ford, an electronic calculator and a basic textbook on economics.

"For Woody Hayes, a football conference of his own called The Big One, with only Ohio State included, so he would be sure to win all the time.

"For Leonid Brezhnev, the collected works of Alexander Solzhynitsyn.

"Well, Fit, I guess that about wraps it up."

"But wasn't there anything embargoed for the, uh, you know, Watergate boys?"

"I thought you knew. There wasn't any need to check twice for them. None of them even made the first list."

Just in jest

Yes Virginia there is a Santa Claus even though you didn't get to see him as often as usual this year because he was banned from working in TV commercials. But he did make the rounds distributing a lot of weird and wonderful gifts despite a lack of the usual TV exposure. —There were electric clocks, for instance, which project the time on the ceiling.

For some folks he also left real diesel horns, thus making certain that the recipients of those fine gifts will now be able to honk their car horns longer and louder than any other kooks on the road. Then there was that book, "The Lazy Way to Trim Down," which he brought to dear aunt Maymie.

She was doubly insulted, figuring someone had taken that sneaky way to infer she was both fat and lazy. —So, Virginia dear, even though some frustrated oldsters may cynically tell you Santa Claus is just a myth, don't you believe them! Who else but Santa Claus could possibly think of so many useless gifts for so many unappreciative people?

Johnny Appleseed of good word

MIDDLESBORO, Ky. (NEA) — In 76 years Henry Harrison Mayes has been witness to five wars, one Great Depression, several sexual revolutions and a state fair that featured painted ladies. But he's never seen anything to equal the nation's current state of affairs. "The only thing that's gonna put things right again," he says, "is for everybody to right here and now get to know the Lord."

Mayes as a matter of fact, plans to help the familiarizing process as much as he can. And judging from his past efforts along the same line, his efforts should be herculean. It has been Henry Harrison Mayes, who singlehandedly and like a Johnny Appleseed of good words, has for 56 years been painting and planting many of America's roadside advertisements for Jesus Christ.

You've seen them, no doubt. They are outside Middlesboro and nearly every other community in the country. They are usually sizable things, fashioned out of corrugated iron or recycled Coca Cola sheet metal. "Get Right With God," they read, or "Prepare to Meet God." Usually they are straightforward commands, but in one case — "If You Go To Hell, It's Your Fault" — Mayes adds an editorial opinion.

Nobody, not even Mayes, knows how many of the religious billboards have been distributed, but their familiarity attests to their numbers. Mayes, a retired coal miner, says the posters presently stand in "at least 50 states and 82 foreign lands." And even though there's no total count as to units, Mayes has computed the energy and money expended: 60 per cent of his time and $75,000 "at a minimum."

Don't ask why. Mayes says that should be readily apparent. "I've got this cabinet in my workshop what's filled with all the nudity and pornography ever printed." Well, that alone is reason for Mayes' passion for propagandizing God. And when today's other troubles are added to the equation, "things like the Book of Revelations predicted a long time ago," Mayes feels he is more dedicated than peculiar. "Somebody's got to be a wakin' the people up."

There is of course some wonder whether the people appreciate being wakened in the Mayes manner. Hunters shoot the Mayes signs full of double-ought shot, kids at graduation disfigure them with class numerals, and farmers often seem less than pleased when a Get Right With God poster appears in the tractor path. On this latter point, Mayes admits, "I'm the most wanted man in America. The AAU has been after me for 45 years, the highway departments, too. The last time I heard from New York they wanted $43 for the cost of removing two signs. I suppose I could go to jail for a million years."

But they'll have to catch him first. And considering the painter's schedule that doesn't seem likely. To meet emergency needs, Mayes plans to spend this summer traveling and planting from Georgia to Maine. "And the next year I'll be going toward the Grand Canyon and Southwest; and after that I'll be taking in the Midwest to Yellowstone Park."

Besides the usual sign distribution, Mayes will continue the erection of 200 concrete crosses, each weighing 1,400 pounds. "I've got 85 distributed already. I plan to have four of them outside each capital by 19 and 90, if there is a 19 and 90."

Indeed, if there is a 1990 Mayes may be even more prolific and wandering than now. Not content with plugging God in Tulsa, not satisfied with the erection of "36 of the signs on the Black where Russia can get a whiff," Mayes has greater expectations.

"Well, there are nine planets," he explains, leafing through an old Life magazine layout of the heavens.

Silly? No way. As Mayes sees it, "Everybody in the Universe is under God, and maybe the people on Mars need a little religious prodding, too." Maybe. And maybe they have energy woes, inflation and painted ladies. "Can you see it?" Mayes smiles, "right in a crater, translated, "Get Right With God'."

God would be pleased. But as for the Martian Highway Department . . .

Health dept. brings end to unhealthy yard conditions

Over two months ago I went to the health department in Ontario to report the condition of my neighbor's yard.

The woman has 20 chickens running all over.

Two pipes coming from under her house let out water which attracts many flies and mosquitoes.

The cesspool in her yard smells so bad that I can't open my windows.

A few months ago I found 20 inches of water in the cellar under my house. This was from her house. I have no broken pipes.

Although I have talked to the people at the health department many times nothing has been done about these problems. — A.D., Ontario

About a month after we contacted the Environmental Health Services Department of San Bernardino County, you called to thank us.

You said all the problems originating from your neighbor's house and yard had been solved.

★ ★ ★

All this week I've been down at the San Bernardino County welfare office trying to get some kind of help to pay my rent and buy food.

I just need help until I can find a job. Right now nobody is hiring.

For some reason they won't help me. They tell me it is because I am able bodied. Sure I am able bodied but I can't find a job.

I asked the social worker if there is any law stating I can live on a street corner. She told me no. Just the same, that is where I will be in a few weeks.

She told me she could get me food stamps and Medi-Cal but how is that going to help me with no place to stay?

She asked if my mom could take me. My mom can't. She lives on Social Security and has to feed three kids, clothe them and pay rent.

What should I do, go get pregnant or live on the streets? — D.S., Montclair.

You told us you are 18.

While we were waiting for a reply from the Welfare Department, we gave you the names of agencies which try to find jobs for youth and other unemployed.

Paul Morsen, community relations coordinator of the Welfare Department, told us that among requirements for general relief eligibility are proof of disability at the time of application and being the lone resident of one's living quarters.

You met neither of these requirements as you were sharing living quarters with another young woman.

When we phoned to check on your circumstances after hearing from the Welfare Department, your roommate said you had found a factory job.

My wife, a Japanese national, filed her final papers for a permanent residence visa with the Immigration and Naturalization Service on July 29, 1974.

We wrote a letter of inquiry Nov. 11 because some response on this application was long overdue.

We have received no reply whatsoever. This is unusual since we are informed that the service usually replies within a matter of days to such inquiries. — M.K., Pomona

Our letter to the Immigration and Naturalization Service was returned with a small blue form attached stating that the reply was a notation on our letter.

The note itself was to the effect that the processing time, up to 17 months, required for your wife's application had not elasped. The application was being processed as rapidly as available manpower permitted.

This led us to the conclusion that cutting expenses is more important, even, than promptness.

Teen-ager pens a poignant plea to dad who is killing himself with alcohol

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a teenager—one of several kids. Our father is an alcoholic. I can't tell him how I feel, so I wrote it down. I hope you will print my thoughts. My father reads your column every day. It might help him and other fathers who are alcoholics. Thanks, Ann.

ALCOHOLISM

I've been watching him die since I was old enough to understand.

His death is slow and painful.

Not only painful for him, but for his wife and family.

I think dying slow is much worse than dying suddenly.

I don't understand why he does it.

Why would a person want to die before he has to?

I know it isn't because he doesn't love us.

We have our little disagreements, but doesn't everyone?

And I know for sure that he loves my mother.

Of course, they argue, but doesn't every married couple?

I don't hold it against him. He's sick.

We love him so very much!

It's killing us watching him die.

Please stop drinking, Dad. —Love, Your Family

Dear Family: Here it is.

And for those of you who wonder if that letter was written by your teenager, the answer is—"it could be."

If you want to give yourself and your family the best gift in the world, one that won't cost a dime, I suggest that you look in the phone book, call Alcoholics Anonymous and attend their next meeting.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is being married next month. I should preface my remarks by telling you that we are people of means and not in need of anything—especially do we not need to have friends and relatives help us out by buying "useful" gifts.

This morning a gift arrived from a very close friend. It was beautifully wrapped by one of the city's finest jewelry stores. Inside was a slip that said "Sender's Own." I didn't need to read the slip. I knew it was an old appliance that had been put in the broom closet for a few years. Honestly, I was so mortified I didn't know what to say. Of course we won't display that gift with the others. It would be a dirty trick to the woman who sent it—although it would serve her right.

When her son was married we sent a lovely silver tray. Should I let her know how I feel when next we meet? Or should I boil in silence and build an ulcer?—Plain Mad

Dear Mad: An old appliance isn't worth an ulcer. You vented a lot of anger by writing to me. Now forget it. Perhaps by the time this letter appears in the paper you will be able to see the humor in the situation and laugh it off. I hope so.

Confidential to Inferiority Complex?: Maybe, but my guess is that the guy is inferior. He's pulled some awfully shoddy stunts. Drop him.

Staple diet new control for obesity

The hostess had just served the dessert at a dinner party the other night when the doctor on my left said, "Have you heard about the new deterrent for obesity?"

I put my fork down. "Actually, I know of every diet ever released to the English speaking world up to about 15 minutes ago."

"This isn't a diet. This is from the Orient and it's done with staples."

"You staple the mouth shut. That's clever," I said picking up my fork again.

"No, you put the staple in your ear."

"I see. You staple the ear together so you can't hear them call you for dinner."

"No, no," he said hurriedly, "with a surgical staple gun you inject sutures at specific points inside the ear. Then everytime you feel hungry, you rub the staples with your fingers."

"You're kidding."

"No, they're also using staples in the ear to curb your desire for smoking."

"How does it work?"

"I don't know," he said, "maybe the staple infects your ear and takes your mind off eating and smoking."

I picked up my fork again, pausing in midair as he added, "Imagine. Today we're stapled. Tomorrow, we may be folded, bent, spindled and mutilated. This is a real breakthough."

"I'll wait until science comes up with a lettuce that tastes like French garlic bread."

"Can you imagine the potential of a treatment like that? One little staple in the ear and you'd never have a husband who fooled around anymore. He'd just rub the staple in his ear and the desire would go away."

"I get the same results by threatening him with custody of the kids. Besides, what if he got his staples mixed and rubbed his drinking staple when he meant to rub his lying-to-the-boss staple? He could end up in a lot of trouble."

"All I know," said the doctor, "is that something has to be done about obseity and soon. It is the major cause of heart disease which kills more people than traffic fatalities. When a woman is fat, she loses her husband, her job, her family and her confidence in herself. Then she turns to drink and eventually hits rock bottom and ends up in the gutter."

Unable to eat, I put down my fork.

"If you're not going to eat your dessert, can I have it?" he asked.

Hemorrhoids are just dilated veins

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has just had his second hemorrhoidectomy in 20 years. We know other people who are hemorrhoid sufferers and are wondering the following: What aré hemorrhoids? What causes them? Why do they sometimes recur after surgical removal and what can be done to prevent them?

I'm sure if you answer these questions you will enlighten many of us as hemorrhoids are quite a problem for so many people.

DEAR READER — Hemorrhoids are nothing more than dilated veins around the rectum. They are just like varicose veins of the legs except for their location.

There are generally two types of hemorrhoids, the external type, outside the sphincter, and the internal type inside the sphincter. The outside ones cause pain, itching and discomfort.

The worst problem comes when a small clot forms in the dilated vein. A clot is called a thrombus so these are called thrombosed hemorroids or thrombosed piles. Sometimes these need to be lanced and drained, but usually they go away on their own after causing the discomfort. The small scarred tag of tissue left behind may be a persistent source of itching.

Trying to answer what causes hemorrhoids is a bit like answering what causes varicose veins. In general anything that increases the pressure inside the thin-walled veins may cause them to dilate excessively and become sac-like structures. Being below the heart is one cause of increased pressure. It is no accident that dilated veins are in the legs, around the rectum and, in men, within the scrotum (varicoele). You don't see people with dilated veins in the head because the head is above the heart, and there is little or no pressure inside the thin veins in the head region. You don't see hemorrhoids in animals where the rectum is above the heart, as in most four-footed grazing animals. Part of the problem, then, goes back to our being up-right animals.

Pressure around the rectum distending the veins can also be caused by childbirth, and many women will have hemorrhoid problems after pregnancy. Abdominal tumors and probably even being overweight can contribute to the pressure problems.

Constipation and poor bowel habits are a major factor in causing hemorrhoids. The pressure during forceful bowl movements really balloons out the elastic veins. This is a tip then on what you can do to avoid them. Maintain good bowl habits, avoiding laxatives and stool straining. For more information on this aspect of hemorrhoids, write to me in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019 and ask for the booklet on hemorrhoids. Send 50 cents to cover costs.

Never overlook the possibility that pressure from a cancer of the rectum above the hemorrhoids may cause them to appear. Everyone who develops hemorrhoids or who has rectal bleeding must have an examination. If it is more serious than just hemorrhoids, early diagnosis and treatment can be lifesaving.

ACES

Q. "How come we refer to the best of the wartime fighter pilots as 'aces'?"

A. That goes back to 1915. A French pilot named Roland Garros knocked five German planes out of the sky in 15 days. That supreme accolade, the Legion of Honor, was his immediately. And French writers dubbed him, "l'as," which is what the French call the highest car in a suit. That meant "ace" to the American correspondents, so such is what they called said hero in their dispatches.

HEADBANGERS

Far more baby boys than baby girls indulge in that intriguing pastime of banging their heads against walls. In fact, about three and a half times as many boys as girls do it, studies show. Usually, they start just under 8 months of age, and hang in there, banging away, until they're about 3½ years old. Indications are that only about seven per cent of all babies can be described as such headbangers. And they generally are said to be easy-going trouble-free youngsters who hardly ever cry.

Black Culture Week on at Valinda park

A Black Culture Week observance is underway at Rimgrove Park in Valinda in memory of Martin Luther King Jr. Its theme is "Love is the Way."

Its purpose, according to spokeswoman Millie Shishido, is to involve the whole community and its neighbors in a series of activities which will continue through Sunday in the park at 747 N. Rimgrove Drive.

Tonight at 7 there will be a live depiction of black history performed by local youth, directed by Mrs. Irma Perkins. A film titled "John Outerbridge, Black Artist" will be shown.

Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. a program will include a lecture and film on sickle cell anemia and hypertension, and a poster contest on the theme sponsored by Lou Millers.

Students from Workman High School will perform musical and dramatic numbers Friday at 7 p.m.

Saturday at 10 a.m. there will be a sports day with a special appearance by Willie Crawford of the Los Angeles Dodgers to sign autographs for children.

At 11:30 a.m. the Workman High School varsity basketball team, coached by Richard Shelton, will put on a basketball clinic.

At 1 p.m. there will be an intersquad game with Grandview school, coached by Earl Blackmon.

Sunday at 1 p.m. there will be a free clinic for sickle cell and hypertension testing.

Actor Roger Jacobs, from television's "Room 222", will be master of ceremonies for the Sunday program to include music and a fashion show. Soul food will be sold.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the park at 213 336-0416.

Police Dept. expansion job will begin

Penco Builders of San Bernardino will begin construction work expanding Montclair's Police Department within two weeks, and a completion date of early May is predicted.

The City Council approved a contract of $162,759 to Penco during its Monday night meeting. In October 1974, the council gave the nod on expanding the present facility to the east and providing an additional 7,000 feet to the department.

In another matter, the council approved initiation of a three-step program of community beautification and maintenance following a report by Mike Loehr, director of community development.

Councilmen instructed the staff to proceed with the establishment of a voluntary assistance program that would provide assistance to financially needy families in homes not meeting city building codes; develop a public awareness program in order to protect property value and provide healthy, residential living; and draft a sample ordinance that would allow the Community Development Department to enter vacant lands and structures for the purpose of maintenance.

The council posponed action on the development of a fee schedule and a mandatory study for certificates of occupancy.

New round of recreation classes due

The Upland Recreation Department will begin new winter classes on Thursday and Friday.

The Recreation Department and Chaffey College Community Education are cosponsoring a new class for parents and those who work with the developmentally disadvantaged. The class starts Thursday morning in the old library, 123 E. D St., with Marion Flowers, a member of the improvement teaching team at Pacific State Hospital, as instructor.

Marie Wilkerson will teach "Patchwork and Quilting" and "Creative Stitchery" for the next 10 weeks. Beginning at 1 p.m. Thursday, "Creative Stitchery" will be taught at the Magnolia Recreation Center in Upland.

"Patchwork and Quilting" will be instructed from 9 a.m. to noon on Fridays for 10 weeks in the lounge of the Magnolia Center. Both classes are cosponsored by Chaffey College Community Education and are free.

Loretta Dale, a former student of the American School of Ballet and television dancer, will teach a combination ballet, tap and acrobatics class for youngsters from 4 to 12 on Fridays, beginning at 2 p.m. Classes, divided by age groups, will be held at the Upland Recreation Hall, 404 N. Second Ave.

The City of Upland Engineering Department has moved to the new City Hall and made available to the recreation department its building at 433 N. Second Ave. The building is being remodeled and classes will be held there during the winter.

Representing the city's Recreation Department gymnastics team, Kate Mann placed fifth on vaulting in the semifinal gymnastics competition. This qualifies her for the district finals on Jan. 19.

City of East Los Angeles still defeated

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There is still no city of East Los Angeles.

The office of the County Registrar-Recorder announced Thursday that a recount did not change the results of the Nov. 5 election, in which a ballot proposal failed by a substantial margin to win approval.

The measure would have incorporated the City of East Los Angeles, on what is now county territory. Most of the residents of the area are Mexican-Americans.

Scientists no help to public on decisions for marijuana

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists doing research on marijuana are just as confused and frustrated about the drug as the people who set marijuana laws, according to a group of scientists.

In fact, the scientists said after a day-long conference they wished the policy-makers would stop relying so heavily on scientific knowledge in making public decisions on marijuana.

"I don't think scientists can tell the public that there is going to be any kind of major damage to their physical health on the basis of our current knowledge," said Dr. Daniel X. Freedman of the University of Chicago, one of four participants in a news conference summarizing the closed scientific meeting on marijuana research.

"The question the public is going to have to decide is whether or not they want to spend the money they spend on criminalizing marijuana, and whether or not they want to regulate access to its use. If they do, all we can say is we don't yet have some of the studies we could have to help guide them as to what would happen if they had a lot of marijuana accessible."

Dr. Thomas E. Bryant, whose nongovernment Drug Abuse Council convened the scientific meeting, said it was frustrating because the 19 participants were unable to come up with any "clear cut, black or white answers" about recently publicized deleterious effects of smoking pot.

One closed-door discussion between two scientists at the meeting concerned the effects of marijuana on testosterone, a male sex hormone, said one participant. Each had reached different conclusions, but they finally agreed to disagree.

The day-long discussion concerned marijuana's effects on genetics, immunology, hormones, central nervous system and psychiatric disturbances.

The scientists avoided discussing the sometime heated social and political issues of whether to change the marijuana laws, said Dr. Peter G. Bourne, a consultant to the foundation-financed council.

"There has been a tendency in the past to relate the decision making process as far as public policy in marijuana is concerned with the medical aspects," Bourne told newsmen.

"We didn't address that relationship at all and we in fact feel that that is perhaps an erroneous connection," Bourne said.

Consumer costs rise 21.5% in Tokyo for year

TOKYO (UPI) — Consumer prices in Tokyo rose 21.5 per cent in one year, the second highest increase since the end of World War II, the prime minister's office announced.

The statement said the Consumer Price Index for Tokyo stood at 162.8 in December as against the 1970 base figure of 100.

The monthly rise in December was 0.4 per cent or the second smallest since May when a 0.1 per cent increase was recorded, indicating inflation has begun to subside, the announcement said.

Walk-in surgery gaining acceptance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walk-in surgery either in the doctor's office or the hospital is spreading rapidly and is helping to curb the growth in the cost of medical care, Perspective, the quarterly published by Blue Cross of Southwest Ohio, reports.

Walk-in or in-and-out-the-same-day surgery always has been practiced for minor operations in doctors' offices and to some extent in the emergency wards of hospitals. But Perspective said Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids, Mich., in 1961 was the first hospital to substitute one-day in and out surgery in a number of conditions that traditionally had required patients to remain bedridden in the hospital for days.

It took five years for the practice to win any substantial acceptance by other hospitals. Now, several hundred hospitals are providing such service.

Originally, Blue Cross-Blue Shield plans did not pay for such operations in hospitals although they did pay for them if performed in the surgeon's office. Now, Perspective said at least 45 Blue Cross associations across the country pay for such in and out operations whether they are performed in the hospital or the surgeon's office.

Verticare, the Blue Cross-Blue Shield group in Southwest Ohio, estimated it has saved $250,000 in two years by means of walk-in addition to an estimated 4,112 days of hospital care for 1,273 patients.

Geologists predicted earthquake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a major step toward an earthquake forecast system, government geologists informally predicted a moderate-sized California quake on the eve of a Thanksgiving Day tremor, it was announced Tuesday.

Dr. Vincent E. McKelvey, director of the U.S. Geological Survey, said the event adds "greatly to our confidence and optimism about reaching the long-sought goal of earthquake prediction..."

The California earthquake occurred between the San Andreas and Calaveras faults in a ranching area about 10 miles north of Hollister. It had a magnitude of 5.2 on the Richter scale and caused little damage.

This area represents one of the most seismically active regions of the big San Andreas fault system and is the site of an extensive array of ground measuring instruments set up by survey scientists as part of their earthquake research program.

Four weeks before the Thanksgiving quake, the instruments detected tilting of the Earth's surface at two locations near the center of the quake. Two weeks earlier, instruments showed there had been a major change in the magnetic field in the area.

At the same time, other devices detected a significant change in the time it takes for seismic waves to travel through the area.

These three phenomena are all considered clues to an imminent quake.

Geologists monitoring the instruments met Nov. 27, the day before Thanksgiving, at the National Center for Earthquake Research at Menlo Park, Calif., and presented an informal report on their findings.

"They said that the data they had indicated that it was likely an earthquake would take place within the next few days," said Dr. Joseph Ziony, a deputy in the Office of Earthquake Study. The tremor occurred the next day.

"This is the first time that such a variety of precursory phenomena have been observed for a single earthquake in the United States," McKelvey said in a statement.

Ziony said in an interview that the next step is to set up more instruments in a different fault zone to prove their reliability in detecting signs of an upcoming quake. He said the next experimental site might be on the San Jacinto fault in southern California.

Dairies to ask price support hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dairymen who got a compromise 10 per cent increase in price supports from the administration last week will seek further hikes soon, a milk producer spokesman says.

Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation, said in an interview that farmers will push legislation built around two basic points, including a cost escalator designed to provide automatic quarterly raises in milk prices if farm costs continue to rise.

Last Friday, after vetoing a bill which would have boosted supports to 85 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity standard and required quarterly price adjustments, President Ford approved a compromise.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz administratively increased the government floor price for manufacturing grade milk to $7.24 a hundredweight, an increase of 67 cents which will mean higher consumer prices for butter and cheese and —in a few months —for milk.

The $7.24 rate brought supports up to the equivalent of 80 per cent of the December parity price for milk. But Butz skimmed part of the cream off the compromise by directing that the new rate remain fixed for 15 months. It will be effective for the rest of the 1974-75 marketing year which ends March 31 and also for the entire 1975-76 year which begins April 1.

When the initial $6.57 a hundredweight government support for milk in the 1974-75 season was set last April 1, it was equal to 80 per cent of April parity. By last week, however, rising farm costs had raised the parity standard so much that the $6.57 rate represented less than 73 per cent of December, 1974, parity.

Healy and other dairy spokesmen hailed Ford's compromise as a victory which will help head off future sharp declines in milk production. But two problems remain, Healy said.

One is the fact that inflation, by pushing up farm costs, is continuing to boost the parity price of milk. This means the $7.24 rate which now equals 80 per cent of parity may equal only about 77 per cent of the theoretically "fair" parity standard on April 1 and even less next summer and fall if cost inflation continues.

The second is the fact that while a current temporary law requires dairy supports to equal 80 per cent or more of parity as of April 1 each year, a permanent law with a 75 per cent of parity floor will be back in operation this year unless Congress intervenes. This means that since the $7.24 support is likely to slightly exceed 75 per cent of the April 1, 1975 parity, it could legally be left unchanged until March 31, 1976, no matter what happens to farm costs.

Healy said dairy farmers will ask Congress for a bill under which the support floor would be set at 85 or 80 per cent of parity. Also, he said, the bill would include a quarterly adjustment to bring the dollars and cents support price up to the proposed 80-85 per cent of parity floor every three months.

The NMPF official indicated the milk plan will probably be pushed as part of an omnibus farm bill including proposed increases in support prices for grains to spur increased production this year. Healy said that by winning the compromise increase in supports from Ford last week, "I believe we have bought time to get us up to date (in support treatment) with the ... crop people."

Brown to give up limousines

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For economy sake, newly inaugurated Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will give up his fleet of three gubernatorial limousines and instead use a plain 1974 Plymouth sedan as his official automobile.

"This is an example of the spirit in which he's going to approach the governorship," an aide said Monday in explaining the change. "It's a little thriftier than driving around in a limousine."

The blue car was described by the Department of General Services as a "basic fleet intermediate sedan" with a small V8 engine and capable of traveling 15.5 miles on a gallon of gas when purchased last year.

The state owns three gubernatorial limousines, one based in Los Angeles and a Lincoln and a Cadillac based in Sacramento. A spokesman said no decision had been made on the fate of the limousines.

The Plymouth, equipped with a Highway Patrol radio set and mobile telephone, originally was assigned to the Department of General Services. Director Lawrence Robinson, who was assigned another similar car. A spokesman said the purchase price was about $3,000.

Consumer can't cry over onions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department advises: Buy onions "lavishly" this month and next.

A food marketing alert issued today says supplies are the biggest in history. An official says farm prices have plunged to half of last year's level and supermarkets are also cutting onion prices substantially below year-ago levels.

The report said "heavy supplies of medium-size yellow onions remain on the market as a result of the record 1974 crop which will fill nearly 25 million bags of 100 pounds each. This represents 18 per cent more than the 1970-73 average.

"The dilemna is that supplies may exceed what domestic markets can take, and prospects for onion exports this season are reduced," the report added.

Department marketing specialists helpfully offered that onions can be used in enough different ways to keep them on menus every day. As a main dish vegetable or a flavor ingredient, the report said the onion can be boiled, broiled, baked, creamed, steamed, fried, roasted, pickled, served in soups, or served in raw rings, slices or diced in salads.

Apartment fire claims one life

RIALTO (UPI) — A fire which broke out in the predawn hours in an old frame apartment building claimed the life of Charles N. Stechdaub, 18, Wednesday.

About a dozen other occupants of the building escaped after being awakened by one of the tenants and a passing motorist.

Cause of the fire was not known.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Right of free choice

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My brother is a very generous and wealthy man. Since he has no children of his own, he has offered to put my three boys through college. Two have accepted his offer but my third son, who is now in his first year, is rebelling. He is openly rude to my brother and refuses to accept the stipulations that accompany my brother's gift.

Neither my husband nor I approve of my son's actions but unless we want him to go without an education, we're forced to side with him. He has threatened to quit school rather than take the courses my brother has requested. It just so happened that the two older boys' choice of professions coincide with their uncle's choice for them. My youngest son, while an exceptionally bright student, has no desire to be an architect, but my brother is set on this or courses that would be closely related to this field. We can't afford to quarrel openly with my brother, nor do we want our son to become a dropout. We're extremely grateful to my brother and don't want him to know that his interest and love are not appreciated. — R.H.

Dear R.H.: There are many reasons for giving gifts. From your description, it appears to me that your brother's gifts to your sons were not given solely out of love. A true gift does not have strings or obligations attached. By trying to influence and determine your sons' choice of profession, your brother is interfering in their lives and buying a privilege to which he has no right. He is using a gift as an instrument of power to justify an infringment on someone else's inalienable rights. This is very different from a gift motiviated by love.

Your sons should have the right to select their own courses for, in a sense, what they study in college probably will determine their future. The choice of profession is one of the most important decisions in anyone's life. When you consider the amount of time devoted to work, it is of major importance that the person enjoys what he is doing during those many hours of each work day.

Your brother may be insecure despite his wealth. What is important now, however, is to protect your son and make sure that he knows that he can count on his parents for their moral support when he seeks to stand up for his rights. He should know that you love him more than power or money and that you will respect his choice. You might try to explain to your brother why you feel your son should have a free choice, and regardless of whether or not he understands, your son should come first.

Children learn to give by being given to. As children grow up they tend to give in the same manner they were given to during their childhood. The child who receives spontaneous affection and love will probably give in kind. If, on the other hand, he was given only material advantages, not love, as an adult he may use his money and power to try to buy love from others.

If a person has felt emotionally deprived and if he has had to fight for affection and position within his family, his later "giving" may really be disguised "getting." What he seems to do for others, he may actually be doing for himself by putting others under obligation to him. Money is power — it may be used as a means of extending a power base. The insecure person may feel that the only sure way he can gain love and respect from others is by buying approval.

Your brother, however, is not only trying to buy love, he is trying to dictate choice and this is really quite selfish. The truly generous person gives without attaching strings.

Your son is wise not to accept a gift that robs him of his right of free choice.

Your first thought: Win the heart lead with dummy's ace and try an immediate first-round diamond finesse. If it wins you are home, provided trumps don't break 5-0, but you can't handle five trumps in one hand with any line of play.

If it loses and trumps break 4-1 or a diamond is led right back and ruffed you're going down.

A second thought may be better. Ruff the heart and start trumps. If West holds four trumps, cash your ace and king of clubs and throw him in with his last trump. Anything he leads gives you your contract.

It turns out that East holds the four trumps, you still cash your ace and king of clubs. Now your best play is to also cash the ace and king of diamonds, then throw East in.

This will cost you your contract if East started with the unguarded queen of diamonds, but since East is long in spades he's likely to be short in diamonds.

So you cash your high diamonds, throw East in and make your contract, since East has to put you in dummy with a club or heart.

Skip loader mishap kills Temecula man

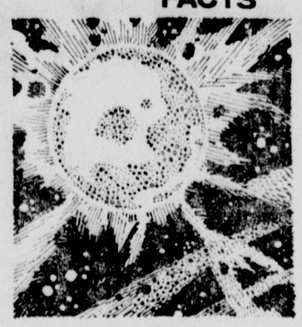
WORLD ALMANAC FACTS



The sun's apparently annual path among the stars is known as the ecliptic. The zone, 16 degrees wide eight on each side of the ecliptic, is known as the zodiac The World Almanac says says. Inside this zone are the apparent paths of the sun, moon, and major planets. Beginning at the point which marks the position of the sun at the vernal equinox and proceeding eastward or counterclockwise the zodiac is divided into 12 astrological signs of 30 degrees each.

Swimming unnatural, according to camels

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Can camels swim, or do they sink? — P.Y.

Dear P.Y.: Camels sink eventually, sooner in fact than many animals, since they are not actually good swimmers. As you could easily predict, they don't even like to try.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My mother-in-law has long suspected she was having heart trouble. This suspicion was confirmed by her doctor at her last examination. He found she has angina pectoris. She's concerned about her dog, now, who's also getting along in years. Would it be possible for her dog to also have angina pectoris? — D.Z.

Dear D.Z.: Though it is comparatively rare, angina pectoris can occur in the canine.

DEAR DR. MILLER: A puppy and a kitten will soon be joining our household. They'll be checked out on purchase for fitness and vaccinations and that sort of thing. Can you give me any simple tips on how to keep them healthy through a long life, at the same time how to keep those veterinary bills down? We don't have too many spare nickels these days. — P.L.

Dear P.L.: Prevention is the key to minimizing veterinary expenses. Keeping current on vaccination is much cheaper than treating and possibly losing sick animals from the common contagious, preventable diseases. Keeping the animals confined, leashed or otherwise restricted minimizes the possibilities for poisonings, fight wounds, and automobile accidents, all life-shortening and or expensive mishaps. At the same time, exercise, for dogs in particular, is important. This should be provided in a protected area and-or on the leash. Preventive medicine within the home consists of keeping needle and thead away from kittens, swallowable toys from either species, keeping garbage or potential garbage (also cleaners and poisons) inaccessible, teaching children common rules of safety for themselves and for their pets.

Feed good quality foods as recommended by your veterinarian. "Cheapie" foods are not cheap in the long run. Malnutrition is reflected in varying diseases afflicting diverse areas of the body, skin to bowels to bone. The so-called "dog food" among some of the cheapies costs less than the can and labeling which encloses it. Keeping pets parasite-free helps avoid gastrointestinal problems, some viral infections and skin disease. Know your animals well enough to know when they are well, so you will know soon enough when they are sick. Early veterinary attention for an ailing animal is more effective and less expensive.

Layoff poses big problem in insurance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Insurance is one of the toughest problems facing the upper or middle bracket executive —or any large policyholder —who is laid off during the recession.

Even the most prudent man may be pressed for cash to meet obligations if his search for a new job extends many months.

If insurance expenses must be cut, and a policyholder has followed good advice in his life insurance program, he has several alternatives that will preserve what he has invested in his policies, although he may have to sacrifice some of his family's protection in order to exercise these options.

The big insurance premium poses a real problem, however, if it's for a term policy, often bought because it provides more coverage for the money.

"It's just too bad if the only insurance is term coverage," said Raymond L. Parri of Continental Assurance Co., Chicago. "The premium must be paid or the insurance protection lost."

Term policies provide only protection. They have no cash surrender, loan or conversion value.

Whole life or straight life insurance has cash values. If a whole life policy is "participating," that is if it has accumulated dividends, these may be enough to pay the premiums until the insured finds another job and thus preserve the full amount of protection.

If the dividends don't amount to that much, Parri said, the policyholder still has these options:

—He can convert the policy to paid up insurance. That reduces the amount of protection substantially but he doesn't have to pay premiums any longer or worry that his family would get nothing if he died. A $50,000 policy might be converted to, say, $18,750 in paid up insurance.

—He can convert the $50,000 whole life policy to $50,000 in extended term insurance. He would pay no more premiums and would enjoy the $50,000 in protection for perhaps 17 more years. But at the end of the time, the policy would lapse and unless he had been able to buy other insurance meanwhile, he would be left with nothing.

He can borrow on the insurance or surrender it for cash. If he has had the $50,000 policy 10 years, its cash surrender value is about $9,000. An unemployed policyholder may be in a situation in which cash is much more important to him and his family than protection. But there's a big gamble involved. Even if the cash tides him over and he finds another good job, he will be able to buy new life insurance only at a much higher premium rate —if he can pass the physical examination.

—He can borrow about 94 per cent of the cash surrender value from the insurance company at 6 to 7 per cent — around $8,400 if he's had the policy 10 years. He then retains his $50,000 protection —but he must keep on paying the $1,000 a year premium plus the interest on the $8,400.

On the whole, Parri thinks borrowing or taking paid-up insurance are the two best solutions for the policyholder who can not afford to pay his premiums.

Deaths related to job dropping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of deaths related to on-the-job injuries dropped 7 per cent in 1973, according to the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The OSHA said job-related fatalities fell to 5,100 in 1973 — down from 5,500 the previous year. The job safety office also reported a decline in job-related illnesses from 210,000 in 1972 to 195,000 in 1973.

KUDOS FOR CLOWN — Aaron Ging, left, publisher of Showtime, a show business publication, presents the magazine's Entertainer of the Year award to comedian Red Skelton, now appearing at Sparks Nugget Casino in Reno, Nev. Ging said Skelton "epitomizes what entertainment really means." Skelton has been performing more than 50 years.

'The Odd Couple'

Gallery presents Simon comedy

By VONNE ROBERTSON

Blame it on the cold weather, or the fact that it opened too soon after New Year's Eve, but the Gallery Theater's presentation of "The Odd Couple," Friday evening was not up to the usual standards of the Ontario community theater.

Alternately racing and sluggish, the production of Neil Simon's hit comedy was highlighted by stepped-on lines and missed cues.

Skilled actor Mark Shipley played Oscar, a slob in whose apartment the gang's weekly poker game is held. The messy apartment was almost overdone, but passable and the first act does have its redeeming features—some good, timely laughs.

The poker gang was played by Shaun Fesler as Speed, George Walter as Murry, Jack Bradshaw as Roy, and John Gallo as Vinnie.

Duane Thomas portrays Felix, an about-to-be-divorced hypochondriac, who moves in with Oscar. He seems somehwat ill at ease in the role of a neatness bug, but handles it reasonably well.

The best part of the production begins with the entrance of two zany English sisters acted by Donna Sweeney as Cecily and Lune Laidlaw as Gwendelyn. With well rehearsed accents and gestures, the young women provided the brightness much needed in the play.

A hanging lamp obliterated the action during scenes when Felix is fumbling with a giant macrame hanging at back stage, but this is a minor flaw which can be eliminated.

The play itself is one of the best comedies in recent years and has been updated in this production. In spite of a slow beginning, the cast has great potential and future evenings should be worth attending. The play will be presented on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 at the theater, 126 E. C St., Ontario. Reservations may be made by calling 982-5357.

Pierce to present piano greats of past

Rare piano rolls of music by famous pianists will be heard at Ralph Pierce Music, 822 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, at 3 p.m. Sunday and Jan. 19.

Pianists featured include: Sergi Rachmaninoff, Artur Schnabel, Leopold Godowsky, Olga Steeb, Fritz Kreisler, Josef Lhevinne and several others.

The concerts are made possible through the recent purchase of an Ampico reproducing grand piano and a cabinet of rare piano rolls. Unlike the ordinary player piano, this instrument interprets the music in the manner of the artists who made the recorded rolls with their exact pedaling techniques and dynamic changes.

The piano on which the concert will be performed was built about 1927 and has been restored to its original performance capability. The piano rolls were made between 1916 and 1925.

The first of these "reproducing pianos" were made at the end of the 19th Century and several different mechanisims were made and patented by various firms. The Ampico, the foremost of these companies, made units which were installed in several makes of pianos. The one used in this concert is a Knabe.

Metropolitan schedules auditions

The Metropolitan Opera auditions of the San Bernardino-Riverside Counties District will be held at Pacific High School, San Bernardino, Feb. 23. The auditions are also open to all singers in the Pomona area.

District winners will receive awards and will go on to compete in the regional auditions at USC in March. Regional awards total more than $5,000. The Western Region is made up of 10 districts in California, Arizona and Nevada.

Last winter more than 1,000 young singers were auditioned throughout the nation.

Information and brochures on the district auditions can be obtained from Gwendolyn Roberts, 1898 Genevieve St., San Bernardino 92405.

First model boat to cross channel

DOVER, England (UPI) — George Mackeson and Dave Whitehead spent New Year's day guiding the first model boat ever to cross the English channel under its own steam.

Their four-foot radio-controlled model "Fairy Huntsman" rolled over twice during the three-hour, 10-minute voyage from Dover to Calis, France, but righted herself each time, the 35-year-old model builders said.

Former casino owners file to drop charges

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Two former owners of the Circus Circus hotel-casino on the Las Vegas "strip" have filed motions in federal court seeking dismissal of conspiracy and bribery charges.

Jay Sarno and Stanley Mallin were charged with trying to bribe Internal Revenue Service agents with $64,000 to stop criminal and civil investigations into personal and corporate income tax returns.

Las Vegas businessman Leo Crutchfield also was named in the same indiotment, which was returned by a federal grand jury on March 7, 1974.

Attorney Oscar Goodman filed the motions Monday on behalf of all three defendants.

The motions seek dismissal on grounds that attorneys Richard Crane and James Duff, attached to the Los Angeles Federal Organized Crime Strike Force, were not appointed or specifically directed by the attorney general to prosecute the case in Nevada.

The defendants said in the motion that if Crane and Duff presented the case to the federal grand jury without authorization that the indictment must be dismissed.

Ex-deputy D.A. gets jail for pot smuggling

FRESNO (UPI) — Peter Capriola, former Fresno County deputy district attorney, was sentenced to two concurrent six-year prison terms in federal court here Monday on a marijuana smuggling conviction.

U. S. Dist. Judge M. D. Crocker handed down the sentences for Capriola and sentenced a co-defendant to a three-year term.

Capriola and Ronald Freeze were convicted last October by a federal court jury in connection with a large scale marijuana smuggling operation which was broken up by federal agents earlier in the year.

Capriola was convicted of conspiracy to import marijuana into the United States and unlawful attempt to import marijuana. Freeze was convicted on the conspiracy charge.

Both men remained free on bail after their sentencing, pending appeal of their convictions.

Cafe prices are frozen

PARIS (UPI) — The finance Ministry has announced a decision to freeze skyrocketing restaurant and cafe prices in Paris.

Ministry figures showed that during the 12 months ending last September, menu prices jumped 16.3 per cent and were still climbing.

Finance ministry officials said the freeze will go into effect from Jan. 1 to March 31 and hold the establishments to the prices they were found to be charging during the period Dec. 13-19.

Seal drive is running $50,000 behind 1974

Now in its follow-up stage; the Christmas Seal campaign is at the $838,000 figure, about $50,000 less than at the same time last year.

Christmas Seals have provided $154,798 in medical research and education grants during the past six months, according to Peter D. McDermott, president of the Lung Association of Los Angeles County, who added that contributions may still be made to help the association maintain its TB testing, emphysema clubs, free breathing machines and support health education and medical research.

Now in its 16th year, the California Research and Medical Education Fund aids young research investigators and promotes professional education in medical centers and universities in the state.

The grants are always in the field of lung disease and include everything from the common cold and flu to emphysema, asthma and valley fever. Research is focused on orgiginal investigation dealing with the cause and treatment of lung disease.

Super Bowl will be won in trenches

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton says Super Bowl IX "will be won in the trenches."

If that be the case, then the Pittsburgh Steelers hoped today to go one up on the Minnesota Vikings as both teams continued their preparations for Sunday's game.

The Steelers were looking to regain the services of defensive end Dwight White, hospitalized since Sunday night with a viral infection, while the Vikings planned to do without offensive tackle Charles Goodrum who would have played opposite White.

Goodrum pulled a leg muscle Tuesday during a workout held in a downpour and was listed as doubtful for Sunday's game. He will be replaced by 15-year veteran Grady Alderman who has been with the Vikings since their inception in 1961.

There was no change reported in White's condition and a spokesman for the Steelers said there was "no cause for concern" as long as the 6-foot-4, 255 pounder was released from the hospital in time for today's workout.

"He'll be ready by game time," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll. "Dwight is just a little bit under the weather."

Should White be more ill than reported, he would be replaced in the Steelers' front four by Steve Furness, a three-year veteran from Rhode Island.

"Realistically, Dwight is going to play this game," Furness said when questioned about the possibility of him drawing a starting assignment Sunday. "There's no way they can keep him away. He'll get rested up and come out strong."

Tarkenton, who came out on the losing end in last year's Super Bowl when the Miami Dolphins soundly whipped the Vikings 24-7, predicted this year's encounter would be enjoyed "by the pure football fan."

"I agree the first eight Super Bowl games weren't very good games from the fans' standpoint," Tarkenton said. "But this one will be different. It will be won in the trenches-by the guys on the offensive and defensive lines. Both teams have excellent defenses that don't give up cheap touchdowns."

Before giving his analysis of the game, a visibly annoyed Tarkenton had a few choice words for Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler and Miami receiver Paul Warfield who have been quoted as saying the best teams are not in this year's Super Bowl.

"I think the best two teams are in the Super Bowl this year just as they are every year," Tarkenton said. "I am sick and tired of hearing what Paul Warfield and Ken Stabler have to say about the best teams not reaching the Super Bowl.

"Obviously they never read the rules before they started playing the game. Evidently, nobody told Stabler that it takes three extra wins to win the Super Bowl—not one. Especially, not the first one.

"I didn't hear Stabler or Warfield saying their teams were so much better before they played the teams they lost to. Pittsburgh has done everything a team has to do to get here. So have we. The loser Sunday will need no alibis. Whoever wins Sunday is the best, not teams previously eliminated."

In addition to last year's loss to Miami, the Vikings also dropped a 23-7 decision to Kansas City in Super Bowl IV and are the only team to have lost two world championship contests. However, Minnesota coach Bud Grant maintained the two defeats aren't on the minds of his players as some people might think.

"You have to learn to live with winning and losing, otherwise it's hard to live with this profession," Grant said. "You better find another challenge. We've got $16,000 in the bank and now we're going for $25,000."

When asked to review last year's Super Bowl loss to Miami, Grant quipped, "you stick a rag in your mouth, lie behind a log and wait for another chance."

Minnesota gets that chance Sunday.

Super Bowl pits experience vs. youth

The odds makers have come up with a surprise this time.

Instead of going with the veteran team, Minnesota, that has been through the pressure cooker of Super Bowl play twice before, the sharpies are tabbing the young Pittsburgh Steelers to win Super Bowl IX Sunday.

Frankly, this writer hopes they're right. But if it does turn out that way, it will be the first time a team making its initial appearance in the SB will have beaten a team that has been in it before.

But then, the favorite has won only four of eight times to date. You'd think the boys in the smoke-filled rooms would have learned something from past experience.

Of course, the Vikings are the only two-time losers ever to appear in the post-season classic. Kansas City, Baltimore, Dallas and Miami each won the second time around.

Maybe that and the way the Vikes won their game with the Rams has caused the sharpies to give them the thumbs down sign.

From here it stacks up as a battle between the powerful, young Pittsburgh defense against the strong, veteran Minnesota offense on one hand and the spirited young Steeler offense against the experienced, methodical Viking defense on the other.

The consistent Vikings were the NFC's second best team in both scoring points and allowing the fewest to be scored against them. The Purple Gang scored 310 points in regular season play and allowed only 195 points to be scored against them. They scored the most touchdowns (12) and had the fewest (21) scored against them.

The Steelers scored only five points less, 305, and allowed six fewer (189). They scored five fewer touchdowns (35) and had one more (22) scored against them.

Mean Joe Greene and company led the AFC by permitting only 219.6 yards per game, 104.7 passing and 114.9 on the ground.

Minnesota gave up an average of 279.1 yards per contest. The Vikings were a hair better against the rush allowing just 114.6 yards per game. But their aerial defense was not as strong giving up an average of 164.4 or nearly 60 yards more per game.

Strength against strength

However, if regular season performances mean anything this will be a matchup of strength against strength. By coincidence, Pittsburgh had the most powerful ground game in the AFC while it was no better than 11th in passing.

With Franco Harris pounding out 1,006 yards, the Steelers averaged 172.6 yards a game (the Rams averaged 151.1 in case you're interested). But Terry Bradshaw, Joe Gilliam and Terry Henratty averaged just 139.9 yards per game passing.

Minnesota, with Fran Tarkenton at the controls and Chuck Foreman running and catching passes, averaged 196.8 yards a game passing and 132.6 rushing.

Again the matchup of strengths, Tarkenton passing against the iron clad Pittsburgh defense, should provide an interesting battle.

The quarterbacks themselves are the perfect examples of the contrast between experience and youthful power.

Tarkenton (6-1, 190) at 34 is the canny veteran. No longer the scrambler, he stayed in the pocket to complete 56.7 percent of his passes (199 of 351) for 2,598 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Terry Bradshaw is 26. At 6-4, 220 pounds, he may be the most nimble big man ever to stand behind center in the NFL. He looked it as he drove the Oakland Raider defenders out of their minds as he scrambled away from their pass rush.

But Bradshaw completed only 45.3 percent of his passes this year (67 of 148) for 785 yards and just seven touchdowns.

The Steelers also have Lynn Swann, the dandy from USC. Swann appears to be on his way to greatness. But the question is, can he break one against the veteran Vikings?

Tune in Sunday (channel 4 noon) and find out. The Progress-Bulletin will publish a special Super Bowl section Sunday to give you more information and sidelights.

PARDON ME!

Garey High's Gary Carpenter (42) reaches over Damien's Mike Wetenkamp (24) to get a rebound during Tuesday afternoon's San Antonio League game. Garey won, 76-71.

1-platoon plan killed by coaches

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An economy move to return to one-platoon football was all but officially pronounced dead and a gesture toward women's rights was in trouble today as delegates to the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention headed into their showdown voting session.

The wind-up of the three-day session still had on the burner other controversial issues stemming from the economic squeeze, the prospect of federal intervention and demands for a stiffer stand on recruiting violations as proposed in a series of floor resolutions and amendments.

But the death blow to suggestions that the existing free substitution rule in college football be abandoned was apparently dealt by the American Football Coaches Association which is holding a separate convention.

The vote against the one-platoon idea, 246-40, and a proposal submitted to the parent NCAA for a vote today had no prospect of success.

The coaches also votd against abolishing fair catches in college football and adoption of the pro rule for kickoffs to be made from the 35-yard line. Only relatively minor rules changes were advocated by the AFCA Rules Committee headed by Jack Curtice, retired athletic director at California State University at Santa Barbara. They are subject to approval by the NCAA at a joint rules committee meeting in Dallas next week.

The women's rights issue was in a state of pronounced confusion after NCAA officials announced earlier in the week they were suggesting pilot programs for women's team championships in 12 events over the next three years. The Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women promptly protested that the NCAA was trying to usurp the field because of new federal legislation requiring equal treatment of men and women athletes on college campuses.

The ruling hierarchy of the NCAA worked late Tuesday drawing up a generalized resolution favoring women's rights, trying to come up with language that would not rock the boat legally or accelerate the battle of the sexes. There was a strong bloc of delegate sentiment against anything but the mildest of resolutions.

Another major issue at the NCAA convention was a proposal that would impose penalties against individual coaches found guilty of recruiting or other abuses which is backed by a surprisingly strong group of university and college president.

Garey ranked No. 1

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

Garey High's basketball team has been acclaimed the No. 1 ranked team in CIF 3-A competition.

But the Vikings had a tough time proving it to Damien High in the San Antonio League opener Tuesday afternoon.

Garey (12-1 for the season) played uninspired ball and constantly found itself in foul trouble before finally slipping away with a 76-71 victory over the visiting Spartans.

The Vikings, who found themselves on top of this year's first CIF rankings Tuesday, didn't really clinch the win until reserve guard-forward Sonny Baldez connected on four free throws and a field goal with three and a half minutes left in the game.

At that point, Garey was ahead by a 71-59 margian and managed to hold off a late Damien surge.

"We played a good game," stated Damien head coach Bill Roberts, "but when you play Garey it's like trying to hold up a wall over a dam. You know it's got to bust open some time."

The dam didn't exactly bust open Tuesday but rather did its damage by way of a "Slow leak."

Damien outshot the host Viking 43 per cent to 35 per cent in the first half and also enjoyed a 33-31 advantage on the scoreboard.

But then Garey center Dave Larry got his team going in the opening minute of the second half with a field goal; a stolen pass and a blocked shot. Quickly, the Vikings were on top, 41-35.

Damien forward Mike Wetenkamp did all he could to keep his Spartan teammates from bowing out any sooner than they did.

The 6-foot-3 junior hit eight of ten field goal attempts in the second popping 12 of his 20 points in the final eight minutes.

But the Spartans needed more than a one-man show.

Esquibel canned three shots; collected four assists and grabbed four rebounds in the stanza while Jetton scored four points and added three assists.

Montclair had cut the deficit to 47-32 only to watch Ganesha's reserves race to a 23-13 fourth quarter advantage led by the performance of George Terry; who tossed in 10 markers while connecting on five-of-six attempts.

"George (Terry) has played well for us," said Fulkerson. "He has a knack of coming off the bench and getting some quick points."

Kent Stalwick voted to CIF football team

Kent Stalwick, the talented all-around athlete from Claremont High, has been selected for the second time to the All-CIF 3-A roster it was announced today by the Citizen Savings Athletic Foundation.

Stalwick a second-team pick last year as a junior, was placed on the first team this time around as defensive back. The 6-2, 185 pound senior was also on the defense last year.

Stalwick was one of four valley players named to the All-CIF teams, but the Claremont star was the only-first teamer of the quartet.

Ganesha's offensive tackle Tim Triester and defensive lineman Russ Kingston, along with Pomona defensive back Jim Middleton, were second-teamers.

Stalwick, who played both offense and defense for the Wolfpack this past season, had over 1500 yards in total offense as the Wolves' quarterback. He was voted the Most Valuable Offensive Player in the San Antonio League.

Kingston, a 5-11, 206 pound senior, was the SAL's Defensive Player of the Year. The Ganesha defensive ace had 61 tackles during league play, while recovering five fumbles and sacking the opposing quarterback six times.

Triester, a 6-2, 230 pound senior, was the top offensive lineman for the Giants this year.

Middleton, only a junior who stands at 5-10, 165 pounds, was all over the field for Pomona's San Antonio League championship team.

In just league play alone, Middleton had 80 unassisted tackles, 20 assists, one interception, three fumble recoveries, one caused fumble and several game-saving tackles.

Myron White, tailback on a Santa Ana Valley High team that won the 3-A division playoffs averaging 29 points per game, has been named the 3-A division Player of the Year by the Foundation's Board of Football.

Ganesha rolls past Montclair

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Correspondent

"We live by the gun; and die by the gun," says coach Gary Fulkerson, of his small but very quick 1974-75 Ganesha High basketball team. "If we shoot 40 per cent or better against any team that matches up with us physically, or play a bigger but slower team; we'll usually win."

The Giants lived by the gun Tuesday afternoon in the Ganesha gym as Fulkerson's crew ran over, around, and through Montclair High to post an easy 70-45 rout of the Cavaliers in the 1975 San Antonio League opener for both teams.

The defending SAL champs, and 8th ranked in this week's CIF 3-A basketball poll, shot under 40 per cent (39.5) while improving their overall record to 12-3 but the Cavs shot just 36 per cent (18-36).

The "little" Giants began Tuesday's laugher in usual manner by racing to an 18-10 first quarter lead; thanks to the outside shooting of guard Howard Love, the quarterbacking of Ralph Dudley and eight Cavalier turnovers.

Love hit four-of-eight from the field in that stanza while Dudley scored two points, collected four assists, and came up with three steals.

Montclair (6-6) hit 50 per cent of its shots (four of eight) but was unable to get the ball down court with any consistency.

The Giants continued its fast break offense and full court pressure defense to outscore the visitors 16-6 in the second period.

The Cavs looked listless in the first half; undoubtedly missing their most consistent ball player—forward Mike Medeiros (14.9) average—who is convalescing at home after an appendectomy, getting off just 18 shot attempts (making six) and committing 14 turnovers.

Coach Lanny Moore's crew looked better in the third quarter as guard Tony Esquibel and reserve forward Brent Jetton sparked the Cavs to a 16-13 advantage.

Lakers return to last place, stay on road

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Back in the cellar of the NBA's Pacific Division, the Los Angeles Lakers face the Philadelphia 76ers tonight in the second of four road games in five days.

Bob McAdoo poured in 44 points and grabbed 18 rebounds in a 115-107 Buffalo Braves' win over the Lakers Tuesday night. The loss dropped Los Angeles from fourth to fifth in its division.

The Lakers are at Boston Friday night and Washington Saturday night.

Down by 17 points in the first quarter four times at Buffalo, the Lakers battled back to take a 62-58 halftime lead. Los Angeles led by 76-68 midway through the third quarter but the Braves, cutting idle Boston's lead to half a game in the Atlanta Division, then came alive and went ahead to stay 88-86.

Randy Smith had 24 points and Jack Marin added 20 for the Braves.

Lucius Allen led the Lakers with 19.

Poly to play in strange building

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

Cal Poly will be playing basketball in a strange location this weekend.

The Broncos will actually be at home in spacious Kellogg Gym when they open California Collegiate Athletic Association action against Cal State Bakersfield Friday night and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo Saturday night.

Coach Don Hogan is much more optimistic about his club's chances in the CCAA after three newcomers helped the Broncos pull a stunning 59-58 upset over Cal State Los Angeles.

"We're hopeful that win will serve as a cement for building a competitive spirit on our team," Hogan said at Tuesday's weekly basketball luncheon at The Castaway Restaurant.

"Our new players have added a new cometitive aspect to our team," Hogan added. "The big thing was the way we played after our big man, Bill Cantwell, fouled out. We didn't fold. That was the difference. It was an excellent win."

Poly begins a hectic schedule tonight when it travels to Thousand Oaks to play Cal Lutheran. Following are four-home games in five nights with the home-stand continuing next Monday and Tuesday when Cal State Fullerton and Cal Lutheran visit Kellogg Gym.

"If we can do well this week, it means we have arrived," Hogan said. "One win doesn't really mean anything."

Concerning the CCAA race, the Poly coach said; "SLO has to be rated the favorite with UCR in the second spot. We might scramble our way into it."

Russell Williams, a 6-foot-5 sophomore, was selected the Player of the Week for leading Chaffey College to a 67-61 win over San Diego City college. He scored 28 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to earn a plaque from the Foothill Beverage Company.

The Pomona Elks Lodge 789 is sponsoring a weekly award for the outstanding high school players. Earning the certificates Tuesay for the past two weeks were Delbert McDonald of Garey and Paul Whitmore of Ganesha.

Phil LaPierre represented the Elks Lodge in announcing the weekly honors.

Quoting the coaches:

MIKE WELLS, Garey High: "Delbert McDonald has played varsity basketball for us for two seasons. He has been named to three All-Tournament teams. Delbert has grown up this year in basketball and in the classroom. He's the one who inspires our team. We're happy to be top-ranked in the CIF 3-A rankings. We just have to prove ourselves. Our school is handling the news well and we hope the community does."

GARY FULKERSON: Ganesha High: "I am not suprised we have been playing so well. In the three games we lost, we shot under 40 per cent. Paul Whitmore has played just super for us. He is a great leaper. Our team leader is 5-6 Ralph Dudley. If he was 6-0, he would be an All-American. It's hard to say what we'll do in the league. I guess the rest of us will be shooting for second place behind Garey."

Full round set in SCIAC tonight

The first full round of Southern California Inter-Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) basketball games will be played tonight.

La verne (5-6) hosts Claremont-Mudd (2-9) while Pomona Pitzer (3-6) entertains two-time defending conference champion Whittier (4-5). Both games are slated for 8 p.m. starts. Occidental (7-4) visits Caltech while Redlands draws the bye.

While Pomona-Pitzer will be playing its first game since Dec. 16. La Verne and Claremont-Mudd will be trying to reverse losing trends which have seen each team lose three of its last four games. In the Stags' case, the last three in a row.

"Considering our records, our morale isn't bad," C-M coach Dave Wells said. "I'm very optimistic about the league. I was surprised the way Whittier handled La Verne. Perhaps the Poets are stronger than I thought."

La Verne has guard Dave Castaneda healthy now after a bout with a bad back and coach Art Bias is looking for improved play from his Leopards.

"We haven't played well the last four games," Bias said, "but that's the first time since I've been at La Verne that we haven't been competitive against Whittier. We've been working Dan Carroll into the lineup. I feel we're a better team with him playing."

Carroll is a 6-7 transfer from Mt. San Antonio College. In his four games to date; Carroll has scored 11, 12, 6 and 8 points.

Bias brought up the fact that La Verne has won the last three times the two teams have met; but by a total of ony four points.

"Claremont-Mudd is probably tired of losing by one," Bias said, "and our guys would like to win by more than one."

Pomona-Pitzer has center Geoff Northrop back for the Whittier game. But Northrop still limps noticeably from the severe ankle sprain suffered Dec. 13.

"It's affected his quickness a little," coach Les Nagler admitted," and his rebounding. "I was just as happy that we did have the long layoff. We needed it to get our injuries healed."

The Sagehens played and defeated L.A. Baptist without Northrop Dec. 17. After that, Nagler didn't see his players again until last Saturday night. They'll go into tonight's action having had only three practices since their last game.

Backup center Dave Coleman, who sprained his ankle in the L.A. Baptist game, will not return for another two weeks.

Poly visits Cal Lutheran for tune-up

THOUSAND OAKS — Cal Poly hopes to keep its basketball momentum alive here tonight when the Broncos visit Cal Lutheran in their final pre-conference test.

The Broncos, 1-4 are coming off an exciting 59-58 victory over Cal State Los Angeles.

Following tonight's game, Poly will make its official home debut Friday night when Cal State Bakersfield visits Kellogg Gym to open the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) season.

Bronco coach Don Hogan knows little about Cal Lutheran. The Kingsmen are 5-6 for the season and just won the South Bay Tournament championship.

Seniors Gary Bowman and Mike Prewitt are Cal Lutheran's top players.

Hogan isn't certain who will start tonight but he indicates he plans to use all 12 players.

"I will probably go with the guys who need the most work," Hogan said.

Apparently, Hogan wants the three newcomers to get as much game experience as possible. Joseph Sills, Kenny Clark and Levi Williams proved to be big additions in the win over Cal State L.A.

Hogan expects forward Malcolm Kennedy, who missed the Cal State game with the flu, to be available tonight.

Forward Paul Newton continues to lead the Broncs in scoring (14.8) and rebounding (10.0).

Kings begin long journey

BLOOMINGTON, Minnesota (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, who trail the Montreal Canadiens by four points in the NHL's Division 3, launch a seven-game road trip against the Minnesota North Stars tonight.

The Kings play at Buffalo Thursday night and Toronto Saturday night.

They wind up the trip with stops at Washington, Boston, Atlanta and Montreal.

Their next home game isn't until Jan. 23 when they host the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In their only meeting of the season with Minnesota Dec. 4, the Kings won, 4-1, at home.

Mounties in final tune-up

Mt. San Antonio College gets its final tune-up for the South Coast Conference schedule which begins Saturday when it hosts L.A. Valley at 7:30 tonight.

The Mounties dropped their first decision of the season to Pasadena City College last Saturday, 102-81, and will take a 14-1 record into tonight's game. L.A Valley is struggling with a 3-12 record.

Citrus College, a 61-59 winner over San Bernardino Saturday in the Mission Conference opener, heads south tonight for a meeting with Southwestern in Chula Vista. The Owls are 7-7 for the season.

Chaffey College (2-12), paced by veteran forward Russ Williams, claimed its second win of the year over the weekend, 67-61 over San Diego City College. The Panthers return to action Saturday by hosting Riverside in a Mission Conference game.

Riverside, the two-time defending Mission champions, pulled a major upset Saturday, stopping previously unbeaten Compton, 69-63.

Coach Gene Victor's Mountines, enjoying the best start in the history of the college, open the 10-game South coast schedule Saturday by hosting Fullerton (6-8) at 7:30.

MSAC, Santa Ana (14-2) and Orange Coast (7-9) were rated the top three teams in the conference on a pre-season poll of South coast sports information directors.

Two-time defending champion Santa Ana was ranked No. 1 in the state early in the season before losing to Compton.

Beside MSAC and Santa Ana, San Diego Mesa (10-6) is the only other team in the conference with a record over .500. Cerritos, one of the contenders in the conference for the last few years, is having an off-season. The Falcons are currently 5-10.

Pac-8 enjoys 66th win

By United Press International

The Pacific-8 has ended pre-conference basketball play with a combined record of 66-17.

Win No. 66 came Tuesday night when Washington State rolled over the University of San Diego, 74-48, with Greg Johnson leading a late surge after the Cougars held a modest 26-20 lead at the intermission.

Conference play begins Thursday when Washington takes a 9-2 record into UCLA, which is unbeaten in 10 games.

But while many coast teams have rolled impressively, the flop so far undoubtedly has been Seattle, pre-season favorite in the West Coast Athletic Conference, but only 1-8 so far. The Chiefs hit a clinker again Tuesday night when they fell 56-53 to neighboring Seattle Pacific despite 20 points by Chiefs hotshot Frank Oleynick. That was his lowest output of the season. Jerry Brown led the winners with 14.

In other action Tuesday, Pete Miller hit 9-for-9 from the floor and 20 points in leading San Jose State, now 11-5, to the 79-53 win over Chico State.

But Long Beach State slipped to 8-3 when it called on Wichita and fell in a 75-46 rout.

Portland hosts tough Marquette tonight.

Poly cagers facing a hectic schedule

GENE VICTOR, MSAC: "We lost to Pasadena everyway possible. I feel we had a natural letdown after playing in so many pressure games in the Chaffey and Hancock tournaments. We play our final non-league game against Los Angeles Wednesday then open conference play Saturday against Fullerton. We're looking forward to it. The South Coast Conference race should be a nip-and-tuck affair. There are a lot of good, young players in our conference."

LES NAGLER, Pomona Pitzer: "We haven't played since Dec. 17. I feel confident we are ready to play whittier in our conference opener Wednesday even though I will probably need to keep alternating players because they are a little out of shape. Geoff Northrop is still limping with his ankle injury but he will be able to play. It is better than having no Northrop at all. Whittier really has depth with a lot of talented people. We play Claremont-Mudd Saturday and I am sure it will be the usual, tight game it always is."

DAVE WELLS, Claremont-Mudd: "We lost two games in San Diego last weekend. The 10-day layoff over the holidays hurt us but that's no excuse. We look at the start of league play as the chance to get a fresh start. It is important that we do well in our first two games against La verne and Pomona-Pitzer. We have to cut down our turnovers. I am very pleased with the play of freshman center Stu Du Vall.

ART BIAS: La verne: "We weren't very competitive in our 82-58 loss to Whittier. We didn't show any zip at all. We're working this week on improving our spirit. We're kind of regrouping. I think we will be a much improved team. The Claremont-Mudd and Occidental games are two crucial ones for us."

NEIL EDWARDS, Citrus: We got a real fine game from Dwight Dyck in our 61-59 win over San Bernardino. He scored 18 points, grabbed six rebounds and five assists. Dyck is a player I discovered in one of my physical education classes. We play Southwestern and Saddleback this week."

BARNEY NEWLEE, Chaffey: "It's nice to be leading the Mission Conference. I guess our 2-12 record is misleading. Really,, we are starting to play well together now. We were pleased to win in San Diego. Now we get to host Riverside Saturday night. As usual; we're in for a lot trouble. I attended Monday's game between Marquette and San Diego State and it was interesting how well the junior college transfers played."

CLIFF HAMLOW: Azusa Pacific: "UC Riverside chose our game to try out their new zone defense and it gave us a good drubbing. Occidental also played very well against us. Fortunately, we have the week off Saturday when we lost UC San Diego. I'm afraid we relaxed a bit and weren't as intent on defense. The loss of Mike Leatherby didn't help us a bit but he should be back Saturday. Keith Walker sprained his ankle and his status is unknown. We're spending the week going back to basic fundamentals."

Becerril fights Richie Alvarado

LOS ANGELES — The first fight of 1975 at the Olympic Auditorum will take place Thursday when Carlos Becerril takes on Richie Alvardo in a 10-round junior lightweight scrap.

Becerril, 9-1 with seven knockouts, is coming off a fourth round knockout win over Fidel Frajo two months ago. Alvarado's record is 16-6 with five KO's. He holds a win over Mike Mayon who recently beat lightweight contender Jimmy Heair.

Mounties stage 27th track clinic

Mt. San Antonio College's Twenty-Seventh Annual Track and Field Clinic has been scheduled for Saturday morning.

The program for this year's event is shaping up to be one of the finest ever with the featured speaker being America's number one discus thrower and 1974 national champion — John Powell of San Jose, California.

Accompanying Powell on the program will be San Jose State coach Ernie Bullard and CIF 4-A cross country championship coach Bob Latham of Palos Verdes High School.

Powell will speak on weight training programs in the morning session and cover the discus throw at 12 noon. Bullard will teach the techniques of the triple jump and answer questions on pole vaulting; while Latham will explain a successful program in training mid-distance and distance runners.

The clinic is open to athletes, coaches, and track fans alike. A supporting fee of $1 will be charged — this includes free coffee and donuts during the 8-8:30 a.m. registration time. No advance registration is necessary.

The clinic will be held in the new field house facility — just south of the stadium.

C.O. begins title chase in Montview

Favored Charter Oak High, the No. 10 ranked team in CIF 2-A competition this week, begins its bid for a Montview League championship tonight when it visits Bassett at 8 p.m.

The Lancers, with a record of 9-4 for the season, will probably be led once again by its outstanding guard Roosevelt Morris.

Morris, who averages 15.2 points per game, leads the team in scoring. The other Lancer starters include forwards Brian Harrison (10.3 averages) and Mike Moses (12.9), center Todd Kilde (8.3), and guard Ron Haywood (6.9).

In other Montview League action tonight, Nogales visits Azusa. Rowland travels to Northview and Workman hosts Baldwin Park. All tipoffs are scheduled for 8 p.m.

Only two teams will be entering league play with winning records—Charter Oak and Baldwin Park.

Nogales (4-6) has the third best record in the circuit, and figures to be a contender for the title.

The Nobles defeated Charter Oak earlier this year in their own tournament, and are usually paced by center Napoleon Sparks who averages 13.9 points an outing.

Rowland (3-6) doesn't figure to be in the running for the crown, but the Raiders should give a couple of the league teams a rough time. Center Steve Nichols is the leading scorer for Nogales with an 11.7 average.

Cowboys have no problem winning

By TIM CLARK
P-B Correspondent

With the help of a not-so-awesome two-point first quarter by Upland, the Chino High Cowboys opened San Antonio League schedule by dowing the visiting Highlanders; 57-45, at the Frank Elder Gym on Tuesday afternoon.

The Cowboys were fortunate, as they played their poorest game of the year and yet won easily, the result of playing against a lowly Upland ball club.

The Highlanders hit one field goal on 14 attempts in the opening stanza (a sizzling 0.07 per cent). Paul Trautwein's club also committed 10 of its 24 turnovers in helping the hosts to a nine-point advantage (11-2).

Hector LaMarque had the hot hand for the Cowboys in the stanza; scoring seven of his 12 markers.

In the second period chino suddenly had its problems, as Gary Carr came off the bench to rally the Highlanders to just a five point deficit at the half, 21-16.

It was in the second 16 minutes of play that the Cowboys started to resemble the squad that had upset highly-ranked Miraleste only two weeks earlier.

Dirk Story led the charge by hitting on all four of his shots from the floor, while hauling down four rebounds. The 6-10 senior finished the game with 13 points and 14 caroms. Story has really made the Chino club go this year, playing with a new-found aggressiveness and determination.

Carr and Clark Sanders kept the Highlanders in contention by combining for 10 of the teams 18 third period points.

It seemed as if the Highdanders might pull a comeback on chino when they scratched within four (42-38) at the midway point in the fourth stanza.

Chino called a time-out, and skipper Bob Elder must have said something to inspire his troups, as they proceeded to pour in eight points in a row to lock up the contest.

Mike Coppess of the Cowboys took the game scoring honors with a total of 14 (10 in the second half).

Jim Love and Manny Delgado led the Cowboys defense, forcing bad passes and making a couple of timely steals. (The pair also contributed 15 points on offense.)

Upland guard Mark Sorenson led his team with 11 markers. Unfortunately, Sorenson fouled out in the early moments of the final period.

Chino will host Ganesha, who romped over Montclair 70-45, at 8 p.m. Friday. Upland will host suprising Pomona, who romped over upset Claremont 47-46. Tipoff is adso at 8 p.m. on Friday.

Chaffey drops CBL opener to San Gogo

Chaffey High got off on the wrong foot Tuesday night when it dropped a 59-57 decision to host San Gorgonio in their Citrus Belt League openers.

The game wasn't really that close; however.

Chaffey, now 6-4 for the season, had to rally late in the game in order to make it a two-point difference. San Gorgonio had held a six-point lead in the final minute of play before Tiger forward brian Jacobs and reserve John Mattke hit closing field goals.

The Tigers' and the valley's leading scorer: junior center Mark Mcquaid, returned after missing two games with illness, but McQuaid had another handicap in Tuesday's contest. The young Tiger who scored 19 points, put his hand through a window Monday after practice and required 22 stitches on his left (non-shooting) hand.

One of the big turning points of the game was in the first quarter when Chaffey could only come up with six points, its lowest scoring quarter of the season.

In other action around the valley, La Verne Lutheran fell to Sherman Indian Institute in Arrowhead League play; 60-51, Ontario Christian was defeated by Valley Christian in Olympic League action; 61-55, American Christian was embarrassed by Ambassador, 104-20, and Western League competition.

Trailing only 30-29 at halftime, La Verne Lutheran lost touch with only a nine-point third period against Sherman. The Trojans got to within three points in the fourth period, but that was as close as they got.

American Christian just couldn't play with the much taller Ambassador club. American, which doesn't have a single player over six feet tall, had to face Ambassador's front line of a 6-foot-7 center, and two 6-foot-5 forwards.

'Other team' in Kentucky rolling along

By United Press International

Louisville Coach Denny Crum complains his Cardinals still are considered the "other team" in Kentucky.

But the fourth-ranked Cardinals steadily are emerging from the shadow of the University of Kentucky.

Louisville rolled to its ninth straight victory of the season Tuesday night with an 81-74 decision over Cincinnati.

Junior Bridgemen, last season's Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Year, was again the Cardinals' top scorer with 24 points, while his chief partner in crime, Allen Murphy, added 14.

However, Crum was forced to resort to a seldom-used zone defense in the late going to preserve the Cardinals' perfect record. Cincinnati closed to within a point of Louisville four times in the second half, but each time the Cardinals repelled the attack.

Bridgeman surpassed the 1,000-point career milestone with his 14th point of the game, while Murphy set a school record with his 50th straight game in double figures.

Center Bill Bunton added 13 points and Wesley Cox 10 for the winners.

In other major games, Washington State romped over the University of San Diego, 74-48; Ohio University topped Missouri, 78-65; Texas won the Senior Bowl championship with an 80-75 victory over South Alabama; Lafayette upset Princeton, 73-67, Florida State clobbered Wisconson-Milwaukee, 102-84, and Georgetown defeated Boston University, 90-75.

Chaffey star still on top

There were only small changes in the valley's high school scoring derby over the past week, so Chaffey High center Mark McQuaid still holds the top spot with a 25.7 average.

McQuaid, only a junior, missed the Tigers' last two outings prior to this week with an illness.

Bonita High's Harold Drake has maintained his second-place status with a 24.5 average, while Claremont's Mike Toomay has held the third spot with a 23.2 output.

The statistics do not include Tuesday's games

Pomona stuns Claremont

By JOHN KEEPERS
P-B Correspondent

Danny Wilson of Pomona High sank four clutch free throws in the last two minutes of Tuesday's San Antonio League opener against Claremont to give the Red Devils the winning difference in their 47-46 upset over the Wolfpack.

A slow steady pace by Pomona's offense, plus the outrebounding of Claremont opposed to the 'Pack's cold shooting, helped the Red Devil five to lead the entire game.

Wilson scored the first four points and the last four points for Pomona, he led all scorers with a season high 20 points, with all of his field goals coming from inside Claremont's defense.

But his high mark was his free throw shooting as he made 10 of 14 for a 71 per cent accuracy. The whole team's free throw percentage was 72 per cent, aided also by Tony Pitts who hit five from six at the line.

Claremont could not seem to get going until the last two minutes of the first period when, down 12-4, Rob Fossum, Derek Britton, and Mike Toomay all combined to hit three consecutive baskets — bringing their team within two at the buzzer.

In the second stanza, Wilson and Dave Zibell kept the 'Pack out of reach and the surprising Devils went into the locker room with a 23-16 lead.

In the next half, Claremont's Britton (only a freshman) got its first two field goals to keep the visitors within reach, and then Toomay hit six of their last eight points of the quarter to suddenly bring Claremont within one, 29-28.

But then in the final quarter, Pomona quickly spurted to a 39-31 lead by outscoring the 'Pack 10-4 in the first three minutes. Three Devils got into that scoring spree with Sam Davis collecting five of the 10 points.

Toomay, who led Claremont with 16 points, tried to keep his team alive by scoring six of those in the final five minutes. But the persistent Pomona club, led by Wilson, remained enough ahead despite a bucket by Greg Gary to bring the losers within two in the final seconds.

Pomona will now travel to Upland Friday to try and stay on the winning track, while the favored Claremont squad will try to get back in winning form against the challenging Damien Spartans.

Poor Cleveland Cavaliers learn about Chones' injury

By United Press International

The Cleveland Cavaliers led most of the way before losing their NBA game to the Atlanta Hawks Tuesday night, but the Cavaliers' biggest loss occurred before the game even began.

Cleveland, which never has qualified for the playoffs but is in position to do so this season, learned on Tuesday that center Jim Chones had suffered a hairline fracture in his right foot and would be out of action for up to five weeks.

The Cavaliers already are playing without Austin Carr, who has a broken foot and may not be back before the end of the season.

Chones was injured last Saturday night when the Cavaliers lost to the New York Knicks. Although he was able to play on Sunday against Phoenix, an examination later revealed the break.

Tom Henderson scored a career high, 30 points, including four key ones in the last 1:30, to help the Hawks beat the Cavs, 113-112, in overtime Tuesday night.

Tom Van Arsdale had 29 points for Atlanta while Jim Cleamons led Cleveland with 20.

In other NBA games, Buffalo defeated Los Angeles 115-107, Kansas City-Omaha upset Milwaukee 108-99, Chicago beat Houston 106-97, Portland stopped New York 106-92 and Golden State slaughtered New Orleans 136-94.

Memphis defeated St. Louis 118-110 in the only ABA game.

Kings 108, Bucks 99

Nate Archibald had 32 points including 23 in the second half for the Kings, who broke away from a tie at halftime. Ron Behagen and Jimmy Walker had 19 points each for the Kings, while Bob Dandridge had 20 and Jim Price 19 for Milwaukee.

Bulls 106, Rockets 97

Bob Love scored 27 points to pace Chicago, which led all the way. Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston captured game scoring honors with 34.

Trail Blazers 106, Knicks 92

A 15-point fourth quarter by reserve forward Lloyd Neal helped the Blazers beat the Knicks. Neal finished with 22 points while Geoff Petrie had 21 and Sidney Wicks 20. Walt Frazier led New York with 23.

Warriors 136, Jazz 94

Golden State hit 62 per cent of its shots in the first three quarters and led 110-68 going into the final period to win its fifth game in the last six while New Orleans dropped to 3-34. Rick Barry had 29 points, 9 assists and 7 steals for the winners.

Local bowlers enter L.A. Open at Arcadia

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

ARCADIA — Three locals will be among the field of 160 bowlers as the four-day $60,000 Greater Los Angeles Pro Bowling Open begins today here at Bowling Square.

Greg Baderdeen, Bob Fenton and Tye Critchlow will be the Pomona Valley favorites as they shoot for the first place prize of $7,000. None of the trio cashed in last week's opening event, the $60,000 ARC Open in Alameda, but each has tuned up for a better showing this week.

Larry Laub, second leading money winner on the 1974 tour with over $66,000 in earnings, will defend his championship while Costa Mesa's Barry Asher will try to repeat his victory in last week's Alameda Open.

Earl Anthony, who came up $300 short of grossing $100,000 in 1974, will be trying to collect his first paycheck of the new season since no lefthanders were among the 54 cashers up north.

Qualifying began this morning with the first six-game block. Six more games will be rolled this afternoon and tonight with another six games being thrown Thursday morning. The field will then be trimmed to the leading 24 finalists who enter the head-to-head match play on Thursday night and all day Friday.

Tickets are avasilable at Bowling Square for any of the qualifying or finals action as well as for Saturday's TV finals which will be beamed over ABC (Channel 7) at 3:30 p.m.

Sign-ups set for Pomona cage leagues

Final registration for the Pomona Park and Recreation Department's youth basketball leagues is set for Saturday at six locations.

Boys and girls in the fourth through eighth grades are eligible to participate.

Sign-ups will be taken at Fremont; Emerson; Palomares; Marshall and Simons Junior High gymnasiums and at the Westmont Park Community Center from 10 a.m. to noon.

Team assignments will be announced immediately. Players who have already signed up should attend.

There are three divisions for the boys and two for the girls. Boys groups are fourth through sixth grades, seventh grade and eighth grade. The girls will have fourth through sixth plus seventh and eighth.

A registration fee of $3 covers the cost of a teeshirt uniform. Medical costs is optional for each team.

Games are planned for early evenings during the week and on Saturdays. The league will finish in early March.

Volunteer coaches are needed. The first of two clinics will be held on Thursday, Jan. 16, at Emerson Junior High beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Additional information is available from Phil LaPierre at 620-2321.

Celtics dominate All-Star rosters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four-fifths of the National Basketball Association champion Boston Celtics' starting team will be wearing All-Star uniforms when East meets West January 14 at Phoenix.

John Havlicek, starting at forward for the seventh straight year and playing in his ninth straight All-Star game, will have teammates Dave Cowens, Jo Jo White and Paul Silas behind him on the East bench.

Not since 1962 when the All-Star lineups were dominated by four Boston and four Los Angeles players, has any team posted four men in the midseason classic.

Washington coach (and former Boston star) K.C. Jones will be the East coach and will have, in addition to Havlicek on the starting five, New York guards Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe, Washington forward Elvin Hayes and Buffalo center Bob McAdoo.

On the East bench, in addition to the three Celtics, will be Washington's Wes Unseld and Phil Chenier, Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich, and Philadelphia's Steve Mix.

Starting lineups were selected by national fan balloting and reserves were chosen by a consensus of the coaches in each conference.

West coach Al Attles of Golden State will have his starting lineup of Milwaukee center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Golden State forward Rick Barry, Los Angeles guard Gail Goodrich, Seattle forward Spencer Haywood and Kansas City-Omaha guard Nate Archibald, supported by a quick and powerful bench.

Detroit guard Dave Bing will be playing in his sixth All-Star contest while teammate Bob Lanier will be competing in his fourth. Completing the team will be Milwaukee's Bob Dandridge and Jim Price, Portland's Sidney Wicks, Kansas City-Omaha's Sam Lacey and Phoenix' Charlie Scott.

All-Stars to race at Riverside

RIVERSIDE—Three drivers named to the 1974 All American Auto Racing team will compete in the first major race of 1975 coming up January 19 at Riverside international Raceway.

Richard Petty, David Pearson and Ray Elder, three of the 10 drivers named to the all-star team, will be among 35 drivers in the starting field for the Winston Western 500 stock car race that traditionally kicks off the racing season each year.

The All American team, named by members of the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Association, includes two drivers each from open-wheeled oval racing, stock car racing, road racing and drag racing, plus two drivers selected "at large."

Petty and Pearson were the two stock car drivers chosen while Elder, the West Coast National stock car champion, was an at-large selection.

Other 1974 All Americans were Johnny Rutherford and Bobby Unser from open-wheeled racing; Mario Andretti and Peter Gregg from road racing and Don Garlits and Don Prudhomme from drag racing. The other at-large selection was national sprint car champion Jan Opperman.

This is the fifth year in a row for Petty on the All American team. The 37-year-old veteran from Randleman, N.C., won his fifth national NASCAR championship last year with 10 Grand National wins. One of those was his fifth Daytona 500 victory.

Pearson, of Spartanburg, S.C., won seven major races last year driving the Wood Brothers purolator Mercury in selected Grand National races and earned a berth on the All American team for the second year in a row.

Elder, an alfalfa farmer from central California, won his fifth western Grand National championship in six years. He was on the All American team once before, in 1971 after an upset win in the Winston Western 500.

Petty, who has won Riverside's January NASCAR race twice before, in 1969 and 1972, will drive a new STP Dodge in this year's race. he will be looking for his 167th career Grand National win.

Pearson, starting his third full season with the famous Wood Brothers team from Stuart, Va., will be in a 1973 Mercury at Riverside. Although he won a sports car race at Riverside several years ago, Pearson has never won a stock car event on the road course.

Elder remains the only independent driver to have won a Grand National on the West Coast . . . and he's done it twice. Besides his upset in the 1971 Winston Western 500. Elder also took the 1972 Tuborg 400, Riverside's June NASCAR event.

Among the other favorites in next week's $114,000 Winston Western 500 is Bobby Allison in Roger Penske's AMC Matador. Allison has won the Tuborg 400 twice; but has never won the January race.

CUT-OFF — Bobby Allison (L) and Cale Yarborough battle through turn 9 at Riverside in Tuborg 400. The two will be touching fenders again as Yarborough defends his Winston Western 500 title Jan. 19.

Allison in comeback

RIVERSIDE—Bobby Allison is coming back again.

It may seem paradoxical to say a man who's won more than $200,000 over the last two years is on ths skids; but by Allison's standards; that's where he's been.

The 37-year-old stock car star racer from Hueytown; Ala., has won only four races in the Winston Cup Grand National division since 1972, a year which saw him win 10 races, nearly $300,000 and the American Driver of the Year Award.

"It hasn't been all that much fun the last couple of years, I'll tell you that," he says. "It,s never fun if you aren't winning."

Allison will be launching his second major comeback with the January 19 Winston Western 500 at Riverside International Raceway. He will drive Roger Penske's brand new 1975 AMC Matador in the 500-mile road race that traditionally opens the major racing season in America.

Allison has never won the Winston Western 500, but has twice won the 400 mile stock car race held at Riverside each June.

"It's a good course for me," Allison says, "I enjoy road racing and I think the experience of Penske's crew will help set the car up right."

Allison joined Penske several months ago after announcing for the second time in four years he was quitting the Winston Cup circuit. The first time came after the factory withdrawals from stock car racing in 1971.

During the 1960's Allison had been a regular on the Chyrsler payroll; driving Mario Rossi-prepared Dodges. But, when the factories pulled back; he found himself without a paid seat and tried to campaign his own car.

"I was going broke in record-breaking time," Allison recalls. "There was just no way I could keep a car together without some help, so I decided to give it up and concentrate on short track racing."

Just as Allison announced his retirement, a ride opened with the successful Holman & Moody Food team and Allison was given that car. He immediately went on a winning streak and ended up the 1971 season with more than $200,000 in his pocket.

The next year, Bobby shifted to Junior Johnson's Chevrolet team where he enjoyed the best year of his career. Then, he tried to go alone again.

In 1973 and 1974 Allison built and campaigned his own Chevrolets. Although he was consistently a front-runner the car didn't have the reliability of the ones he had driven before and finishing a race became a rarity.

Then last July, he said he was quitting again; and again he was heard. Penske; whose regular driver Gary Bettenhausen was injured, signed Allison on a race-to-race basis and finally for the entire 1975 season.

Allison will drive one of Penske's championship cars in several races this year;, too; including the three 500 milers at Indianapolis, Ontario and Pocono.

"I think were going to start winning some races now," Allison says; "and when we start; we're not going to be easy to stop."

Indy to return to usual four-day qualifications

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indianapolis Motor Speedway said Tuesday it is returning to the traditional four days of qualifying to determine the 33-car starting field for the 1975 Indianapolis "500".

Time trials were restricted to just two days in 1974 because of the energy crisis.

However, a Speedway statement said the energy situation would be attacked through a curtailed program of practice hours similar to last year's— about 50 per cent of the time allotted in 1973, the last "normal" year of race preparations.

Time trials will be held the weekends of May 10-11 and May 17-18.

The Speedway said limiting the qualifying time days last May "resulted in unanimous criticism by participants and spectators alike."

Entry forms for the 1975 race will be mailed later this month. Among the drivers likely to try again are six former champions —Johnny Rutherford, who won last year, A.J. Foyt, Al and Bobby Unser, Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock.

Mark Donohue, who won in 1972, also was reported by the Speedway to be considering a return appearance following a two-year absence.

Upland girl qualifies for special swim meet

Karen Kostoff, an 11-year-old from Upland, qualified in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:09.7 to compete in a special South-North dual swim meet Saturday at Culver City.

A member of the Chaffey Aquatics Club, Miss Kostoff will be on the Southern Pacific Association AAU swim team in the meet against the Northern California AAU squad. The meet begins at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Culver City.

Three other Chaffey swimmers barely missed on their attempts to qualify at the Southern Pacific Association meet at Long Beach.

Mike Grabowski, 12, of Upland recorded times of 27.2 in the 50 freestyle, 1:00.3 in the 100 free, 30.5 in the 50 fly, 2:27.4 in the 200 IM for sixth place, 1:09.2 for the 100 back and 32.5 in the 50 back.

Jim Moore, 15, of Claremont had times of 5:04.4 in the 500 free, 1:54.9 in the 200 free and 53.4 in the 100 free. Lynn Ferguson, 13, of Claremont was timed in 1:17.6 in the 100 breast and 2:49.1 in the 200 breast.

In her other times, Miss Kostoff had a 2:32.2 in the 200 IM, 31.8 in the 50 fly, 32.7 in the 50 back, 1:00.8 in the 100 free and 28.0 in the 50 free.

The Chaffey Aquatics team will be competing in a SCAA meet on Saturday against Saddleback at Mission Viejo. Next on the schedule is the SCAA Winter Relays on Jan. 18 at Arcadia.

Swimmers, ages 6-17, interested in competitive swimming in the AAU program or novice may contact coach John Ries at 981-1785. The team practices nightly at the Chaffey High pool.

Sports news in brief

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Sporting News today named running backs Don Woods of the San Diego Chargers and Wilbur Jackson of the San Francisco 49ers its AFC and NFC rookies of the year for 1974.

Woods was drafted by Green Bay but went to San Diego on waivers before the season began. He gained 1,162 yards in 227 carries for an average of 5.1. Jackson was San Francisco's top draft pick from Alabama and averaged 4.1 yards on 175 carries for a total of 705 yards, including a 64-yard dash from scrimmage.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jack Kramer, who ruled tennis from 1946 through 1954, Tuesday was named the ninth recipient of the Hickok "Golden Link" award, and will be honored at the 25th annual S. Rae Hickok "Professional Athlete of the Year" presentation here on Jan. 14.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gary Bettenhausen posted the first points of the 1975 United States Auto Club season Tuesday when he was awarded 27 for a first place finish last Sunday in a USAC midget class run on the 1-10th mile indoor oval at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Southland racing

GARDENA—Familiar Figure-8 rivals Ed ferro of Gardena and Jose Tanasi of Hollywood try to continue their leadership in Ascot International Raceway's new winter point championship Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Ferro, third-place finisher in the 1974 season point struggle, finally broke a streak of ill luck that plagued him the last half of the campaign and held off Tanasi for the final 13 laps of the opening 20-lap feature sunday.

Tanasi, the 1974 high-point finisher, finished fifth.

In winter events, all comers are eligible to participate for the seasonal bonus money. Regular season competition in Figure 8's begins with April's night races.

IRWINDALE—Every Friday night moto-cross competition features over 200 riders in over 40 separate races over a challenging ⅝ mile course.

Entries are taken from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Practice is from 6 to 7 p.m. with racing starting at 7:30 p.m. Entry fee is $6.00 including admission.

E.T. bracket and class racing is held each Sunday. For 1975 the dial-your-own bracket purse has been increased to 10 over $780. NHRA legal super modified, street and competition eliminator categories will run on a weekly basis.

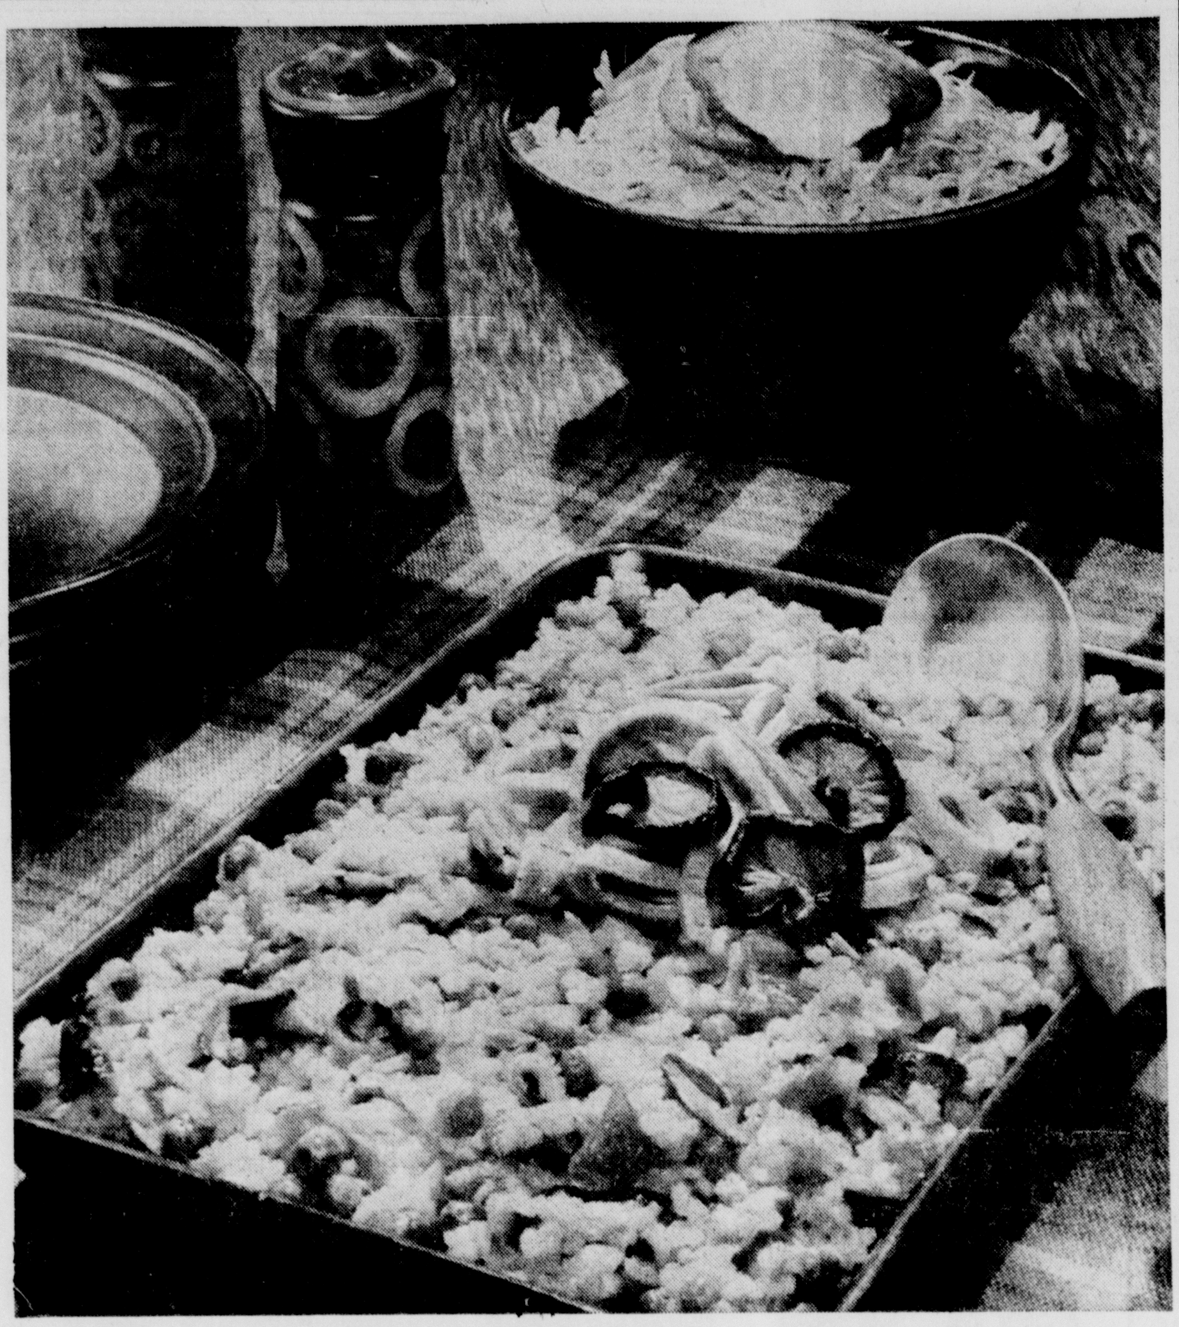
Mushroom pilaf makes tasty dish



1 ounce (1 cup) Japanese Forest Mushrooms
1-3rd cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 cups water from mushrooms
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups quick brown rice
3 small tomatoes
1½ cups frozen peas
1½ cups grated Cheddar cheese
1 to 1½ cups slivered cooked ham or turkey

Cover mushrooms with hot water and let stand 10 minutes. Drain reserving liquid. Clip and discard stems. Cut mushrooms into ¼-inch srips, leaving some of the small ones whole, if desired. Saute mushrooms and onion in butter in a 2 quart saucepan about 10 minutes. Add reserved mushroom water (adding extra water, if necessary, to make up the 2 cup measure), salt and nutmeg. Bring to a boil, stir in rice. Cover and cook over low heat 10 minutes. Meanwhile, chop tomatoes, (should measure about 1 1-3 cups). Discard any excess liquid and seeds. Add tomatoes, peas, cheese and ham (or turkey) to rice. Toss gently. Cover and continue cooking 5 minutes longer until liquid is absorbed and rice is tender.

NOTE: To serve as a meatless entree, omit ham or turkey and serve with lemon-buttered green beans and baked acorn squash (or other vegetables). Or, use as a side-dish to accompany meat, poultry or fish.

Garlic brightens the dullest meal

It used to be thought that garlic was great for driving off evil spirits. Especially in times of plague.

Today we are living in times of a different plague — galloping inflation. So maybe it is now time to use more garlic and brighten dull inflation meals.

A garlic bulb consists of a flock of small "cloves" or "kernels" huddled together. Break off a clove, as called for in most recipes, and you find it has a strong, pungent flavor which adds to salads, stews, soups and meats.

There has always been garlic. Apparently it first grew in Middle Asia then in Mediterranean areas. Today it is used worldwide, you'll recognize its delicacy in gourmet dishes as well as peasant foods.

After many generations of generally avoiding garlic, the United States is now in the center of the act. It all began right after World War II. Our boys came home with first hand knowledge of what good things garlic does to food. They wanted more of it in their own homes. Also, the American craze for foreign travel boosted the use of garlic in American kitchens. We steadily want more of it, so much so that last year we used more than ever before.

You can buy garlic fresh — that is, in bulbs, or in small cloves. It will keep at room temperature for several weeks. Or you can now buy it in dehydrated form, either as garlic powder, garlic salt (blended with salt) or minced. The sales of each kind, fresh or dehydrated, are about equal. The powdered garlic appeals to many women because it can be kept on the shelf and used easily. Many, however, feel the fresh has better flavor.

Most of the garlic used in the United States is grown in California. Some is imported from Mexico, Argentina and other Latin countries. The increased demand for it has caused California alone to raise 897,000 cwt (one hundred pounds) last year. The year before, the figure was only 663,000 cwt. But because of the extra production, the actual price for fresh garlic remained steady.

But prices for the dehydrated garlic generally rose around 20 per cent. This jump was caused by labor, building and transportation costs plus the high prices demanded by the manufacturers of special dehydrating machines.

Great quantities of garlic are used in processed foods, too.

Here are some home uses of garlic:

Let's start with garlic bread, so popular in many American restaurants. Simply butter sliced French or American bread thickly, then scatter very finely minced fresh garlic over the butter. Place bread in oven to serve warm. Use garlic powder, if you prefer.

For a broiled thick steak, use a large platter. Rub bottom of platter with a cut clove of garlic. Then add pats of butter with a cut clove accompanied by a liberal supply of Worcestershire sauce. Place in oven or over heat and tip the plate so that butter runs over the garlic-rubbed surface. When the steak is ready and sizzling, plunk it down on the platter. Turn it once then carve and be delighted.

For spaghetti and cheese: In the bottom of the casserole, scatter just a few tiny pieces of garlic, just enough to fill the top of a spoon. Continue mixing your spaghetti and milk and cheese, etc. but that breath of garlic, hardly recognizable, will turn your spaghetti and cheese into a wonderful dish.

Sugar costs seen as aid to health

The sharp rise in sugar prices are not all bad in the opinion of most of the nation's leading nutritionists.

As sugar prices continue to soar, consumers are turning to more natural sources of sugar to replace the refined sugar they had been using.

Noting the current interest in sugar substitutes, Jane Uetz, home economist with the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, reports that there is no better source of natural sugar than fresh fruits.

"Sweetening" this diet shift even more is the fact that these sugars are not empty calories. Rather, the natural sugars in fresh fruits are augmented by vitamins and minerals, other valuable nutrients and fiber that are not in table sugar.

Several common fruits contain relatively large amounts of various sugars. Fresh fruits currently available that contain 5 grams or more of various natural sugars per 100 grams edible portion include bananas, grapes, apples, pineapples, pears, strawberries, oranges and other citrus fruit except for the highly acid ones. Sweet potatoes and parsnips are also high in sugars.

As the price of sugar continues to rise amid predictions of further increases due to decreased production and supplies, several food economists and consumer affairs directors in food chains have been urging their customers to curtail their purchases of sugar. They are advising consumers to substitute fresh produce for sweetened foods and to provide meals that are better nutritionally and also lower in cost.

Among alternatives suggested have been fresh fruit instead of cake, fruit-flavored yogurt instead of ice cream, and fresh orange juice in place of sweetened soft drinks.

Miss Uetz suggested some simple dessert ideas in a recent interview. Orange Glazed Bananas: Peel 4 firm bananas and place in a baking dish. Mix 2 tablespoons fresh orange juice, 2 tablespoons honey, 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine and ½ teaspoon grated orange rind; pour over bananas. Bake in 450-degree oven for 10 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Here's another easy recipe. Fresh Fruit Parfaits: Add 1½ cups cut-up fresh fruit such as pineapple, orange sections or grapes to 1 package prepared vanilla pudding mix. Fold in 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Whip ½ cup heavy cream and fold in. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill.

While sugars are natural products, in the form of table sugar (sucrose) it is purified and concentrated to an unusual degree. And this is the problem as far as nutritionists are concerned. We get too large a percentage of our carbohydrate from this one source. And as much as 20 per cent of our average caloric intake is from sugar.

This consumption pattern is a relatively recent development. It's only within the last 40 years that per capita consumption of sugar in the U.S. hit about 120 pounds a year, of which more than 100 pounds is sucrose from white table sugar.

"More and more, consumers are looking to fresh fruit to substitute for the sugar they formerly used," Miss Uetz reports. "For the average American, especially our youngsters, this can only be considered a dietetic blessing if we change permanently from empty calories to the more natural sources of sugars in fresh fruits."

His noble gesture backfired

READING, England (UPI) — The girl huddled on the ground, blood streaming from her face. A man stood over her. It was too much for Jim Long, a mechanic playing a knight in shining armor.

He sprung upon the man. Jim, 22, felled the man with one blow, kicked him as he went down and broke his jaw. It landed him in court.

The girl was Sally Clements, 16, who had tripped and bloodied her nose. The man was her boyfriend, Peter Harding, who had been trying to help her.

"I thought she was in trouble and went to help," said Long after Reading magistrates put him on probation for his guilty plea to assaulting Harding. "Next time I'll look the other way."

Mountain women provide favorite pitch-in recipes

NEW YORK (NEA) — It's a long way from Finland to Taiwan to Tennessee. When Californian Nancy Patterson set up her potter's wheel in Laurel Bloomery you could almost hear the mountain people as, "How'd she git yeare?"

Back in the mid-1960s Nancy Patterson probably asked herself the same thing as she struggled to set up a ceramics plant in Appalachia.

As a 20-year-old student just out of UCLA in 1948 she had firm plans to study illustration and design of textiles and wallpaper at the Los Angeles Art Center College of Design. She was wooed away from this determination by an instructor Albert King, a ceramist who hand crafted procelain in a small Los Angeles studio. This was in an era when handcrafts and those who did their own carving, sewing, needlework and ceramics as art and for a living still were considered slightly eccentric, if not exotic.

Nancy Patterson admits that during her Los Angeles stint she saw "a number of American artisans quietly going broke. Europe was the center then . . . especially of fine ceramic art."

She got her break to work in Europe when the managing director of Denmark's Royal Copenhagen Porcelain Manufactory admired her work. He invited her to come to work for them as a guest artist, without pay, for a month. This month away from her California home stretched into seven years, she reveals, as she went from Denmark to work and study in the fine design studio of Arabia porcelains in Finland. Then she took a swing throughout Europe, the Middle East and Asia. Back from Taiwan, she recalls, "I told my mother I'd be gone six months.

The Chinese had asked her to help them get financing for a plant near Taipei and while doing this she stumbled upon some good advice. This led her to Appalachia, specifically to the Iron Mountain Range region. Here the mountain people had a long tradition of handcrafting of carved wood, hooked rugs and cornshuck dolls.

Nancy Patterson first set up housekeeping and her potter's wheel in Damascus, Va., and eventually plumbed down her plant site midway between Mountain City, Tenn., and Damascus—"It made commuting to work easy."

To many, Laurel Bloomery, may sound like an ad man's puff but back in 1870 an ironmongering plant turned out "blooms" of metal against a background of mountain laurel, hence the poetic name. With financial aid from the Area Redevelopment Administration, bank loans, stock sold to family, friends and local folk and Department of Labor funds to train workers, Iron Mountain Stoneware was started.

All this sounds much easier than it really was, Nancy admits. Along the way she picked up a husband who was a ceramics machinery engineer. Harold W. (Joe) Lamb came out to Luarel Bloomery, she says, from New Jersey to analyze production problems. She is now Mrs. Lamb and they have three young children. He is general administrator and production head while she concentrates more and more on design.

Things have never been easy in Appalachia and Nancy admits that at first she was put off by the natural reticence of the mountain people.

"In New York City you're almost overwhelmed by the seeming openness and eagerness to get the ball rolling."

"In Luarel Bloomery they kind of look around a person before accepting him. Once they do, you're in."

She says she is very happy to be in because she loves the mountains, the people and the creative work Iron Mountain Stoneware turns out. It's really rewarding, she feels, and when asked where she would go if she had to leave she seemed stunned.

"Nowhere, I like it there," she finally says.

However busy they are in the plant, though, there always is time to swap recipes and make plans for an occasional pitch-in meal. Almost everyone brings a covered dish. Several women wrote down their favorite recipes for such outings and Nancy passes them along.

These recipes, she admits, gave her an idea: "I like to see good food attractively arranged on a plate. Now I'm planning a cookbook with the help of the people in the area."

PUMPKIN BREAD

3 cups sugar
1 cup salad oil
4 eggs beaten
1 can (1 pound) pumpkin
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons soda
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon allspice
2-3rd cup water

Combine sugar, oil and eggs. Add pumpkins. Sift together dry ingredients and add to pumpkin mixture. Add water, thoroughly beat and pour into loaf pans. Preheat oven and bake bread in 350 degree oven for 1 hour.

PUMPKIN CAKE

3 cups sugar
1 cup corn oil
2-3rd cup water
4 eggs
2 cups cooked fresh or canned pumpkin
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons soda (heaping)
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Mix sugar, corn oil, water, eggs and pumpkin in order given. Mix in sifted dry ingredients and pour into tube pan. Bake for 1 hour and 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Let cool and frost.

FROSTING

8 ounces cream cheese
½ stick margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons butter flavor
1 two-pound box powdered sugar

Let cream cheese and margarine soften at room temperature, cream together and add remaining ingredients. Frost cake.

CROCK PICKLES

Wash 300 (pickles) pieces of cucumber; through these sprinkle 2-3rds cup salt, put in kettle and cover with boiling water. Let stand overnight. In the morning drain and wipe dry. Place in crock. Mix 2 tablespoons mustard, 4 tablespoons salt, ½ cup pickling spices, 2 quarts white vinegar. Pour over the pickles and leave in crock. Measure 3 pounds of sugar and add one cup of sugar each day until the sugar is used. Stir good with each addition of sugar.

SQUASH CASSEROLE

2 pounds peeled and cubed squash
1 medium onion chopped
1 green pepper chopped
1 egg
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup milk
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to tast

Steam squash, onion and pepper in small amount of water until tender. Drain and mash slightly and stir in butter, egg, ½ cup cheese, milk and seasoning. Mix well and pour in casserole. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top then bread crumbs saturated in butter on top and bake about 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

OLD-FASHIONED VINEGAR PIE

Cook in double boiler, stirring in 1 cup sugar, 5 tablespoons flour, 1 cup water until clear and thickened slightly. Add 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, pinch salt. Cook 2 minutes longer and pour into baked 9-inch crust and top with egg white meringue. Bake at 275 degrees until browned.

Rice, cheese can ease the ailing budget

Each morning the housewife faces the question of what foods to buy as prices steadily go higher. If she works, too, she needs foods that can be cooked quickly and with the least amount of preparation. Cheese is one good bet.

Dorothy Holland says, "Cheese is in better supply this year than in the last two years. Its flavor makes it an ideal selection for budget meals, meals quickly prepared and meals where everything put before one can be eaten. There are no leftovers."

As a vice president of Kraft Foods and an expert on consumer relations, she is highly qualified to discuss family food problems.

"Cheese," she continues, "can be used as a main dish. It also can be used as a snack. It is excellent for the working woman because it can be prepared so quickly. Two ounces of cheese make a normal main dish serving. Therefore, one pound will provide enough for eight 2-ounce portions."

Rice is another food in excellent supply for 1975. It can be used in a surprising number of ways.

"Long grain converted rice, one of several forms of rice, is definitely a convenience food. It cooks quickly and requires no preliminary washing. One cup of raw converted rice makes 3½ to 4 cups of cooked rice," says Marian Tripp, a widely experienced home economist in consumer needs and nutritional education.

"For dinner, I would serve converted rice, a green vegetable and three ounces of steak — not 3½ or more. That would make a flavorsome and nutritionally balanced meal.

"Most nutritionists are stressing that Americans eat too much meat — especially beef. They suggest a 3-ounce serving, or even less. To get people to make the change will be a long hard pull, of course. But there is now a national effort being made to teach the public the basic facts of nutriton, especially the children. It has been stated by researchers that people will listen to food educators only just before the first baby is born or when they grow older and want to know what foods might help them lose the aches and pains of old age. However, the inflationary prices of food, plus the increasing number of unemployed, may cause people to stop, look and listen before they put down their shrinking dollars for certain foods."

Liquor drinkers prefer higher priced brands

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Liquor drinkers favor the higher priced brands even though the bottles contain the same spirits as in the lower priced bottles, according to an industry representative.

Bernard David, operator of Premium Products, Union City, Calif., told a state attorney general's hearing that three bottles of vodka, identical because they came from the same vat, sell from $3.25 to $5.25 a bottle and the public prefers the expensive brand 15 to one.

The same situation applies to bourbon whisky, David said, because it was all about the same in order to conform to federal standards.

"If you poured almost any brand of bourbon into another bottle," he said. "I defy anyone to tell the difference.

"One of my best friends even apologizes to me for serving me my own liquor. It's the same as the expensive brand but he doesn't believe it. Advertising by the big brand names has turned us all into automatons."

The Attorney General's office is conducting hearings on California's price support programs and fair trade laws.

Chicken makes entertaining economical

Those who plan to entertain — despite higher food costs — will find chicken dishes done with a special flair a great way to economize. For example, Chicken Breasts Supreme may contain mushrooms, black olives and slivered almonds but the cost per serving works out to 90 cents if you bone the chicken breasts yourself. A Curried Chicken Casserole with crunchy green beans and water chestnuts costs 36 cents per serving. Both dishes will make your family or friends sit up and take notice of your expertise.

CHICKEN BREASTS SUPREME

- 2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved, boned
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 can (2 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- ¼ cup sliced pitted black olives
- ½ cup slivered almonds
- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 2 teaspoons parsley flakes

Pound chicken breasts to ¼-inch thickness. In a small fry pan, saute mushrooms, olives and almonds in margarine. Place ¼ of cream cheese on each breast half; top with ¼ of sauteed mixture. Roll breast pieces, completely encasing cheese filling. Secure with small skewers or food picks. Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Heat oil in 10-inch fry pan. Brown chicken rolls on all sides. Transfer chicken rolls to baking dish. Sprinkle with parsley flakes. Tightly cover baking dish; bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until brown and fork tender. Makes 4 servings. (Cost per serving — 90 cents based on breast with bone-in, deboned at home.)

CURRIED CHICKEN CASSEROLE

- 2 cups diced cooked chicken
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- 2½ cups chicken broth of bouillon
- 2 teaspoons curry powder
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 small onion (¼ cup) finely chopped
- 2 cups quick-cooking rice, prepared as package directs
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen French style green beans, cooked, drained
- 1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, drained, sliced (optional)
- ½ cup fine fry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

In a saucepan, blend flour and mayonnaise. Gradually stir in broth. Add curry powder, lemon juice and onion. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, 5 to 10 minutes or until thickened. In a greased 2-quart baking dish, layer half of the rice, beans, chicken, water chestnuts and sauce; repeat layering. Mix bread crumbs with margarine; sprinkle over top. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 8 servings. (Cost per serving — 36 cents.)

Universties fail to set standards, prexy maintains

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — John W. Oswald, president of Penn State University, says American universities have not defined strong stands on values, morals and ethical judgments.

"In these recent days of national anguish, we in education need to reexamine the tloofness we sometimes maintained toward explicit reference to values and morality," Oswald said. "We are sorrowfully aware that men of great influence and responsibility have confessed to varying degrees of crimes and misdemeanors, and we are deeply chagrined that each has been trained at an American institution of higher education."

Program aids women, children

NEW YORK (UPI) — Can you feed one member of a low income family without feeding them all?

And how can you be sure the food provided in a supplementary feeding program is used for extra nourishment and not as an income supplement?

A federally funded pilot program called WIC is trying to find the answers to these and other questions affecting pregnant women, nursing mothers, infants and children up to the age of four whose inadequate diets endanger their health, growth and often even survival.

WIC reaches women, infants and children in 253 selected areas of the United States. They range from the bayous of Mississippi and the Chicano barrios of Texas to the entire state of Vermont and an area of Minneapolis that includes the University of Minnesota campus.

In some areas participants receive coupons redeemable for specific foods, and in others some food is delivered, some picked up by eligible families. A few participating counties run a direct food distribution program.

In Pierce County, Wash., for instance, a local dairy delivers milk, eggs and cheese, while nutrition aides deliver infant formula, iron-fortified cereal, juices and other foods, and participants pick up some food themselves at a local children's center.

Everyone in the program is asked to report regularly at a clinic for health checkups. The program's usefulness and effectiveness will be evaluated by the nutrition department at the University of North Carolina School of Public Health in 1975.

The project already appears to have increased demand for health services.

Expectant mothers are motivated to seek prenatal care much earlier when they hear they can get extra food, says Gabriel Stickle, vice president for program development at The National Foundation-March of Dimes. Mothers also bring their children for checkups earlier and more often, Stickle added.

The foundation provides volunteer manpower at some clinics in the WIC program. It also holds training institutes for professionals and paraprofessionals and has made cash grants in a few places to help pay wages for health department nutritionists and health aides. The grants from the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture restrict the amount that can be spent on anything except food supplements.

But whether all the women can be educated and motivated to use the extra food as intended is another question, according to Stickle and Dr. Howard N. Jacobson, professor of community medicine at Rutgers Medical School, New Brunswick, N.J.

"Evidence suggests that food supplements for very poor people don't change what they eat, but they free money for other things," said Jacobson in an interview. If you give milk stamps and the children need shoes, the mother will get milk with the stamps and use the milk money for shoes, he said.

"But the real basic issue is this: Can you feed one member of a family without feeding the whole family?" he said.

"The wage earner normally has the first crack at the food," he added. "Experience has shown that women —mothers and girl children —are expendable in most societies." They eat last, after the fathers and boy children, said Jacobson, adding that if you give just enough food for the pregnant woman or nursing mother, how do you know she's not going to share it.

"It would be useful to know in the WIC program how they have dealt with this problem," he added.

More than eight million people crowd streets of greater Sao Paulo, making it one of the fastest growing cities in the world. By 1984, it is expected to be the fourth largest, with a population of about 15 million, the American Autommobile Association reports.

Rice and wine, ancient fare, get modern treatment

Both rice and wine predate recorded history. A splash of wine has been used for centuries to turn a simple dish into gourmet fare. The wine carries with it all the mystique and elegance of the ancient art of fermenting the juice pressed from grapes. It is known that wine was produced in both Egypt and China about 2400 B.C. And probably even earlier . . . before it was recorded in history.

Dishes with a luscious wine sauce are perfectly teamed with rice. And rice might even be older than wine. It was known in the same areas as wine and at about the same time. But some say that rice had its beginnings in India around 3000 B.C.

Modern techniques have improved production yields and storage, but wine and rice are here in essentially the same form as they were then . . . a tribute to their appeal and their ability to fulfill specific needs of many peoples throughout many centuries.

In modern kitchens these two fulfill the needs of today's housewife . . . to stretch food dollars while at the same time providing tasty meals with good nutritive value.

Wine is the tasty touch; for good nutrition, the meat and vegetables are cooked in its sauce. Rice fulfills a two-fold purpose: it takes the meat-vegetable combination and stretches it to serve more people, and it adds its own vitamins, minerals and carbohydrates to make the meal complete. At less than a nickel a serving, rice makes as much sense now as it did 4,000 years ago.

- 3 cups hot cooked rice

Pour milk over bread. Let stand 5 minutes. Combine with meat, onions, pepper, and 1½ teaspoons garlic salt. Mix thoroughly. Form into 18 meat balls. Brown in a lightly greased skillet. Stir in tomato sauce, soup, wine, and remaining garlic salt. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

Inexpensive 1-dish meal with chicken

An inexpensive and complete one-dish meal combines diced cooked chicken, an herb-seasoned stuffing mix and mushroom soup. This is an ideal way to use that leftover chicken. Serve with a fruit salad and buttermilk biscuits.

CHICKEN AND DRESSING BAKE

- 2½ cups diced cooked chicken
- 1 package (8 ounces) herb-seasoned stuffing mix
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- ½ cup milk
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Toss stuffing mix with onion, one-half can of the soup, chicken broth and beaten eggs. Spread mixture in oblong baking pan. Top with chicken. Mix remaining soup with milk and pimiento; pour over chicken and dressing. Cover pan with foil. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings. (Cost per serving for 6 is 44 cents; for 8 it is 33 cents.)

Water skiers hazardous

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Beware the water skiers!

Tourists who take the sightseeing cruise of Biscayne Bay would do well to heed that advice.

Some of the young water skiers deliberately cut in close to the boat, sending an avalanche of water through the large open windows. Unsuspecting passengers are caught off guard and drenched. Camera buffs and those with binoculars should be especially alert.

According to Capt. M. V. Rogers of the Island Queen, UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. but the Coast Guard can be notified only if the number of the speed boat towing the skier is noted.

Workers receive good rating

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey of 70 top international managers from the United States shows American employees rate especially high in productivity, labor stability and general performance on the job.

The survey is published in The Conference Board Record. In assessing the relative performance of their overseas work forces, the American companies frequently give top ratings to workers in Germany, Canada, Japan and Brazil. Workers in those countreis also are cited most often for performance equal to or surpassing that of U.S. workers.

WHAT'S IN STORE

A GOOD BEGINNING

In studying food consumption patterns, it is discovered that teenage girls and working women usually have the poorest breakfast habits. Some of the excuses used for breakfast skipping are: no appetite, dieting, no time. Since this is the meal which "gets us going" and helps balance our daily food intake, here are some suggestions to start the day with more than just a cup of coffee.

1. Begin by eating just a single quick food such as a glass of citrus or tomato juice, or a piece of fruit, or a glass of milk, or cup of hot chocolate. Then add other foods gradually.
2. Keep easy-to-fix foods on hand. Variety breads make good toast, and ready-to-eat cereals provide needed roughage as well as good nutrition. (Check the new nutrition labels on cereal boxes to make sure you are buying good protein and other nourishment and not just sugar!)
3. Try an out-of-hand breakfast. What's wrong with a favorite sandwich or hard-cooked egg in the morning? A milk shake with an egg added is good nutrition.
4. Even dieters should be aware that if an adequate low-calorie breakfast is eaten, it is easier to skip the mid-morning snacking temptations and to cut down at lunchtime. Studies have shown that weight reduction is much easier to manage when a morning meal is included in the diet plans.

Perhaps the beginning of the new year is a good time to resolve to try to amend eating habits!

Pearl's Denver engagement hinges on doctor's ruling

DENVER (UPI) — Associates of singer Pearl Bailey say her doctors will make the final decision on whether she will be allowed to begin a scheduled engagement at a Denver nightclub.

Miss Bailey, 54, was released from Denver General Hospital Monday after undergoing treatment for a possible heart attack, exhaustion and the effects of Denver's mile-high altitude.

"She still wants to make her scheduled appearance here in Denver, but we're awaiting final word from her doctors," a spokesman for Miss Bailey said. "She is resting now and feeling a lot better."

Dinner for 2: one-skillet swiss steak

Many couples who wrestle with the problem of cooking for two solve the dilemma by preparing recipes for four or six and freezing the leftovers in individual portions. When both work, it is always fun to sit down to a quick, hot meal together — one that doesn't take hours of preparation or clean-up time. A one-skillet Spanish Swiss Steak uses an economical cut of meat that tenderizes in a pleasing sauce. Add frozen corn on the cob and canned sliced tomatoes to the skillet in the last 15 minutes to complete the meal. Takes about half an hour of preparation and cooking time.

SPANISH SWISS STEAK SUPPER

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- Flour
- ½ pound cubed steak
- 1 can (14½ ounces) baby sliced tomatoes
- ½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- 2 ears frozen corn on the cob
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 3 tablespoons water

Melt butter in 10-inch skillet. Saute onions and garlic until tender, about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, rub 2 tablespoons flour into both sides of meat and cut meat in half. Push onions and garlic to one side of skillet. Add meat and brown well on both sides. Add tomatoes and their liquid, olives, corn and chili powder. Cover and cook 10 to 15 minutes or until corn is fork tender. Remove meat, olives and vegetables to warm plate. Combine 1 tablespoon flour and 3 tablespoons water until smooth. Gradually add to drippings in skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils 1 minute. Serve gravy with meat and vegetables. Makes 2 servings.

Quick breads always help busy mothers

A one-bowl quick bread recipe always is welcome in this day of active mothers who are busy but want their children to eat healthfully . . . and have some memories, too. Few aromas kindle the thoughts of youth as much as that of homemade bread baking. A hearty and nutritious bread combines protein-rich peanut butter and bananas with a dollop of orange. This goes well in the school-lunch box when spread with cream cheese or as a breakfast bite with milk to start the day more nutritiously than most individuals do today.

PEANUT BUTTER BANANA BREAD

- 1-3rd cup peanut butter
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup mashed ripe bananas (2 medium)
- ¼ cup milk
- Grated rind of 1 orange
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda

In a large bowl cream peanut butter and butter. Gradually stir in sugar. Beat in eggs until smooth. Stir in banana, milk and grated orange rind. Sift remaining ingredients and stir into bowl. Stir until smooth. Spoon dough into a greased 8½x4½x2½ loaf pan. Spread dough until top is smooth. Bake in a preheated 350-degree for 60 to 70 minutes or until bread feels firm to the touch. Unmold loaf and cool on a rack thoroughly before cutting into thin slices. Serve spread with butter, honey, cream cheese or your favorite jam, jelly or preserves. Makes one 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf.

Stuff bread with halibut and cheese

Bread and fish go well together. Currently there is a surplus of fish and this should be reflected in supermarket prices. An interesting and attractive dish to serve makes use of North Pacific halibut which is available frozen throughout the country during the year.

A round loaf of crusty French bread is used as the edible container. Cut off the loaf top and hollow out a portion of the inside. Fill with North Pacific halibut that has been poached and top with a Cheddar cheese soup dressing. Serve with a hearty mixed green salad and for those who enjoy wines a chilled white wine such as a California chablis, an Italian Soave or a French Muscadet goes well.

HALIBUT IN THE ROUND

- 1 pound halibut, poached
- 1 round loaf French bread
- ¼ cup diced onion
- 1 green pepper, diced
- ½ cup diced celery
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 (10½ ounce) can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
- 3 to 4 slices sharp Cheddar cheese

Poach halibut in simmering salted water, seasoned with a slice each of lemon and onion, 2 sprigs parsley and several peppercorns. Simmer 5 to 8 minutes or until halibut flakes when tested with a fork. Remove. Flake halibut, discarding skin and bones. Remove a slice from top of French loaf and reserve. Remove bread from center of loaf to within ½-inch of crust. Reserve 2 cups bread crumbs for halibut filling. Saute onion, green pepper and celery in butter or margarine. Add flaked halibut, seasonings, soup and reserved bread crumbs. Heat. Fill bread with hot halibut mixture. Top with cheese slices and top of bread. Bake at 350 degrees 8 to 10 minutes. Cut in wedges to serve. Makes 6 servings.

Nutritious meal takes little time

Many adults are looking for quick breakfasts or evening meals that take little time or effort to prepare yet are filling and provide a portion of daily nutritional requirements. One such is a blended Cream and Crunch Breakfast Shake which is a blend of orange juice, ice cream and milk atop a bowl of corn flakes. This should appeal to the most jaded of morning appetites and is also a healthful possibility for the older person who lives alone.

CREAM AND CRUNCH BREAKFAST SHAKE

- ½ cup milk
- 1-3rd cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream
- Corn flakes

Place milk, undiluted concentrated orange juice and sugar in electric blender. Blend on high speed (or use rotary beater) until thoroughly combined. Add ice cream and blend on high speed until smooth. Serve at once over corn flakes in cereal bowl. Makes about 2 cups, 3-4 servings.

(Note: Mixture may be stored in freezer a few minutes before serving.)

Perception pays

In 1886, Joseph Hobson Jagger won over two million francs at Monte Carlo in eight days of playing the roulette wheel. He came to be known as "The man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo." An expert on spindles, Jagger suspected one of the roulette wheels of a faulty spindle and watched it for over a week. Thereafter, he bet on the numbers turning up with more than just mathematical probability and won his fortune.

Salute cost-conscious colonists with thrifty party

On a cold December night in 1773, distinguished Boston citizens, incensed by the refusal of the British to repeal the colonial tea tax, disguised themselves as Indians and boarded three vessels in Boston harbor. There they cast overboard huge cargoes of tea. This colorful demonstration was perhaps one of the most memorable events leading to the American Revolution.

In these days of spiraling food costs, there are simpler ways for the consumer's voice to be heard. One way is to be ever watchful of the cost and quality of the foods you buy — and then to select those which will go a long way in providing the most quantity and nourishment for your money.

Wholesome meals can be made of flavorsome foods which will feed a family and still keep within a sound and "centsible" budget. Certainly foods that are in plentiful supply, and fresh from harvest — and that can be frozen for later use — are ones to seek in planning menus. One of these is the native American cranberry in markets now. This plump, piquant fruit is happily more bountiful than ever, and its tangy flavor can add zest to a vast variety of dishes from soups to desserts. Plus, they're easily frozen. Just pop unopened bags or boxes into the freezer.

So celebrate the independent spirit of those early cost-conscious colonists — and prepare a good old-fashioned, New England meal, which will enable you to feed your family, or entertain a crowd of friends, without stretching your food budget beyond its limits. For your main course a hearty, tangy "Cranberry Bean and Pork Casserole". Along with it serve a homemade "Berry Brown Bread", filled with such naturally good ingredients as whole wheat flour, buttermilk, molasses and fresh cranberries. Round out this wholesome fare with a salad of bright, crisp greens — Boston lettuce of course would be most appropriate. For dessert, fresh fruit and a savory regional cheese.

For a jolly concoction to accompany your dinner — or to serve at cocktail time or later in the evening — consider the "Teaberry Boston Bash." It's a warm and merry mix of tea, cranberry juice cocktail, spices and rum. Serve in mugs with cinnamon sticks.

All these recipes add up to a menu of warmth and hospitality. It will also make you feel extra good to know that you have created a meal which is at once pocketbook practical and tasteful. No doubt any one of our Founding Fathers would have approved partaking of a meal such as this.

1 teaspoon salt
½ cup molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ cup sugar
2 cups Ocean Spray fresh cranberries, chopped

Cover pea beans with water and add salt. Cover and bring to a boil; remove from heat and let stand for 1 hour. Drain beans and fresh water to cover. Simmer covered until beans are tender, about 1 to 1-½ hours, stirring occasionally. Drain beans, reserving cooking liquid. Place beans into a 2-quart casserole or bean pot. Stir in remaining ingredients, adding 1 cup of the reserved cooking liquid. Bake covered in a slow oven (250 degrees) for 6 to 8 hours or until beans are very tender and all liquid is abosrbed. Add more of the reserved bean liquid from time to time to prevent sticking, if necessary.

CRANBERRY BROWN BREAD

1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup yellow corn meal
1 cup whole wheat flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups buttermilk
2-3rd cups molasses
1-3rd cup sugar
3 cups fresh cranberries

In a large bowl combine all ingredients and stir until well blended. Spoon mixture into a greased and floured 1-quart steamed pudding mold. Cover tightly with a greased lid or foil. Place mold on a rack in a deep kettle. Add enough boiling water to come halfway up the side on the mold. Cover kettle tightly and cook pudding at a slow bubble for 2 hours, adding boiling water if necessary to keep up the level of liquid. Remove mold from kettle. Let stand for 5 minutes, then unmold onto a cake rack. Cool thoroughly and cut into slices. Spread with butter and serve with Cranberry Beans and Pork Casserole.

CRANBERRY TEA BOSTON BASH

4 cups (1 quart) cranberry juice cocktail
2 cups strong tea
2 cups ginger ale
Peel of 1 orange
¼ cup sugar
6 whole cloves
1 cup dark rum, optional

Auto ferry up for sale

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Santa Rosa, an auto ferry that ran from San Francisco to Sausalito before World War II, went on sale Thursday with a $150,000 price tag.

The 48-year-old vessel, which also sailed from here to San Francisco before moving to Puget Sound in 1940, was put up for sale by Donald Clair, a marine diesel firm owner who purchased the Santa Rosa in 1968 for $21,768. He planned to turn the boat into a complex that included a restaurant and a museum but authorities wouldn't grant him a permit.

Clair said the 265-foot vessel is in "fine shape" but his advertisements say it will be sold for "non-operation use."

He said several changes were made during the Santa Rosa's career in the Pacific Northwest.

The ferry was changed from a double-ender to a single-ender and now has only one wheelhouse.

Baker's dozen

When heavy penalties were inflicted for short weight of breads, bakers added a 13th loaf to the dozen to avoid the risk of incurring a fine. Thus started the custom of a "baker's dozen."

Polo is a fast and exciting game played by players on horseback.

Outdoor polo is played by two teams made up of four players each. The players on their polo horses dash madly from one end of the field to the other.

The riders, using long-handled mallets, try to drive a small wooden ball down the field and through the opposing team's goalposts.

A polo horse has to be able to run, dodge, turn, and stop very quickly.

Every polo game is divided into six or eight periods of play called "chukkers." Each chukker is 7½ minutes long.

The winning team is the one which scores the most goals.

Polo is a very old game. It was being played in Persia (now Iran) at least 2,000 years ago.

The name comes from the Tibetan word "pulu," which means "ball."

The countries where the game of polo is played most often today are England, India, Argentina, and the United States.

A radio, camera, globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Dear Santa:
You forgot to remember Grandmother this Christmas. We included her name on our list and in our prayers. We asked you to bring someone nice to live with her in her mobile home in Montclair. Someone who doesn't smoke, drink, or swear. Someone who hasn't forgotten how to laugh and that would be good company for her. She's so easy to love, Santa. She's a young 75 she's not an invalid; she just doesn't get around like she use to since she had a stroke a couple of years ago. She needs help with cooking and keeping the trailer straightened up, but mostly, she needs warm friendship. Grandmother has been living with my aunts (Mom and Dad both work) but Grandmother wants so to move back to her own home. She isn't rich, Santa. She can only afford $100 a month, plus room and board. Would you see what you can do, Santa? You can call Mom after 5:30 in the evenings, Monday through Friday at 624-9347.
